AN OPEN LETTER TO NORTH SHELBY COUNTIANS

We have recently been advised that the Administrator of National Banks has approved the new and unneeded national bank to be located in Pelham. This is the bank that over 400 people protested against last

We also read the statements made in the local weekly newspapers by the organizers of the new bank. The most ridiculous statement being made by these outsiders is that their bank "will be owned by homefolk and operated to serve the homefolk". The truth is that not one of them live in the Pelham area.

We are disappointed that the Administrator of National Banks ignored over 400 people who protested the new bank and ignored the fact that the organizers were outsiders and high ranking political figures who knew nothing about the Pelham area or its people. They didn't even bother to talk to the Mayor or the Pelham City Council about whether a new bank was needed or wanted. They also ignored the fact that Bob Vance was the State Democratic Chairman and that Vondal Gravlee was Senator Sparkman's chief fund raiser and that Allen Montgomery, who is an Administrative aide to Senator Sparkman, was a previous owner of the land and holds a mortgage on the land on which they propose to build the bank and therefore has a financial interest.

We are also disappointed that the approval contained absolutely no conditions requiring that the board of directors of the bank be comprised of any local or area residents, and that there were no requirements as to the sale of stock to local or area residents.

We think these outsiders will have a hard time raising the $750,000 they claim they will raise by selling stock to Pelham area residents. In offering stock in their bank, we believe that these outsiders should answer publicly the following questions:

- (1) Are there any local Pelham people who have been involved in the new bank? If so, name them.
- (2) Does Allen Montgomery, Senator Sparkman's Aide, have any interest in the bank other than being the former owner and holder of a mortgage on the new banks location?
- (3) Was Senator Sparkman informed of the interest of Mr. Vance, Mr. Gravlee and Mr. Montgomery in the bank?
  - (4) What big city banks helped with this banks application?
- (5) Will this new bank be bought up by a big city holding company as soon as legally possible?
- (6) Who are some of the outsiders who have asked to invest large sums of money to buy stock in the new bank?
- (7) Will the president of the new bank be a present employee of a big city bank?
- (8) What conditions, if any, have been placed on the bank by the Washington office of the Administrator of National Banks?
- (9) Doesn't the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation insure all the Shelby County banks just as much as they would insure the deposits of the new bank?

Lay stripe stockings total 141,000

June stockings increase Lay stripe numbers

The reported stocking of 60,000 fingerling salt water striped bass into Lay Lake by the Fish and Game Division of the Alabama Department of Conservation during the week of June 16 brings the total number of stripe stocked into Lay Lake to 141,000. The above figures were released last week by Dan Catchings of the Estaboga Fish Hatchery located near Oxford.

The fish were produced at the Mation State Fish Hatchery which was recently acquired for the Game and Fish Division from the federal government on a long-term lease.

"With the acquisition of the Marion facility, we are now in a much better position to increase the number of fish we can stock and the areas that can be stocked," commented

Game and Fish Director Charles D. Kelley.

In addition to being an . excellent sport fish and a good eating fish, saltwater stripes are noted for their ability to consume large quantities of the abundant gizzard shad found in most Alabama public waters. This means they feed on forage fish that are too large for other native Alabama game fish to eat. Because of this, the stocking of saltwater stripes may result in improved fishing fishing in the tailwaters of for other game fish.

BEFORE YOU BUILD, IMPROVE OR BUY LAND AROUND ALABAMA POWER COMPANY RESERVOIRS, DETERMINE HOW MUCH OF THE LAND WILL BE SUBJECT TO FLOODING.

Alabama Power Company has full ownership of lands in the permanent reservoir areas upstream from its dams. It also has a flood easement on certain lands above and outside of the permanent reservoir areas for the purpose of flooding these lands from time to time as may be required during flood periods for temporary storage of water. This temporary storage is necessary for the purpose of flood regulation and control which is required by its Federal Power Commission license.

Property owners, builders or prospective purchasers of lots or acreage extending into the flood easement areas should learn how much of the property in which they are interested is situated on land between the top level of the permanent reservoirs and the top level of the flood easement areas since these areas are subject to flooding and will be flooded. The extent of Alabama Power Company's flood easement on any given tract of land can be determined by examining the public records in the court house of the county in which the land is located. With such information a competent surveyor can locate and stake the limits of the flood easement on the ground.

Alabama Power Company wants to see the lands above the flood easement of its reservoirs fully and attractively developed, but in a manner which will be safe, enjoyable and reasonable. However, Alabama Power Company cannot be responsible for injuries to persons or damages to any property or to any type of structure or improvement in the permanent reservoir areas or flood easement areas resulting from flooding. Please note that construction of dwelling houses, commercial establishments, dikes and fills and other improvements on the land in the permanent reservoir areas, as well as the flood easement areas, both covered by Federal Power Commission license, is not permitted. FUTURE STRUCTURES OR IMPROVEMENTS UNLAWFULLY PLACED IN SUCH AREAS WILL BE REQUIRED TO BE REMOVED

FROM THE RESERVOIR AND FLOOD EASEMENT AREAS. Observing the precaution of knowing how much of the land you plan to improve is in the flood easement area and avoiding construction within that area of any type of structure will eliminate the necessity of action on our part to protect our flood rights and will help make your experience in the development of the lot or acreage you own a pleasant one.

The bride wore a floor length gown fashioned of ivory organza and chantilly lace with Victorian neckline accented with Val lace. The empire waist featured a V insert on the chantilly lace-covered bodice. Val lace encircled the waist line. The hemline was finished with a wide border of chantilly underlapped with a Val lace edged organza ruffle. It had a Cathedral length train. The ivory illusion veil was attached to a lace headpiece encrusted with pearls. She wore a blush veil over the knee length veil.

The bride carried a cascade of pink roses centered with a white orchid.

Bridal attendants wore blue floor length dresses with flounces at hemline and neckline. The short blue veils were attached to blue bows. They carried circular bouquets of roses, daisies, and carnations.

The reception was held at the home of the bride. Follow ing their return from a Florida wedding trip the couple will live in Bessemer.

What Would You Have Done?

There is much being said and much more being written about Child Abuse these days. All too lightly, apparently, is this subject treated. Unbelievable and incredible incidences have recently been related to the writer on this subject -- but these cases have originated in towns other than Columbiana. However, one day last week, a person in whom I have every confidence, was passing through the parking lot behind the courthouse and witnessed a young mother with a crying baby in an automobile parked on these premises. Evidently - angered by the baby's cries, the mother in administering punishment -was engaged in banging the baby's head against the car seat while holding "him" or "her" by the feet.

To whom should this case of child abuse have been reported? Should a representative from the Child Welfare Department been contacted? Should the eye witness to the sickening scene have approached the mother and tried to reason with her by telling her she was possibly injurying her child for

These questions were tossed around the desk but no answer was found that would protect the child from further abuse.

Some members of the group remarked that if the Child Welfare Department had been called, a lot of red tape would have had to be cut through, plus rules and regulations. Others remarked if the sheriff had been called he could not have made an arrest without a warrant being sworn out. So -nothing was done to save the child from further harm.

The fact that this example of child abuse happened right here in Columbiana to a helpless "wee one" has caused the writer plenty to worry

HOW TO BUDGET YOUR ELECTRIC BIL

The amount of electricity you use each month is never exactly the same. Air conditioning in summer and electric heating in winter can make your electric bill go up. Other times it's down.

Up and down. Month to month. Season to season.

But you can keep your electric bill from changing like the weather. With Levelized Monthly Billing. A service from Alabama Power that lets you pay about the same amount each month, based on the number of kilowatt-hours of electricity you've used during the past year. It's simply a matter of an average use.

With Levelized Billing, you always know what to expect within a very few dollars. So you can budget your electric bills.

Ask about Levelized Monthly Billing at any Alabama Power office. Or send in the coupon below for a brochure explaining this service.

Knowing you can budget your electric bill can take the big ups and downs out of paying it.

This is what happens with the electricity you use. And what usually happens with your electric bill. Seasonal changes in usage can mean seasonal changes in your bill

This is what happens to your electric bill if you have Levelized Monthly Billing Your payments don't vary more than a very few dollars each month.

Far reaching bills now under study

Two legislative committees start hearings this week on perhaps the most far- reaching series of bills which have been or will be introduced at this session. They would give Alabama a new state constitution.

The first joint hearing before the house and senate constitution and elections committees began yesterday morning. There will be others in the weeks ahead to give everyone a chance to speak out for or against the proposed changes in the state's organic law.

The entire package could have been wrapped up in one bill, and, if passed by the legislature, would go to the voters in one amendment. But the consitutional revision commission which worked for several years drawing up the recommendations decided the proposed new constitution should be submitted in several separate parts.

If it were contained in one amendment, the voters would have to approve or reject the entire constitution. But by doing it in several individual amendments, the people could approve one portion of the new constitution and turn down another.

The hearing yesterday was concerned with the first five articles. They include the Declaration of Rights . . . Distribution of powers of Government . . . The Legislature . . . Reapportionment of the Legislature . . . and The Executive Department.

The other sections will be taken up at later meetings.

Several significant changes are recommended in the first five articles dealing with individual rights and the operation of the state government.

For one thing, the proposed new Declaration of Rights would give the courts more discretion in doing away with bail bonds if the trial judge is satisfied that the defendant will appear in court when he is supposed to. And it would require jury trials in all offenses where the maximum sentence is more than six months.

The article dealing with the legislature would provide annual salaries for members of the house and senate. And it would prohibit the passage of any bill in the last three days of thelegislative session.

For reapportionment, the proposed new constitution would set up a commission which would make its recommendations to the legislature every ten years. Unless rejected, the commission plan would automatically take effect.

The article governing the executive branch of government would take away the Governor's right to pocket veto a bill simply by refusing to sign it after the legislature has adjourned.

State Senate processes

break down

MONTGOMERY - With one-fourth of its allotted time gone and with over 2,000 bills in the hopper, the Alabama Legislature last week gave a perfect demonstration of how its processes have broken down and many people who voted for annual sessions two weeks ago must be asking themselves, "Why?"

by Don Wasson

As said here before, annual sessions is a necessary step in the direction of legislative reform, but not the first step. Before giving them license to meet every year, Alabama voters should have demanded that the Legislature set both its houses in order.

The House, actually is not as bad. There seems to be an excessive number of prima donnas in the lower chamber with too many of them rushing to the microphone on every-issue. Sooner or later, they'll discover that this is one of the surest ways to kill yourself, politically speaking.

But the Senate seems to be impossible. That once deliberative body has degenerated into a haven for lawmakers who are more like pensive children, sulking and carrying on if they lose a single motion.

What has happened is that over the years the Senate has learned to misuse its rule book and the body has boxed itself in with an inane "5 o'clock adjournment" rule and another rule which allows them to meet only on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The 5 o'clock rule was the invention of Sen. Bob Wilson of Jasper who, in 1973 as a floor leader for Gov. George Wallace and chairman of the Senate's Finance and Taxation Commission, made the motion in a facetious vein when anti-Wallace senators kept everything bottled up in committee.

When Wilson made the motion to adjourn each day at 5 p.m., it followed several late night meetings and he was really being facetious.

But his opponents quickly saw the advantage and voted for the rule change.

Now they can filibuster and block anything they don't like. Individually they can do this and the Senate Rules were never designed for that sort of carryings-on. The problem today is that it is those senators loyal to

Lt. Gov. Jere Beasley who are doing the delaying and Beasley, as usual, denies any part in the scheme and vows that the filibustering is not his idea.

But it is his hand-picked team which is doing the

But it is his hand-picked team which is doing the talking and he personally put them all in the positions of power they hold.

Some of the governor's aides were saying last week that the plan of action is to create a large backlog of legislation early in the session. Then the Senate Rules Committee, chaired by Beasley appointee Sen. E. C. Foshee of Red Level, could let the bills out of the bag a few at a time, depending upon which individual senators or which individual special interest group shows the most interest in the Beasley-for-Governor campaign.

If that is the gambit, then don't look for much of anything to pass the legislature. Those who oppose Beasley would be quick to sense what was going on and would then begin filibustering themselves.

It is sad, really, to see the deliberative body behaving so badly and the raunchy bunch over in the House putting their backs into their work and getting things done. It has been the procedure, in years past, for the House to pass everything laid before it, trusting to the Senate to kill those measures which weren't so good.

But now killing measures is the order of the day in the Senate and a real unusual thing is for the upper chamber to PASS anything.

C'mon now--

Wallace compromises school fund diversion

Governor George Wallace has offered a compromise on his school tax diversion plan, but he says he still thinks it's financially unsound to earmark tax revenue for any specific purpose. And he says he will try to get a constitutional amendment submitted to the people to stop it.

But the battle over earmarking of funds ... tying them down so they can be used only for a specific function of government, like education ... isn't really anything

It has been raging . . . off and on . . . for many years. And although school officials are wholeheartedly in favor of earmarking now when education is getting the money, there was a time when they didn't think it was such a good idea.

Thirty years ago, revenue from the state income tax was earmarked for ad valorem tax reduction. The idea was to reduce the taxes and use the income tax money to replace the lost property tax revenue.

But even though it was written into the State Constitution when the income tax amendment was ratified in the 1930s, the Legislature never got around to passing an enabling act so state officials could spend the money. So year after year, it piled up in a trust fund.

In 1945, the late Governor Chauncey Sparks decided the schools needed the income tax revenue ... and needless to say, education leaders agreed with him.

But Sparks wasn't willing to un-earmark the money for one purpose and then turn around and earmark it for another. He got the Legislature instead to submit a constitutional amendment to the people to put the income tax proceeds into the state's general fund, where it could be used for whatever the Legislature saw fit . . . just as Wallace wants to do now.

Assassination plot release questioned

by Senator Jim Allen

The Rockefeller Commission has made its report on CIA activities within the United States. Yet to come are investigations by special Senate and House Committees, and by the Senate and House Armed Services Standing Committees which have oversight responsibilities over the CIA.

The findings of the Rockefeller Commission that have been made public demonstrate that CIA domestic activities did not approach the disastrous proportions which some of the liberal press declared that they had. Most fair- minded Americans are pleased with the manner in which the Presidential Commission conducted and concluded its work - avoiding wide-spread publicity but, at the same time, making a thorough study. But I must question the wisdom of the President's decision to turn over to Congressional Committees confidential records relating to assassination plots. I do know what information was uncovered by the Commission, but what good can be accomplished by releasing the information? In effect the President is making the record public because, given Congressional Committees track record for leaking information, the President might just as well have released the CIA records himself over national radio and television.

I do not approve of assassinations as a part of national policy, but I fear that we are going too far in publicly flogging the CIA, the FBI and other intelligence gathering agencies. Can you imagine information on the activities of the Russian KGB being made public by the Kremlin?

I do not mean to play down the importance of Presidential and Congressional authority to maintain proper control over the CIA to assure that its activities do not interfer with, threaten or even slightly hinder the rights of American citizens. But Congressional Committees and Presidential Commissions must take great care to guard against headline- grabbing publicity stunts connected with their investigations.

In these troubled times of international tension and stress it is absolutely mandatory that our Nation have a CIA and an FBI, strong and respected, second-to- none in the world. Those in charge of these Agencies must not exceed the scope of operations provided by their charters. But, at the same time, Congress and a sensation seeking national media must not destroy these Agencies with a series of highly-publicized witch hunts.

High blood pressures located

Letter to Editor:

We thank you for the help you were able to give in recognition of May 1975 as High Blood Pressure Month. With your help we were able to check over 1200 people all over the city for high blood pressure. About 25% of those we checked were found to have elevated blood pressures, and were urged to seek medical care for this problem.

Thank you again for helping us provide an important health service to the people in Birmingham.

Most Sincerely,
Donna R. Miley

To make sure that the schools got the money at least for the first two years, Sparks also got an appropriation bill passed allocating the revenue to education in the event the income tax amendment was ratified.

The voters, however, turned it down.

But the income tax proceeds never were used for ad valorem tax reduction. In former Governor Jim Folsom's first term, another constitutional amendment was submitted to the people, this time earmarking the money for teacher salaries. And the voters approved it.

Education isn't the only thing tax revenue is earmarked for, of course. The money from some taxes is pledged to the highway department ... other tax receipts are tied down for mental health, general health, welfare, conservation, and agriculture.

Wallace wants to put it all in one big pot and let the Legislature decide how it should be spent.

Move may deny press privilege

One of a series of bills introduced in the Legislature as part of a proposed new State Constitution seeks to repeal certain sections of the present Organic Law. One of them is section 57, and some of the sponsors of the bill admitted that they didn't even know what section 57 provides until newsmen called it to their attention.

Section 57 says that news reporters covering the capitol are guaranteed the privileges of the floor in the House and Senate. That means they have a right to be seated in the House and Senate chambers when they are covering the Legislature.

Elimination of that section, as recommended by a Constitutional Revision Commission, would take away the news media's constitutionally guaranteed right and leave it to the Legislature to decide whether they should be admitted.

Probate Judge Conrad Fowler of Shelby County, who is chairman of the commission which wrote the proposed new Constitution, said the commission felt it was up to the Legislature to decide who is entitled to the privileges of the

But Senator Bill King of Huntsville, chairman of the Senate Constitution and Elections Committee, said he is fearful that the "whims of the Legislature" . . . as he called it . . . might cause the news media to be barred from the House or Senate from time to time.

Incidentally, section 57 also gives the Governor the right to come into the House or Senate chamber. Repeal of section 57 would deprive the Governor of that guarantee as well as the news media.

Arts funding cut opposed

Letter to Editor

On April 8, 1966, Governor George C. Wallace signed Executive Order no. 29 creating the Alabama State Council on the Arts and Humanities. On that occasion, he stated, "The practice and enjoyment of the arts are of increasing importance to the personal welfare of the people as a vital aspect of our cultural heritage and as a valued means of expanding the scope of our educational programs."

Governor Wallace has just released to the legislature a budget that recommends a cut of $25,000 (from $125,000 to $100,000) for the Alabama State Council on the Arts. This creates a puzzling but very real paradox. The Governor has stated the people of Alabama need the arts and the people have shown they want the arts. So, despite the obvious needs and desires the simple fact remains that if appropriations are cut, the State Council's effectiveness will be greatly hampered and the citizens of Alabama will be the losers.

No one denies that Alabama has been affected by inflation and recession. We should remember, however, that economic growth and prosperity is intrinsically related to the availability of cultural pursuits and programs.

During the past five years, the Alabama State Council on the Arts and Humanities has assisted hundreds of educational institutions, arts organizations and communities by helping them provide exposure to all the arts for thousands of Alabamians in search of richer, fuller lives. Despite the dramatic expansion of the arts resulting from the leadership of the State Arts Council, it has operated on the same State appropriation for the last four years - a mere 3.6 cent per capita.

The State of New York recently passed a law requiring that at least 75 cents a person be spent on the arts and the southern states of Florida, Mississippi, Kentucky and South Carolina have approved increases in arts appropriations for the coming years.

If you share our concern for the enrichment of the lives of the people of Alabama please write and call you state legislators to encourage their support of an adequate appropriation for the Alabama State Council on the Arts. The Council requested $420,000 this year, which comes to 12 cents per capita.

Evidence in the case of Steven Lee Perry, a minor and child under the age of sixteen years, was heard on the 18th day of June for trial de novo on its merits upon appeal from the Juvenile Court of Shelby County.

After considering the evidence, presiding Judge James H. Sharbutt ordered, adjudged and decreed that the Shelby County Department of Pensions and Security be awarded the temporary care, custody and control of Steven Lee Perry.

Tax Collector Fay Quick, is taking her annual vacation from official duties. However, business continues brisk with Delyn Cost, her capable assistant in charge.

The State Department of Education personnel will hold a 12 hour clinic for training school bus drivers at the Shelby County High School beginning Tuesday, July 8 and continuing through Thursday, July 11. Instruction will begin at 8:30 a.m. and continue until 11:30 a.m. each day during the four days session.

All persons interested in taking this training course should contact the Shelby County Board of Education Office in Columbiana, or get in touch with Sherill McClure, Superintendent of Transportation for the Schools. Only 50 people may attend this training school so -- the first 50 persons who come or call and leave their names will be enrolled. Call 669-2491 for further information.

According to Michael W. Worley, Project Manager of the Shelby County Reappraisal Program, the initial field research phase of the program is progressing steadily. Representatives of the Jacobs Co., Inc., are currently working in the Sterrett-Vandiver area and are proceeding westward on the final leg of this phase of the program. It is anticipated that the basic data gathering will be completed around the end of July.

The final phase of the program is currently underway in the Pelham area and moving forward satisfactorily. The entire program is scheduled for completion at the end of 1975 - This date is approximately six months before the contract finishing date.

California Aero-Topo, Inc., is very active in researching deed information essential to the reappraisal program and preparing the official ownership tax maps for Shelby County.

It is believed that a schedule turnover of maps will begin shortly after their delivery — for approval — to the State Department of Revenue.

Circuit Judge James Sharbutt conducted pre-trial hearings for civil and equity jury cases Tuesday and Wednesday. Trial dates will be set for the first week in August when the summer term of the Circuit Court will begin.

Ninety minutes of confusion, dismay

Letter to Editor:

The citizens of Shelby County deserve better treatment by county elected officials than they are receiving. The only thing accomplished at a recent meeting concerning burglaries in Northern Shelby County was 90 minutes of perspiration, confusion, and dismay. The meeting evolved into a political sparing match and the people who had asked for help were the losers. When a section of Shelby County citizens petition for assistance it would seem that petty differences would be set aside and all parties concerned would work for a solution to the problem.

If Mr. Fowler and the Commission would make a serious study of what assistance is available to solve this problem and if Mr. Walker would make an efficiency study of his department to see if any possible assistance is available and after such an evaluation of both departments the two would work out what the County could do to alleviate this problem. The negative attitude presented by County officials at the meeting Monday night was a shame, disgrace, and a very disgusting situation.

Mr. Fowler is a capable and respected person. Mr.

Walker is a capable and respected person and the citizens call upon these two gentlemen to put aside childish political differences and to come up with some positive answers for this County. The people of Shelby County deserve and expect constructive leadership from their elected officials. Any county department not willing to work together for the solution to problems of its citizens should resign or steps should be taken to legally replace uncooperative officials.

Beautiful folks make beautiful surroundings

Good Morning by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, a member of the FDIC.

When I got there today she had moved her old rocker off the porch and was rocking under a tall sycamore tree. The slick, white limbs reached halfway to the sky. A little wind, out of the west, played in the sycamore leaves, making a rustling noise, before it hurried off toward a pine

"Before you leave I've got something to tell you about a sycamore tree," she said.

A little bird lit on a sycamore ball. The wind blew the ball around but he held on. Her eyes followed him, as he darted from one ball to another. "Sometimes there're a dozen of 'em," she said. "They must find something to eat or they wouldn't come back."

She got up and went to the porch and got a shawl. When she had slipped it over her shoulders, she said: "That wind. He's something. All morning he's been chasing leaves around and now he's gnawing at me. I'd stay in the sun but it turns my wrinkles red. And one wanting a man like all get- out don't need her wrinkles shining like lights."

I gave her a couple of candy kisses. She unwrapped one and put it in her mouth.

"This is the week you went to the hospital." "Nope. The nursing home. I brought candy because you're not too hot on sugarless cookies."

She laughed. A little chuckling sound that came around the candy before it got out. "How are they over there?"

"Beautiful. They're beautiful people."

Her gaze left the sycamore and played in the pines on a little hill. "Funny," she said, "that some folks are still beautiful when they're old, and other are ugly as sin when they're still young.'

A hen came by pecking in the straw. A cricket flew up and she chased him halfway across the yard before she caught him. She swallowed him whole and started scratching again, making little marks in the straw.

The hen waddled out of sight behind a gardenia bush. "Beautiful people make a beautiful world," she said. "Even a little world, no bigger than a nursing home or a hospital." In the west a little cloud no bigger than a bedspread was blazing. And bigger clouds, higher up in the sky, were painted purple and gold. The little hen, her hunt over, had gone back over the hill toward the henhouse.

"Before you leave I want to tell you about the sycamore tree," she said.

Judge Fowler's statment challenges Sheriff Walker's comment portraying Commissioner J. E. "Ned" Bearden as being unconcerned about the burglary problem in north Shelby County.

Fowler said such a charge is not correct, that Bearden knows the problem first hand because his own home was burglarized on Mother's Day of this year.

Fowler's statement also challenged figures the sheriff had used which Fowler said "puts the Circuit Court and the District Attorney in a bad light." At the open meeting the sheriff said that over a 16 month period 239 felony cases were placed on the docket with less than 50 convicted. He said 189 cases were either nol prossed, suspended or placed on probation.

Fowler said that "All who have served on a grand jury know that often times, particularly in burglary cases, one individual may be indicted for four, six or eight different felony charges. A successful investigation of one case often produces evidence in a number of additional cases. When one case is disposed of with a conviction it is not unusual for all other cases to be nol prossed."

Fowler concluded his statement by saying that the Commission thought the meeting at Valley School on June 16 served a useful purpose "particularly if an active citizens' group is to be formed to concern itself with improved law enforcement."

No-weeds gardening is the philosophy of Shelby County Highway Department garden is virtually maintainance free and provides an abundance of fresh, summer vegetables.

The method Ozley employed when laying out his garden plot required little more labor then preparing a garden in the conventional manner, but it has saved many hours of hoeing and watering.

Ozley explained that he first prepared the ground by simply clearing the grass off of a garden area. He then spread black polyethylene plastic over the entire garden. The next step was to arrange 188 cement building blocks, with the holes pointing upward, in rows across the plastic sheeting.

He then cut out the sections of plastic sheeting located under the holes of the building blocks. Loosened the dirt with a butcher's knife under one hole of every building block.

and a hill of vegetables was planted in each one. A pint jar of 13-13-13 fertilizer was then poured into the second hole of each block and then watered. The final step was to cover the entire garden area between the blocks with pine straw.

The purpose of the plastic sheeting, Ozley went on to say, Maintainance Superintendant is to hold water in the ground Richard Ozley. The former by preventing moisture from Columbiana Postmaster's evaporating. None of his plants have wilted, even during the

MHS democracy students meet with Smith

Democracy class at Montevallo diversion of economic funds by High School recently heard State Representative Curtis Smith discuss the legislative process. Smith also discussed some bills now before the current session of the legislature.

Smith, who lives in Clanton, represents 33,000 people in Chilton County and southwest Shelby County.

Two of the bills now in the legislature were introduced by Smith. One concerns putting the Superintendent of Education's job back on an elective basis, while the other would require the state to purchase smaller, economy size cars for its use.

Favoring capital punishment, Smith said he had voted yes on the bill which passed the house and is now in the senate. Smith commented that he thought this was a deterent to crime.

The bill giving full adult rights to 19 year- olds will probably pass, according to Smith.

June 11

On Wednesday evening, June 11, a new church was organized in the Alabaster area with 23 persons attending the organizational meeting. Since then, Faith Chapel has been having an average attendance of 35 persons. Its pastor, Rev. Jerry Heatherly, has been leading the group, as it has been meeting in homes until the church locates a permenant meeting place.

The new church was founded "because of the need in this area for fundamental, Bible- preaching churches," said Rev. Heatherly.

Pastor Heatherly is greatly encouraged by the enthusiasm and spirit of the church and sees a bright future in the Alabaster area for Faith Chapel. For more information call 663 3399.

PROBATE COURT Letters Administration of said

deceased having been granted to the undersigned on the 17th day of June, 1975 by the Hon Conrad M. Fowler Judge of notice is hereby given that all persons having claims against said estate are hereby required to present the same within time allowed by law or the same Alabama. will be barred.

Janice E. Murchison, of June, 1975. Administratrix of the estate of Hubert Floyd Murchison, deceased #623 June 26, July 3,10/75

Pearl Thornhill, B. H. Green, Jr., Flora Reeves, Jerry Reeves, Terry Reeves and W. C. Peacock, and all parties who, unknown to plaintiff claim an interest in or to the above described property.

Take notice that Homer Ray and Cora Cook Ray have this day filed their verified complaint in said Court against the above named defendants and against any and all persons claiming any title to, interest in, encumbrance upon the above described real estate or any part thereof or interest therein, and against all other persons, and against said lands for the purpose o establishing the title of said lands in the said Homer Ray and Cora Ray and to clear up all doubts and disputes concerning the same and that said suit is now pending in said Court.

Plaintiffs allege in said complaint that the title to said lands stands in the name of the plaintiffs on the records in the office of the Judge of Probate of Shelby County, Alabama, and said complaint further alleges that plaintiffs claim title to said lands through and by virtue of a deed recorded in Deed Book 286, page 834 and by deed recorded in Deed Book 286, page 835 and by deed recorded in Deed Book 217, page 5 in said Probate Office; that during time of plaintiffs ownership, they have been in actual, peaceable, adverse possession of said lands claiming to own the same, and that title to said lands has stood in plaintiffs' names on the records in the Office of the Judge of Probate Shelby County, Alabama, for more than ten years prior to this date. The plaintiffs and their predecessors in title have assessed said real estate in the Office of the Tax Assessor of Shelby County. Alabama, and paid the taxes on said Real estate for each year; and that no one else has paid the taxes on said real estate for said period of time except the plaintiffs and their predecessors in title and that no one has been in possession of said lands or any part thereof since 1935, except the plaintiffs and their predecessors in title.

Plaintiffs further allege in said complaint that after making diligent search and inquiry, plaintiffs' only information of the above defendants is: That plaintiffs after most reasonable and diligent search and inquiry were unable to locate the following named persons to determine whether or not they are living or dead, and if living, what their ages and addresses are at the present time, and if deceased, the names, ages and addresses of their heirs or devisees, and that the same are unknown to the plaintiffs, said persons being as follows: B. H. Green, Henderson Reeves and Mamie Green; that defendants, B. H. Green, Jr., Flora Reeves, Jerry Reeves, Terry Reeves and W. C. Peacock are over the age of twentyone years, are of sound mind and are residents of the State of Alabama, their addresses being: B. H. Green, Jr., Oneonta, Alabama; Flora Reeves, Rt. 1, Sterrett, Alabama; Jerry Reeves, Rt. 1, Sterrett, Alabama; Terry Reeves, Rt. 1, Sterrett, Alabama: W. C. Peacock, General Delivery, Dothan, Alabama; that defendants A. R. Thornhill and Edna Pearl Thornhill are over the age of twenty- one years, are of sound mind and are non- residents of the State of Alabama, each of their addresses Opalocka, Florida 33054, and that the names, ages and addresses of any other parties who, unknown to plaintiffs, may claim an interest in or to the above described property, are unknown.

It is, therefore, ordered by the undersigned Register that publication of this notice be made in the Shelby County Reporter, a newspaper published and having a general circulation in Shelby County, Alabama, once a week for four consecutive weeks, and that all those to whom this notice is addressed and any and all persons claiming any title do, interest in, or lien or encumbrance upon, the above described real estate, or any part thereof, or any interest therein, he and they are hereby required to plead, answer or demur to the complaint in this cause within the time required by law, and not later than August 25, 1975. It is further ordered that a copy this notice certified by the of the Probate Court of Shelby County, undersigned Register, as being correct, shall also be recorded as a lis pendens in the Office of the Judge of Probate of Shelby County, truck may be delivered during the month of September. Fire Chief S. M. Mahan, Jr., reported that the city's new fire department building is almost complete.

Council members approved an appropriation of not more than $1,000 to complete painting doors, finish a parking area and install floor coverings in the new building.

Members of the accepted a high bid from Giant Auto Parts for the sale of a 1970 police car. They also authorized City, Clerk Kenneth Bailey to request bids for the sale of a surplus, reel- type grass mowing machine.

Councilman James Seaman, chairman of the city's streets committee, reported that architects drawing up plans for repairs to sidewalks will present their plans in the near Revenue sharing funds earmarked for the city's new fire truck were reinvested for a 90 day period in anticipation of the truck's arrival during the month of September.

Hole-in-one

It's a one-in-a- million chance that a golfer will hit a hole- in-one. Yet every addict of the links never loses hope that one day he'll be the one to make the big score.

Just such luck came to Harold Blankenship of Alabaster last weekend as he teed off on the University of Montevallo course's number three hole.

"I've been playing four years and never came close before," beamed Blankenship as he explained how he made the shot. He said that he teed off on the short hole using a seven iron.

"It hit near the hole not it it," he went on to say. "The next time I looked up I didn't see it. I got the grounds keeper to go look and he found the ball in the hole."

Henke went on to say that the water was high early this week and in good shape. Weed beds, standing timber and log jams are all productive fishing areas early in the morning, he

John Boykin of Bozo's Fish Camp reported that stripe were being caught at night on willowflies as bait. Mrs. J. T. Boykin and Mary Carter caught the limit fishing at night with willowflies. Bass are being caught early in the morning and late in the afternoon on plastic worms, he said.

Other reports from Shelby County fishing spots include:

Okomo - Bass fishing was slow over the weekend, but some large catches of bream were weighed in.

Oak Mountain Lakes - The largest bass taken out of the upper lake, which was reopened to sport fishing two weeks ago, weighed six- and one-half pounds. Other bass ranged in size from four pounds. An average of 300 bream a day were taken out of the lower lake over the weekend. The largest weighed one and a quarter pounds while most averaged one- fourth to on- half of a pound in weight.

Lake Purdy - Bass are biting at night and early in the morning on top water plugs. Bream have moved into deeper water and are being caught on the bottom on crickets and gone awry -- Some dream ships appreciate the privilege of sharing these things Life has dealt them. We enjoy listening to the 'merry-go- round', and in some instances -- the "Stop the world and let me get offidea." This idea has also been tossed around. Summing it up, we have found out that one element is essential for furthering any career or profession, and that is enthusiasm! Now, if you can't get enthusiastic about your work and enjoy it -- it's time to get alarmed. Something is definitely wrong. Some people work by the clock. The only thing they are interested in is -quitting time! They say they can "do their work with their eyes shut" - and that's the way they do it. They seem to have lost the driving power that furnishes the personal enthusiasm for the tasks assigned.

When this fact becomes evident, it is time to do a bit of checking up - or maybe quit! If you have gotten in the wrong sphere -- make a change. If you are working at something you do not like stop it and try something else that you will enjoy doing. A lot of people are revolving around in orbits in which they do not really belong and they are unhappy - but are doing nothing about it except -listening for the "quitting whistle". So, get into some kind of work you will enjoy and maybe your efforts will be bringing happiness to the other fellow as well as a certain satisfaction all your own. In other words, as suggested above - "Try a Different Point of View." Get what I mean?

Anemia hits

horses

Horse buyers should take care not to buy animals that are infected with Equine Infectious Anemia.

Extension veterinarian Dr. Lee Alley says there's no vaccine to protect horses against this virus. Infected animals that recover from clinical signs of the disease remain carriers for life and can serve as a source of infection for other horses on the same premises or nearby areas.

Dr. Alley makes the following suggestions: the accurate and reliable Coggins Test can be used by horse owners to protect their stock. Horse owners should have their animals tested and dispose of affected ones. After that, buy only horses that have been tested and found free of disease. Don't allow untested horses to be stabled or pastured with the disease- free horses. Avoid bringing horses to any assembley point where prior testing isn't required.

HOSPITAL'S FIRST - - SHELBY JEAN - - Get reacquainted with Shelby Jean Furline. You read about her in the Shelby County Reporter nearly 16 years ago when she was the first baby born at Shelby Memorial Hospital, Sept. 29, 1954. She'll be in the eleventh grade at Thompson High this fall. She lives in the Elliottsville Community with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Furline, Jr.

History of hospital from 1954 to present

Compiled from minutes of the meetings of Shelby Memorial Hospital Board.

As a first official step to establish a hospital in the county, a group of residents filed a certificate of incorporation in the Shelby County Probate Office. The incorporation was in the name of "Shelby County Hospital Board," and was filed on October 5, 1954.

Almost two years later, on June 13, 1956 a preliminary organizational meeting was held at Calera City Hall attended by board members designated by the Shelby County Board of Revenue and Control. The first board members of the hospital Continued on page 3

Meeting the needs--

Hospital expands as county grows

Shelby Memorial Hospital opened its doors on September 27, 1959. It was the culmination of years of hope and hard work.

A federal program written by Alabama's Lister Hill made it possible to translate the hopes and dreams of Shelby Countians into a fine 35 bed hospital. Funds from the Hill-Burton Act and a local ad valorem tax made construction a reality.

From the beginning the hospital was popular with residents and medical doctors. Plans for expansion started almost at once, as more and more patients were admitted and treated.

The first expansion was the completion of the ground floor which had been roughed in in the original plan.

Next a nursing home was added. Then a hospital floor above the nursing home was completed.

Additions to the kitchen and other improvements continued through the years. The nursing home was converted to hospital space.

Ultimately the number of beds increased to the point where the services, especially X-Ray and the emergency room were straining to meet the load.

Equipment and treatment of coronary cases were also changing rapidly and Shelby Memorial lacked the space for the modern facilities.

At this point the Hospital Board sought the restoration of the full 4-mill ad valorem tax and launched the full-scale remodeling and addition that is being opened this week.

And there may be more to come... The new building is constructed in such a way that three additional floors can be added......

This special section to commemorate the dedication of the new facilities, is published by the Shelby County Reporter. Managing editor and writer of the section is Marcia M. Sears. Photography is by Jerry Hamilton. The special drawing of the hospital on pages 10 and 11 was drawn by Willard Harrison of the Reporter staff.

The entire staff contributed to the preparation of this special section.

The Reporter extends a special appreciation to Hospital Administrator Chester Black and his administrative secretary, Mrs. Helen Worrell, for their help and cooperation in providing access to records, for arranging appointments, for photography and for other invaluable assistance.

An investment in the health of future generations of Shelby Countians...

PRIDE OF THE HOSPITAL. There are eight rooms like this to provide intensive care for patients in the corenary care unit. Mrs. Brenda Lyles, R. N., head of the C.C.U., shows the bedside monitor which reports the patient's heart activity to the central station.

Heart unit answers need

The new Coronary Care Unit answers the greatest need that Shelby Memorial was experiencing in the last few years. New inventions in equipment for the diagnosing, monitoring and care of heart patients had moved so fast that the hospital's space could not contain them.

Now, with the $5 million expansion and renovation of the building, an 8-room unit is in operation which provides the best facilities for intensive care that are available anywhere.

From a central station, the nurse in charge can see into each of the 8 rooms through special soundproof glass. Each room has heart monitors, connected with the central station, oxygen, and other life saving emergency equipment.

Two other rooms outside the unit will be equipped to monitor into the central station

In charge of C.C.U. is a native Shelby County nurse, Mrs. Brenda Lyles. She returned to the county when her husband retired from the service and is bringing the experience she gathered in hospitals around the nation to Shelby Memorial.

The C.C.U. is ideally located near the emergency room and other critical areas to give the best possible service to a patient with a suspected coronary problem.

Citizens take deep interest

The people of Shelby County have always been intensely interested in their hospital. They have voted taxes on themselves to build it and have decreased and increased those taxes through the years as need dictated. They watch with interest the comings and goings of the staff.

They avidly read newspaper reports of board meetings and all other hospital activities. They visit patients in such numbers that every once in a while the hospital has to shoo them out so the patient can get some rest. They share the joys of birth and the tragedies of accident and death with one another, as they gather at the hospital.

It is a home away from home to many, and it is a friendly welcome refuge for any Shelby Countian who needs hospitalization. Hundreds of local people have worked there over the years, and patients appreciate being cared for by people they know, Some people do not even want to go home.

When the hospital first opened it could care for 35 patients. Expansions have occured frequently, and now the new expanded, improved and remodeled structure can house 167 patients.

Mrs. Nelma Craiger, R.N., holds the distinction of having been continuously on the staff of Shelby Memorial longer than any other person.

She started work at the hospital in October 5, 1959, just a few days after it opened. Looking back over the years she told the Reporter, "I'm glad the hospital has progressed so far and I'm glad I've been part of it."

She looks forward to several more years, saying, "You feel you're in service for the Lord when you're ministering to the sick."

Citizens take deep interest

The people of Shelby County have always been intensely interested in their hospital. They have voted taxes on themselves to build it and have decreased and increased those taxes through the years as need dictated. They watch with interest the comings and goings of the staff.

They avidly read newspaper reports of board meetings and all other hospital activities. They visit patients in such numbers that every once in a while the hospital has to shoo them out so the patient can get some rest. They share the joys of birth and the tragedies of accident and death with one another, as they gather at the hospital.

It is a home away from home to many, and it is a friendly welcome refuge for any Shelby Countian who needs hospitalization. Hundreds of local people have worked there over the years, and patients appreciate being cared for by people they know, Some people do not even want to go home.

When the hospital first opened it could care for 35 patients. Expansions have occured frequently, and now the new expanded, improved and remodeled structure can house 167 patients.

NELMA CRAIGER, R.N.

Mrs. Nelma Craiger, R.N., holds the distinction of having been continuously on the staff of Shelby Memorial longer than any other person.

She started work at the hospital in October 5, 1959, just a few days after it opened. Looking back over the years she told the Reporter, "I'm glad the hospital has progressed so far and I'm glad I've been part of it."

She looks forward to several more years, saying, "You feel you're in service for the Lord when you're ministering to the sick."

Another longtime employee is Mollie Vinzant, LPN, who has been at Shelby Memorial since Jan. 8, 1960.

Administrator talks about services

Chester Black, administrator of Shelby Memorial Hospital, talked informally with the Reporter about the hospital last week. Following are some of his comments, taken at random:

Respiratory therapy is new to this hospital in the last six months. A registered therapist under a doctor's supervision gives inhalation treatments to patients after surgery and to any other patients with respiratory problems.

Something else relatively new is patient education. We play tapes over certain television channels (when it does not interrupt programs the patient wants to see). Our tapes are for the information of patients and visitors.

They cover any number of subjects that the hospital and doctors think would be helpful. Some of the subjects are diets, diabetes, post operative care, and others. They last from ten to 30

Pharmacy has become more specialized than ever. Shelby Memorial is now on the "unit dose."

The pharmacy gets a copy of the prescription, same as the nurse. Prescriptions are filled daily. We have our own packaging machines for individual doses. They can package one or two pills or doses and then label the package.

It is the most modern system of dispensing drugs in any hospital today.

Much more is involved in Medical Records today than formerly. Most of our original work is now overshadowed by new federal

A few years ago the record librarian filed laboratory and X-ray reports as they came from the nurses. Now there are PSRO utilization reviews, and all kinds of surveillance of treatment under federal regulations. This part of the work now requires as much time as the original part.

Medical Records is a key department. The doctors' reports are part of the record with the reports from lab, X-ray and nuclear medicine.

We have an exercise E.K.G. controlled exercise treadmill. The purpose of this machine is to see how the patient's heart reacts under strain. In a regular electrocardiogram test the patient is lying down. Sometimes his heart shows no abnormalities then. But the new machine, which cost $22,000, can pick up things that the regular machine missed.

Cardiologists come to this hospital

We are now doing eye surgery at Shelby Memorial. As part of our improvements, we spent $14,000 for eye instruments and a special microscope. Several local people have had cataracts removed here.

The gift shop is new and was designed to provide visitors a place to buy flowers, gifts and special items for patients. It is operated by the hospital. We handle potted flowers now, and as soon as the refrigerated box arrives, we will handle cut flowers.

We have a new room designated as a chapel. The furniture for it has not arrived, but we will have temporary furniture in it until it comes.

We're glad to have had a part in Shelby Memorial's expansion.

Emergency Room always on standby prepared for immediate action

Emergency . . . Sirens scream. Telephones ring. Police link ambulances with hospital emergency room.

Prepared for the worst, at all times, the Shelby Memorial emergency room is equipped to handle up to 30 patients at a time. Anything more than seven severely injured patients at one time is considered a disaster.

Two crash carts in the emergency room are always prepared with drugs, intravenous solutions, defibrillator, and other life supporting equipment.

Chest pain, trauma and accidents come first. An electrocardiogram machine is at hand. The room is always set up for handling broken bones. Doctors are alerted.

The emergency room is staffed with a registered nurse, an aid or LPN, a unit clerk and an orderly.

Code Blue is flashed throughout Shelby Memorial when the load of patients becomes too great for the E.R. staff to handle. Code Blue signals all free nurses throughout the hospital to come to the emergency room.

The night of the big tornado in May, 1973, was a Code Blue occasion with the biggest number of patients ever to arrive in one evening.

In its new location, the emergency facilities are greatly expanded, occupying the area where surgery used to be. A new waiting room for family members is available, and this makes care of emergency cases much better for patient and family alike.

According to Mrs. Mary Ivey, supervisor, the hospital handled 10,800 emergency cases in 1974. In the single month of May, 1975, there were 1,028 cases treated. She expects the load to reach 16,000 annually in the near future, because of the population growth.

Mrs. Ivey says the thing that seems to cause the most distress to the public is the seemingly nonchalant manner of the emergency room staff. But she says the staff is trained not to panic. "If you panic, you can't get anything done."

Mrs. Ivey has worked in five other hospitals, but she says, "Nowhere have I seen a spirit of really caring like I see here. That includes the doctors and everybody."

The Civiettes, women's auxiliary of the Central Civitan Club, will assist in conducting tours through the hospital on Sunday, June 29.

Forrest Franklin was the first patient admitted to the new intensive coronary care unit at Shelby Memorial. Formerly of Montevallo, he now resides on Hwy 80 near Maylene. It's like a dream come true.

A modern hospital with a staff that really cares about the patients.

Heartiest congratulations to Shelby Memorial Hospital and its staff.

New babies arrive daily in hospital's OB department

Mrs. Charlotte Jackson, R.N., supervisor in the Obstetrics department outlined to the Reporter the steps an expectant mother goes through when she comes to Shelby Memorial.

"The first step is the labor room," said Mrs. Jackson. "Then after advanced stages of labor have been reached, the woman is transferred to the delivery room where the baby is

After delivery, the mother and child part ways, with the baby going to the nursery and the mother to postpartum recovery.

The nursery in Shelby Memorial Hospital contains two different sections. The largest room of the nursey is used for babies that are premature as well as full- term babies. The smaller of the two sections is used for babies that are sick or that are born outside of the hospital.

"For instance, if a baby is born in the car on the way to the hospital, we keep him isolated from the other children," said Mrs. Jackson. "There's no telling what type of germs the baby has been in contact with."

The premature babies are kept in an "isolette" instead of the regular bassinet. They are fed every two hours around the clock until they gain enough weight to be safely taken home. The hospital is also equipped to handle multiple births.

'The largest multiple birth here at Shelby Memorial," said Mrs. Jackson, 'was the birth of triplets."

According to Mrs. Jackson, the normal stay at the hospital for both mother and child is three to four days.

We have an average of 35 to 36 babies born here per month. The figures fluctuate greatly but this is a good average," continued Mrs. Jackson.

The Shelby Memorial Obstetrics department is equipped with eight OB beds, ten bassinets, and four labor beds. There are registered nurses, licensed practical nurses, and nurses aides on duty 24 hours a day to attend to the needs of the mothers and babies.

Westover water costs $15 for 10,000 Gal.

A story in last week's Reporter, comparing water rates in various areas of Shelby County, indicated that the system with the highest rate is the newly- established Spring Creek Water Authority, which charges $14 for 10,000 gallons of water.

However, Mrs. Clayton Horne, a reader from Chelsea, reports that her area receives water from the Westover Water Authority which charges $4.50 for each 3,000 gallons used. "That's $15 for 10,000 gallons any way you figure it," she noted.

She also provided a phone number which the Authority uses, but there was no answer the several times it was tried.

Mrs. Horne said the Westover system was established in early 1974 but that service to customers which it serves has been less than adequate. "In the last two weeks, we have been without water for two or three days," she said. "It is not unusual for us to wake up and find we don't have any. Unless you have a well, it is terribly inconvenient."

Because of the cost, Mrs. Horne said she and her family collect rainwater for watering their garden and washing cars.

Give yourself a retirement fund that cuts your taxes right now!

Q. How?

A. By opening an Individual Retirement Account at Jefferson Federal. You are eligible if you're not covered by any retirement fund other than Social Security.

A. You may contribute up to $1,500 a year (or 15% of your annual income, whichever is less), and it's all totally tax exempt as long as it remains on deposit.

Q. How long?

A. You may withdraw as early as age 59½ (or earlier if you become permanently disabled). However, you can continue depositing and earning interest until age 701/2, when you must begin withdrawing.

Q. What about taxes later?

A. When you begin withdrawing, the amount withdrawn during any taxable year will be taxed as ordinary income. But, because your income will probably be less then than now, you will be in a lower, more favorable tax bracket.

Bond call signals Beasley power play

by Don Wasson

MONTGOMERY - - There has been some idle gossip that Lt. Gov. Jere Beasley is contemplating running for the U.S. Senate and will not be a candidate for governor in

There is also another rumor, with about as much validity, that the Niagara River is about to reverse itself, making the falls an "up"thing instead of a "down"thing.

Beasley dispelled any thought that he might not be a candidate for the governor's chair last week when he calmly announced that he was proposing $304 million bond issue for public school buildings in Alabama.

The announcement said two things, if you listened

One was that Beasley intends to assume the leadership of the state this year and next, while Gov. George Wallace goes jousting again for the presidency.

The other is that, should he be elected governor, he will be even more of a spendthrift than George Wallace.

$304 million for school buildings in one big lump sum! Can anyone imagine the magnitude of the debt service on $304 million? We would pay back, presumably over a 20 to 30 year span, almost $600 million.

Can anyone imagine the deals that would be consumated-in the sale and handling of the bonds, in the architects and enigieering fees which have, historically, been parcelled out as political plums to those people who vote right and who contribute to the right campaigns.

Another reason to reflect on the Beasley announcement for schools is the magnitude of his aassumption of power and control over state affairs.

Until Beasley came to the office of lieutenant governor, that elected official was simply the guy who presided over the Senate when it was in session. One Senate secretary was generally assigned to take phone calls and handle any mail that might be addressed to the lieutenant governor.

During the off-years, when the legislature was not meeting, this lady got to do an awful lot of knitting, needlepoint and reading. And even when the legislature was in session, she didn't have an awful lot to do except the two or three days a week the Senate happened to be in session.

Now the Beasley office has spread throughout the Senate wing and there are at least 10 people working fulltime for the lieutenant governor while the Senate is in session. They are on so many idfferent payrolls and assigned to so many interim committees and commissions that it is difficult to tell exactly how much money it takes to support the entire operation.

The offices have been remodeled and refurbished in a manner in keeping with the new importance of the lieutenant governor's post. He has two security men-- state troopers in mufti--assigned fulltime and they drive him everywhere he goes.

It was reported recently that he planned to take both security men with him on an out-of-state trip and justified it by saying he didn't want the same thing to happen to him that happened to Gov. Wallace in Maryland.

All of this goes to prove that Lt. Gov. Beasley is not only planning to run for governor, he has already started being governor and acting like one.

And the bottom line reaction is, "Well, why shouldn't he? If George Wallace wants to be president more than he wants to be governor, why shouldn't Beasley, as first in line of succession, be managing the affairs of state?'

His announcement about the $304 million bond issue is concrete evidence that Beasley, not Wallace, is making the major decisions of the day.

New judicial article raises funding questions

Is a state official entitled to travel pay-for himself and members of his staff--to and from the state capitol when he decides to live in his hometown instead of moving to Montgomery? That's one of the questions bugging members of the Alabama Legislature who must decide how much money, if any, is to be spent implementing the new judicial reform amendment to the state constitution.

The implementation bill, 166 pages long, provides among other things that judges on the state supreme court who decide to live in their hometowns must be reimbursed for travel expenses when they come to the capitol on official business. It would also apply to judges on two other state appeals courts.

No other state official would have that privilege.

The bulky document drafted by a special commission spells out also that the judges' "supportive personnel, including but not limited to, law clerks and secretaries, "would be entitled to travel pay as well."

Actually, It wouldn't mean much for the judges themselves in the immediate future because all of them on the court of criminal appeals and the court of civil appeals live in Montgomery."

And the three justices on the supreme court who still maintain their homes in Birmingham have state cars to travel in.

In fact, every member of that court except Justice James Bloodworth has a state car. Bloodworth, who moved to Montgomery when he came on the court, turned down Justices Ricard Jones and Janie Shores still live in Birmingham, where they teach parttime at Cumberland Law School. They do most of their work in Birmingham but drive to Montgomery regularly for conferences and when the court is in session.

Justice Eric Embry also maintains his home in Birmingham, but he also has living quarters in Montgomery and spends most of his time at the capitol.

The time may come when the courts have branch offices in other cities. If the judicial implementation bill is enacted into law in its present form, they will have the authority to rent office space as the judical article puts it-"To be used for the hearing of cases and court needs, as well as the office needs of the justices, judges and court-related personnel."

The bill also would give the courts what Senator Dic Owen of Bay Minette calls almost blank check authority in the spending of state funds. Owen says it-in his words -- "Does away with any control the legislature or the people have over appropriations for the judicial branch of

Owen is chairman of the senate finance committee which acts on appropriation bills.

Coins minted in bicentennial designs

The hand flips a coin. Heads I win. Tails you win. The eyes light on the head of a colonial drummer. Did you win or lose tht toss?

You won!

That head is really a tail.

You can take the word of Mary Brooks, Director of the U. S. Mint. She's our nation's coinmaker and says the colonial drummer was chosen in a national design competition to appear on the back of the new Bicentennial quarter. George Washington, she insists, still heads the coin over a new date -- 1776-1976 -- and it was all done to celebrate our country's 200th birthday.

"I know big decisions, sometimes rest on the flip of a coin," Mrs. Brooks says, "and I want to warn the nation's big decision makers about the coming big change in their small change. In all, the Mint is changing the designs on the backs of three coins in honor of the Bicentennial. Along with Washington on the quarter, those famous faces of Kennedy and Eisenhower, with the new twin date, still head the half dollar and dollar. Again, it's the backs that carry the new Bicentennial designs. Independence Hall won its place on the back of the half dollar. And the moon and Liberty Bell was chosen for the dollar reverse.

By Monday of next week Shelby County banks should begin receiving the first of the circulating Bicentennial coins to be released -- the Kennedy Independence Hall half dollar. Before the end of the year, the Federal Reserve System will have had the time to supply the nation's commerical banks with the newly redesigned quarter and dollar.

"To me, these coins -- like all our coins -- are symbols of our nation's 200 years of freedom," Mrs. Brooks says. "They are small links with our historical and cultural heritage that will touch the hands of every man, woman and child in America."

" 'Liberty!' was the rallying cry of the American Revolution -- and 'Liberty' has been proclaimed and inscribed on each and every coin since the creation of the U.S. Mint in 1792."

Launching a national coinage was a big step in the formation of our young nation. "Now," Mrs. Brooks says, "we are launching the most significant coinage change in the history of the Mint."

The new coin designs are expressions of the patriotic sentiments of grassroots America. Under the sponsorship of the Treasury Department, they were selected in a national $5,000 award competition and each of the new designs bears the winner's initials.

The winning design on the back of the quarter is the work of Jack L. Ahr of Arlington Heights, Ill. Seth G. Huntington of Minneapolis, Minn., executed the reverse on the half dollar. And Dennis R. Williams, a sculpture student at the Columbus College of Art and Design, Columbus, Ohio designed the dollar reverse.

Special 40% silver specimens of the Bicentennial coins are also available. For details, write to the Bureau of the Mint, 55 Mint Street, San Francisco, California 94175.

Under the Courthouse. Dome

Wayne Hall, Supervisor of State Public Accountants in charge of examining records of courthouse officials, spent Monday in Columbiana. Billy Mitchell, a state auditor, is spending some time in Columbiana and is currently engaged in examining official records in the Board of Commissioners office.

Doris Turner, Chairman of Board of Registrars, states that the Board will be in session in the courthouse, Room 208, July 7, 8, 9 from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m.; July 12 - from 9 a.m. until 12 noon; and July 21, 22 and 23, from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. for the purpose of registering new voters.

A Bridge Club tournament was in progress last week in Birmingham and a number of Shelby County devotees of the game participated. Among the winners were: Dr. and Mrs. Frank Abernathy; Bob Fulton and C. P. (Red) Walker, Jim Cocke and Joe Farrell, Laney Tucker and Louise Golden.

More than 11 million citizens receiving welfare checks are now required by a new federal ruling to furnish their social security numbers to state agencies. Welfare recipients who do not have Social Security numbers will be helped by the states to obtain them, after evidence of age, identity and citizenship is established.

Another new law that went into effect July 1 requires states to determine the paternity of welfare children, locate the fathers and collect child support payments. It is further reported that states that do not have an adequate parent locator system in operation by 1977, risk the loss of 5 per cent of the federal share of AFDC.

According to a reliable authority there are 1.3 million absent fathers currently costing tax payers $1.3 billion per year for the support of their children.

August 4, beginning at 10:00 a.m. the Civil Docket of the Circuit Court will be called and cases set for trial by jury will begin. There are 32 cases set for trial during this week. Almost all cases docketed are condemnation or damage suits.

The criminal term of the court has been set for August 18.

Gerald Steele, a state trooper who will be assigned to the Calera area is one of the 38 troopers who were graduated from a 14 week school held at the Alabama Police Academy in Montgomery. The graduation ceremonies were held last Friday.

During the graduation ceremonies, State Public Safety Director Colonel E. C. Dothard said, "The graduation ceremonies marked the end of a school during which time the recruits underwent the most intensified training program ever offered to state trooper recruits."

Merchandise recovered

Letter to Editor:

On June 24, 1975 at approximately 3:00 a.m. my store in Helena was burglarized with over $2,000 worth of merchandise being taken. On June 27th just three days later, the Alabaster Police Department working in conjunction with the Helena Police Department recovered almost all of the merchandise and at the same time apprehended the criminals responsible.

I would like to express my extreme gratitude and commend both departments for their efficiency. It is reassuring to know that we as citizens have such a well versed alert team of professional men working for us.

Docks support appreciated

Letter to Editor:

On June 10, the voters of the State of Alabama gave their overwhelming support to Amendment No. 1. The State of Alabama and we have at the Alabama State Docks owe you a debt of gratitude for your help in the passage of this bond issue. Your cooperation and the support that your newspaper gave us on this measure is deeply appreciated. Without the support you and other citizens gave us this measure would not have passed.

We are now at work to finalize the program to be financed by this bond issue in order to gain the best possible use of this money. We will see that this money does the best job it can for all Alabama. There are many opportunities before us and we hope that we can have your continued cooperation as we move toward making Alabama's seaport the number one port on the Gulf.

Bill would change health policies

Letter to Editor:

The Alabama legislature has an opportunity to help all persons paying health insurance premiums to receive more for their money. House Bill 383 will require any insurance company or group writing health expense coverage to allow their policy holders the freedom to choose the doctor of their choice so long as he is licensed

Presently, some insurance companies are allowed to unfairly restrict the premium paying policy holder from choosing a Doctor of Chiropractic if he desires.

The insurance companies that do include chiropractic care in their coverage (over 400 do) report no appreciable increase in premium. Thus, it is the insurance company that benefits from not paying for chiropractic service on an equal basis and the citizen that is the looser.

The people of Alabama deserve a fair and equal coverage for their health insurance dollar. Coverage that will include the services of a Doctor of Chiropractic if they desire. They need to make this known to their representatives in Montgomery -- now.

Very truly yours, P. Reginald Hug, D.C. 3106 Cahaba Heights Plaza Birmingham, Ala.

Ethics Commission defended

Letter to Editor:

I would like to urge you and your readers to take an active and vocal interest in keeping the Alabama Ethics Commission alive. There is a movement afoot right now to abolish it!

In my travels across Alabama as a candidate for Lieutenant Governor in 1974, the one thing that impressed me most was Alabamians' strong and abiding faith in our American form of government. This faith is only eroded and shaken when we find dishonesty in our government officials and such things as "Watergate" take place.

There are changes needed in the present Ethics Law, but the creation of the State Ethics Commission was a big step in the right direction. It helps protect the public, and, just as important, helps restore the confidence of our people in those officials they would like to look to for fair and honest government. I call on every Alabamian interested in a better life for all to contact your Representatives and Senators in the Alabama Legislature; also, every organization- Church, Civic, Fraternal, Business and Labor to have their membership petition, write, call, or wire "to improve the State Ethics Commission but for GOODNESS sake do not abolish it". For A Better Alabama, Ron Creel 624 South Perry St. Montgomery, Ala.

Water pipes break in Pelham

In the June 26 Reporter was a very interesting article by Nancy Duncan on "Water ... a bargain throughout the county." As a resident of Pelham, with the highest rate polled, I'll have to admit that when we do get water it is a bargain; even though my bill is triple what it used to be in There is one thing not mentioned in the Birmingham. article that in all fairness I feel needs to be brought to light. That is that in Pelham the water pressure is so high that the six inch plastic water main frequently breaks. This has happended three times this summer, next door alone. It has happened all over our neighborhood any number of times! When this happens it is usually in the evening or at night. The water is then turned off on an entire street. It is not then fixed as would be the case with the electricity or gas or phone service. With the highest price in the area, they leave it off all night and then the following day come to fix it. This means it is usually lunch time before it is turned back on. In addition to the extreme inconvenience this creates a very dangerous situation. In case of fire there would be no water available for the fire department, since the water is off and the repairmen are sleeping through the

The city has said it is easier to fix if they wait until the next day. Last week, while the mayor was out of town the young man on duty saw 1st to be able to 1sx it at night.

I feel that the city of Pelham ought to do something about the water pressure on the line. In the meantime, I feel when the line breaks that then is the time it needs to be fixed, not the following day. Sincerely yours,

Ethel B. Butler

MILTON BIRD

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, a member of the FDIC.

Good Morning by Milton Bird

Watching her, from a little hill beyond the hen house, I could tell she was in a bind. She had her rocker turned upside down and was working on it with an old hammer. One half of the pulling side of the head was missing and the handle was a short hickory limb wedged into the head with two rusty nails. She had one thumb tied up with a piece of cloth, wrapped around but not tied, and the loose end flapped about while she worked.

She saw me coming and put her hammer down and started doing up the loose rag. She started to say something and changed her mind and kept pulling at the rag, not looking at anything exactly, but just looking.

"You're in a heck of a bind," I said.

"Everybody's in a bind, everywhere." She looked out toward the barn. A cow was bawling out there, a low mournful bawl that seemed to go on and

"Even ol' Betsy," she said. "I sold her calf to Upshaw Davis yesterday and she's been bawling ever since. There ain't no end to her bawling. It just goes on and on, like a branch running."

She pulled at the rag and made a little knot in the end and slipped it under a fold. "Can you fix this rocker, you reckon?"

"I think so."

"Fix it and I'll give you a slice of potato pie." I spliced the rocker with two small boards, put two nails in each side, and wrapped it with a piece of wire. "That'll do it," I said.

She got in it and started rocking. It made a little bumping noise but she didn't notice. She rocked for several minutes, listening to Betsy bawl. Far off, deep in a pine thicket, a hound dog barked. He barked deep in his throat, one bark following another, like the toll of a bell.

"He's in a bind too," she laughed. "He's got a squirrel up a tree and nobody around to shoot 'em out. He'll hand around that tree till dark, barking hisself hoarse, and all he'll get out of it is wasted time."

Then, out of the blue, she said: "You know why folks are hurting so? Why folks are up to their necks in trouble, more trouble than a man can count?"

She didn't wait for an answer, but went on, her words coming out slow and broken, like maybe she was picking 'em out, one at a time, and testing 'em, before she turned 'em loose: "Everybody needs a man named Peter. Everybody does. But all they're getting are a bunch o' guys named Judas, all over the world.

forgotten year'

by Fred Cooper

I was strolling along a peaceful woodland trail just outside of Montevallo the other day, enjoying the cool green of the trees and listening to the rustling of the little forest critter, when I heard a voice behind me whisper, "Hey Mac. You wanna buy a copy of the Declarationn of Independence just like it was signed on July 4,1775?"

After I recovered from my surprise at being accosted in the woods, I climbed down from the tree I was in and peered into the gloom of the bushes where the voice came

"1775," I asked, "Wasn't the Declaration of Independence signed in 1776?" "I knew it wouldn't work,"the voice said, disgustedly. "I guess I'm stuck with

"Stuck with what," I wanted to know.

"Being the 199th year of existence for the United States," the voice told me"instead of the 200th."

I could make out some form to the voice now. It was coming from what appeared to be a middle-aged man carrying a stick of some sort and wearing a sheet. He was going bald and had on thick glasses.

"Who are you?" I demanded.

"Who do you think I am, you turkey! "he hissed. "I'm 1975. "I'm the guy who missed out on the glory."

"I don't know what you're talking about," I said, a bit more boldly now that I realized I wasn't being confronted by a mugger but only by an angry middle-aged year. He was already on the downhill slide. After all, we were nearly into July. I was glad it wasn't February or March when he was

"I came into this spot in January with a lot of enthusiasm," 1975 continued, bitterly. "1974 had been a real bummer and I knew that anything I did couldn't be any worse than the trouble he'd been through so I was ready to be a great year. I figured people would look back at me and say, "Oh, yes, 1975. That was the year that national politics got straightened out and the recession eased and the tornadoes stopped and the energy crisis got better and gas prices went down. 1975 was the year America got it all back together again.'

Well, it didn't happen. Just as soon as I came in, tripping over my long white gown, some big mouth stood up and yelled,"In 1976, America will be 200 years old!" and there I went, right down the drain. I'm just an interim period of time until 1976. It's not fair. I figured if I could convince people that the Declaration of Independence was signed in 1775 instead of 1776, I could cash in on some of

"I don't thing it'll work," I told him, "but good luck."

"Thanks," he said as he disappeared into the bushes, "maybe if I put some red, white, and blue on my robe and wrapped bandages around my head while I played the fife and then hired a little fat boy to follow me around playing a drum-little fat boys are always trying to find ways to earn

Legislative approval pending-

Judicial article provides for restructured courts

EDITORS NOTE - The state legislature has begun consideration of legislation to implement the new Judicial Article to the state's constitution which was approved by a two-to-one margin by Alabama voters in December 1973. The bill to implement, or put the bricks and mortar around the new court framework provided by the Article has been introduced in the legislature with 25 senators and 72 House members as sponsors. This is the first of four articles dealing with the major recommendations of that commission.

Alabama Chief Justice Howell Heflin says the uniform structure for Alabama's county courts created by the new district court concept of the Judicial Article is the "bread and butter" of court modernization in the state.

Heslin says the hodgepodge of county courts as they now exist in the state has, because of the varying jurisdictions involved from county to county, created an unequal system of justice. He said that there are at present some 85 different county courts called by 23 separate names in the state and that the jurisdiction, rules and procedure are for all practical purposes different in each county.

Legislation to create a new district court with uniform jurisdiction, practice and procedure in each county is contained in the bill before the Alabama Legislature which would implement the Judicial Article to the state constitution which was overwhelmingly approved by the state's voters in December of 1973.

The Chief Justice says that under the new unified district court plan persons involved in the courts will receive equal and uniform treatment regardless of whether they are before a court in Mobile County or in Jackson

The 56 member study commission on Judicial Article implementation has recommended to the legislature the establishment of a district court in each county of the state as well as the following other recommendations:

The new court would have a maximum monetary jurisdiction of $5,000, concurrent with the circuit court.

The court would have exclusive jurisdiction of all claims of $500 or less which would be handled on a separate small claims docket with simplified procedures and minimum costs. This would allow persons to carry matters in the amount of $500 or less to the court without the necessity of hiring a lawyer. The court would have jurisdiction of juvenile cases. This would include not only delinquency and criminal cases but related matters such as desertion and nonsupport and paternity proceedings.

The district court would be the criminal trial courtfor all misdemeanors.

The new court would hold preliminary hearings in felony

Trials in the district court would be without juries. However, any party could obtain a jury trial by appeal to the circuit court with no bond requirement necessary.

The Article provides that the legislature will set the places for the meeting of the courts in each county.

The district court could appoint quasi-judicial officers, subject to the approval of the Alabama Supreme Court, to issue warrants, admit to bail in minor misdemeanors and receive guilty pleas in cases involving minor misdemeanors. The commission further proposes that a uniform procedure for the trial of traffic infractions be established for utilization by the new district court.

The district court would become operative in January, 1977, following the election of judges at the general election in 1976.

According to Professor Charles D. Cole, staff director for the Commission, the commission recommends a minimum of one resident district court judge in each county. Cole says that additional court judges could be provided as necessary with consideration to be given the caseload, population, geographic area to be served and the availability of judges.

He says that the district court judges in the less populous counties would be subject to assignment for temporary judicial service in other trial courts and that additional permanent judicial duties could be established for judges.

Cole says that the Article provides that any municipality in the state may elect to have its municipal court come under the jurisdiction of the district court system. The Article further provides that should a municipality elect to do this that a district court judge would be available to sit in any municipality with a thousand or more population within each county.

Cole said that the commission's firm conclusion was that jury trials and court reporting capability at the district court level would be prohibitively expensive and time consuming. This led the commission to propose that the constitutional right to a jury trial be preserved by allowing trial de novo on appeal to the circuit court with no requirement of a bond.

He said that another requirement of the Article is that district court judges should be fully qualified lawyers and would be full-time judges in each jurisdiction.

In commenting on the time of election which is proposed for the new district judges, Chief Justice Heflin said that unless the new district judges can be nominated and elected in 1976 to take office in 1977 a special election would have to be held which would be both time consuming and costly to the state. He said if the legislature acts promptly on the Commission's recommendations that the initiation date for the new district court would avoid any expense of special elections since the judges could be elected in the primaries and general election of 1976.

Spirit of 1776 needed today

by Senator Jim Allen

On this July 4, Americans and lovers of freedom everywhere will celebrate the 199th Anniversary of that day in 1776 when thirteen British colonies on the Atlantic coast of North America proclaimed their independence from oppression and abuse under the rule of George III of England.

The signers of the Declaration of Independence pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor to the achievement of their goal of liberty and independence. This spirit of patriotism, courage and determination has become known as the Spirit of 1776. Oh, how we need this same Spirit of 1776 today.

The Declaration of Independence paved the way for the system of representative government under our Constitution which was instituted 13 years later. The brilliance of this form of government stands undiminished in today's troubled world where one-half of the world population lives under the domination of political or military dictatorships.

Our Country has grown to today's stature based on a tradition of hard work and sacrifice; of lofty purpose and achievement; and of self- respect and appreciation for the rights of all individuals. Founded on these principles and blessed by the Almighty, our Nation is vibrant and strong. Through the continued unity and dedication of the American people it will remain so, and will rise to even greater heights.

As we look forward to our Country's Bicentennial we should re- examine the foundations of our heritage. We should rejoice at the selfless determination and undaunted spirit of the American people that have made this Nation the great Nation that is is today.

And we should pause to consider the future; bearing in mind that the complex problems that will face us in tomorrow's world can be met and conquered only if faced with that same iron resolve that Americans have shown in the past.

Alabamians and other Southerners appreciate the values and rights, the liberties and freedoms and opportunities offered by our country and have always been leaders in shaping our Nation's destiny. While we take pride in being Alabamians, we also are proud to be Americans with the rewards and responsibilities that go hand-in-hand with this privilege.

Let us bear this tradition in mind as we enjoy the Fourth of July holiday in the company of friends and loved ones inspired by what Independence Day means to those throughout the world who treasure freedom.

Vets eligible for group life insurance

"An estimated 2.7 million Vietnam-era veterans who were discharged from military service between April 2, 1970, and July 31, 1974, are eligible for new low-cost Veterans Group Life Insurance (VGLI), but they must apply before August 1, 1975," said Wiley Parkman, Director of the VA Regional Office for the State of Alabama.

The new program is designed as interim protection during readjustment to civilian life, according to Parkman.

"Servicemen discharged since August 1 receive application forms automatically, but those discharged before the insurance became available must apply," Parkman said.

"Nonrenewable, five-year term coverage is available in $5,000 increments up to $20,000. Monthly premium for the maximum coverage is $3.40 for veterans aged 34 and under and $6.80 for those 35 and over," Parkman continued.

Chief Deputy Buddy Glasgow of the Shelby County Sheriff's Department stated that the Sheriff's Department is anticipating answering a lot of calls reporting traffic violations during the holidays. The force will be working extra men, he said.

Their chief concern will be to prevent accidents by looking for violators, Glasgow continued.

He also stated the Sheriff's Department personnel will be operating radar on Highway 31 in the Acton area and on some of the more heavily traveled county roads. State Troopers will be patrolling Interstate 65, the chief deputy added.

Glasgow reminded motorists to exercise caution and to burn their headlights from Friday until Sunday night as a reminder to other motorists to observe highway safety.

Sergent Leroy Davis of the Alabaster Police Department told the Reporter that the Alabaster patrolmen will be working long hours with additional help from an auxillary force.

"All the men we have will be out," declared Calera Police Chief Cecil Harris.

He continued that the flow of traffic will determine whether the Calera police whether the Calera police employ radar. "If the traffic is heavy, we'll try to slow it heavy, we'll try to slow it down," he said.

Birmingham Vulcans' training Kreigal at offensive guard. camp in Marion. The three when he announced that he Also at center, Whimpy Winter rebuild its kicking game. was signing with the Birmingham Vulcans of the World Football league.

"I think there has been good player attitudes," he said. 'I think that this has been so because of the coaching."

"Everybody has been hitting a lot. We're working short and getting off the field. You find a lot of camps that get real boring."

When asked about his feelings concerning his return to his hometown of Birmingham, Musso replied that he was very pleased with the situation.

"Birmingham makes it a big plus. The people there have really treated me well. I feel like the Lord really led me back to Birmingham. I'm excited to see what I can do."

The players, coaches, and fans were concerned with just that -- how the team would do - in the face of this Thursday's controlled scrimmage with the Memphis Southmen.

Eyeing the clash with Memphis, termed as the WFL team to beat, the camp continued according to plan last Friday concentrating the intense coach- player effort to whip the team into shape.

"We started the camp on June 18 with free agent tryouts," explained Vulcans publicity director Mike Merrill. "We had 150 to try out. By Friday the number had dropped to 30.'

Then the big boys came to town as the already- signed players came in to camp Saturday the 21st. The first two days were occupied with orientations and physical examinations. The team started practice on Monday with 35 veterans and 30 rookies out.

"Now we have 55 left," Merrill stated last Friday, "Of these, 20 are rookies, No major cuts have been made yet. We need as many people as we can to work with."

"We had a good first week," Merrill continued, "Coach Bass said he saw more enthusiasm than he had seen in a camp. The first day was real good. The second day we slacked up some, but on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday we had a real good practice.'

"The heat in the low 90's and the humidity causes the players not to keep up the level they want 'o.'

The publicity director went on to say that one of the areas of concern or the team is the offensive backfield. The team has Musso and Art Cantrell and Joe Prophit, the number one draft choice of the New Orleans Saints in 1971.

Merrill also stated that the Vulcans have swapped with

redit cards hould be ### protected By Annie Laurie Gunter

Credit cards have become an iportant - an almost dispensable - part of nerican life. Their possession quires care not only to event overspending, but also prevent their loss and authorized use. However, if rough loss or theft, your rds do fall into the hands of meone who uses them audently, a federal law limits te charges for which you are sponsible.

The Governor's Office of onsumer Protection wants ou to know how you are rotected by this law.

... If you discover that a edit card is missing - that it as been lost or possibly stolen you should immedicately otify the issuer of the card. Ince you have done this, you re free of any subsequent harges that might come as a esult of its unauthorized use.

But Your financial esponsibility even before you totify the card issuer is imited. You are responsible or charges resulting from mauthorized use:

(a) only if you applied for he credit card or accepted it when it was sent to you.

(b) only if the card issuer provides a way for you to dentify yourself as the authorized user of the card. This is typically done by eaving a space on the card for you to sign your signature.

(c) only if the issuer of the card has given adequate notice to you of your possible liability. This can be done by a notice sent with the card.

(d) only if the card issuer has provided you with a self-addressed, pre-stamped notification form which can be used if the credit card is lost or stolen. Most importantly under any corcumstance you are responsible only for charges up

. If a card issuer attempts to collect on charges which he contends were authorized by you, it is up to him to prove that the use was authorized. If a cardissuer holds you responsible for an amount up to $50 resulting from the unauthorized use of a card. Again it is up to the card issuer to demonstrate that all the conditions set forth above have

Federal laws, such as this, protecting the consumer are necessary. Consumer protection laws are also needed on a state level. Legislators serve all of us when we let them know about our concerns as consumers. You can help your legislator help you. You are the most effective consumer lobby. Write or phone your legislator about any consumer issue or personal consumer problem. While your problem may not be resolved immediately, you bring a consumer viewpoint to those who frame the laws of this state and nation.

The Governor's Office of Consumer Protection urges you to become involved in passing the laws that affect you the consumer.

A Harvard Law School graduate who got a job with one of the biggest law firms in New York was staggered by the number of lawyers it employed. Finally, he approached one of the younger ones, "How on earth do you ever get noticed around here?" he asked. "Well," said the young man, "one way is to go to our annual picnic and hit a home run in the softball game."

When Harry bought out Joe's barber shop, he insisted that Joe make him a special promise: to stay out of the barbering trade for the next four

At first, Joe managed to keep busy with other work. But finally, lonesome for the old way of life, he opened a barber shop in another part of

Harry lost no time in suing him for violating their agreement. But at the hearing, Joe was able to prove that none of his old customers were coming to the new shop-and that they were not likely to come in the future either.

Finding that Harry was being unreasonably selfish, the court ruled that Joe could continue to snip and clip in his new location.

Agreements not-to-compete are common when one person sells his business to another. Generally speaking, they are considered a lawful means of protecting the buyer from having his customers lured away by the seller.

But, as Harry discovered. courts are reluctant to enforce an agreement that reaches beyond the buyer's legitimate

Obviously, it is a matter of degree. In another case a baker promised, in selling out, not to open another bakery within a five-block radius during the next three years.

But this time, when the baker tried to go back into business close by, a court held him to his promise. The court said this moderate amount of protection was no more than the new owner of the bakery really needed to safeguard his investment.

Roughly the same rules apply to a professional practice. A small-town doctor sold his practice to a younger man, promising not to open another office in the same community. When he later tried to do just that, the local court blocked him with an injunction.

As another court noted, a doctor could justify a good price in selling his practice only by "guaranteeing the genuineness of his retirement."

HOW TO BUD YOUR ELECTR

The amount of electricity you use each month is never exactly the same. Air conditioning in summer and electric heating in winter can make your electric bill go up. Other times it's down.

Up and down. Month to month. Season to season.

But you can keep your electric bill from changing like the weather. With Levelized Monthly Billing. A service from Alabama Power that lets you pay about the same amount each month, based on the number of kilowatt-hours of electricity you've used during the past year. It's simply a matter of an average use.

With Levelized Billing, you always know what to expect within a very few dollars. So you can budget your electric bills.

Ask about Levelized Monthly Billing at any Alabama Power office. Or send in the coupon below for a brochure explaining this service.

Knowing you can budget your electric bill can take the big ups and downs out of paying it.

"Eyes in the sky will be efforts on accident producing and resort areas will also be focused on Alabama highways violations such as speeding and heavily patrolled", Dothard during the Fourth of July drinking and driving", Dothard weekend to prevent slaughter resulting from traffic accidents", State Public Safety Director Colonel E. C. Dothard announced today.

"All of the state trooper aircraft will be pressed into action during the long holiday weekend", Dothard said, "And in addition, every available man will be assigned to patrol duty and will be working extended shifts." Plain cars have also been ordered into service and radar and vascar will be used extensively.

"If past trends hold true", Dothard said, "At least 12 people will die needlessly in traffic accidents during the 78 hour period beginning at 6:00 p.m., Thursday and ending at midnight, Sunday."

Last year, 322 accidents were reported, resulting in 151 injuries and 16 fatalities.

"Most people", he said, "Think that holiday deaths in Alabama are out- of-staters but our records show that it is Alabamians who are losing their lives", and he continued, "We are going to use every means at our disposal to prevent a recurrence of this needless killing, human suffering and economic loss to our state.'

Demos run scared; Wallace rides high

by Don Wasson

MONTGOMERY -- One of the greatest political mysteries in this country today is the ease with which Gov. George Wallace, wheelchair-bound, broken leg and all, can strike fear into the hearts of the national Democratic party.

The easy explanation is that the Democratic Party has strayed so far from its original precepts that nobody believes in it any more - - only a few ultra liberals who have manipulated the party for many years and who came into complete control in 1972.

The daily press these days is filled with speculative pieces on how various people plan to "stop Wallace" but when you read them all and digest them carefully, you come up with the inescapable conclusion that Wallace is unstoppable.

Yet invariable, those who follow such things closely are almost unanimous in their conclusion that the Democratic Party will not give its nomination - - president or vice-president - - to Wallace.

The only reason it won't is that, despite the recent attempts by the Alabama governor to shuck his racist image, there is still an aura of racism hovering over the

And another enigma is that without that racist aura, the size of the Wallace constituency would not be nearly so

For the Democratic Party, the Wallace enigma really began to loom large in November, 1972, when the national electorate slammed George McGovern to the ground. That was the ultimate result of ultra-liberal control.

Yet in picking up the pieces and trying to make the party functional again, national chairman Robert Strauss and the other strategists paid only a small amount of lip service to the Wallace constituency. They put Mickey Griffin, of Wallace's staff, on the National Executive Committee as one of the 16 expansion members. Strauss flew down to Montgomery and visited the governor.

In Kansas City early this year, when the party met to adopt a permanent charter, the aims and policies of the Wallace people were largely ignored and the largest ovation at the "Mini Convention" went to good old Sen. McGovern.

We asked Strauss, in January of 1973, what the party intended to do to woo the Wallace constituency back into the fold. He replied only in generalities and we wrote then that the party would have its problems with Wallace in 1975 - 76.

Strauss, and others, problably thought that the Wallace constituency wasn't as large as it seemed, and that in the ensuing three years, the party would move to bring the Wallace dissidents back into the fold. That has not happened and today, the stories about third parties, made of various coalitions of conservatives, are rampant.

If the diverse conservative groups should coalesce, is there any hope that they might turn to Wallace, presuming the Democrats have lived up to predictions and again turned him down as their standard bearer?

That would be hard to visualize. One just can't see New York Sen. James Buckley and his acerbic columnist brother, William Buckley, going ape over Wallace. Nor New Hampshire Gov. Meldrin Thomson, nor Howard Phillips of the Conservative Caucus.

But if they don't go for Wallace, then who? It would be almost a sure thing to make bets today that anyone else but Wallace would get about half as many votes as Barry

Goldwater got in 1964. The problem today seems to be that voters just don't see what political parties have to do with their immediate concerns, such as inflation, job opportunities, restoration of community safety, and other gut issues. Those most deeply concerned have turned to small dissident groups waving only one small banner and their general attitude seem to be, "To blazes with Democrats AND Republicans."

In this atmosphere, it is little wonder that George Wallace, who articulates their discontent so well, is causing the professional pols so much grief.

Wallace campaign plans still arouse speculation

Governor George Wallace plans to seek the Democratic presedential nomination next year as he did in 1972, but he has not ruled out the possibility of another third-party race if he becomes disenchanted with the Democrats again. And even though his campaign headquarters is not geared up for a quick switch to another party, one of his aides says he is confident the change can be made, even after the Democratic convention.

Mickey Griffin, who represents Wallace's interests on the Democratic National Committee, says a newly-formed National Conservative Caucus already has started working to get ballot position for a third party in all 50 states.

Griffin says the group will decide on a cnadidate later, and its job now is to make sure a third party can get

Wallace ran in 1968 under the emblem of the American Independent Party and carried five states. Four years later, he campaigned for the Democratic nomination until he was wounded in an assassination attempt.

Griffin emphasizes that the Wallace Campaign Organization has no connection with the conservative caucus, but he believes the vehicle will be there for a third-party race if Wallace wants to use it.

Wallace has said he plans to run in all of the Democratic primaries, escept possibly New Hampshire, in an effort to win his party's nomination. But he also has said that if the party rejects him and chooses a left-winger and a liberal, he won't have any part of it.

Meanwhile, if he does take the third-party route again, Wallace won't be able to use the regular Democratic party machinery in Alabama, as he did in 1968.

The Democratic nominees for presidential elector in Alabama that year, chosen in the party primary, were pledged to support Wallace instead of the national party

Under a new state law, the names of presidential candidates themselves will be on the ballot in Alabama for the first time. In the past, on ly the names of candidates for elector appeared on the ballot.

No longer will the electors be chosen by the voters. Their names won't be on the ballot. Each candidate, or his party, will designate electors to represent him, and they will be sworn to do just that. The Democratic party electors will be bound to the candidate nominated by their convention.

June - long recognized as the popular month for marriages proved correct during the past June (1975) when 53 marriage licenses were issued from the Probate office.

Visiting the Circuit Clerk's office in an endeavor to find out just how many divorces had been granted during June, we came up with the startling figure of 30! Exactly one divorce for every day during this month.

If you have catfish ponds, be extra careful and don't feed your catfish too much. The decaying fish food will use up dissolved oxygen.

Signs of oxygen problems are: Fish swimming to surface gasping for air, sudden changes in color of water, or algae, and mocrosopic plants dying. If you see these signs you should take action immediately.

Contact your Soil Conservation office for advice or do one of these three things; churn water vigorously with a motor boat, pump air directly into the water with an air compressor, or use super phosphate to add oxygen through a chemical breakdown.

The Judicial Reform program is being discussed pro and con among attorneys and those serving as Inferior Court judges. If the program currently advocated is approved by the people and goes into effect in 1977, how will it affect, for instance - Inferior Court Judges who were elected by the people to serve until their term of office expired in 1979? # Reporter thanked for docks support

Letter to Editor:

Passage of the Alabama State Docks Bond Issue is now a reality.

Please know, I particularly appreciate your support and the special efforts of your staff in bringing the importance of this measure to the people of Alabama.

For your interest, I am enclosing a copy of the joint resolution pertaining to the Bond Issue passed recently by both houses of the Legislature. While The Shelby County Reporter is certainly included in the reference to "News Media", I would like to take this personal means of conveying my gratitude to you and your staff.

It is a rewarding experience to "push" for legislation that will work for the benefit of all the people of Alabama, and I know you share with me this satisfaction.

Thank you, and warm regards. Cordially,

Reader attacks Reporter editorial

Editor's Note: The following letter refers to an editorial appearing in the Shelby County Reporter on June 19. The writer argues with it paragraph by paragraph. In paragraph 5, we used the word "professorial" not "professional." The two words look alike in print, but are different in meaning. The writer apparently mistook one

As for the writer's accusations about "yellow-dog journalism," the thousands of readers each week who learn of the county news, who read the school and church announcements and features on their friends and neighbors, will probably be as offended as we were by that phrase.

Not many newspapers in the United States would bother to print a letter from a person who started out making such a wild and unsubstantiated charge. We print it as it was received.

RE: "Editorial" -- Another First Shot Fired by Walker.

This article being typical of the "yellow dog type journalism of this paper; I believe warrants an answer in the

Paragraph 1 - A broad side is much more palatable than a knife in the back, at least a broad side can be heard and unwarranted. Paragraph 3 - This statement in fact contridicts paragraph one of your editorial. As I understand it, don't we the people have four (4) duly elected officials to monitor and safeguard our county treasure? Is this correct or am I wrong?

Paragraph 4 - I would say this is an assumption on your part, as there is much speculation as far as the public is concerned as to who is the challanger and who is the challangee in this hassel. As for Mr. Walker attempting to stack the commission, by whose qualifications are you qualified as a political prognosticator. Since you brought up the subject of stacking the commission, I believe the record will speak for itself as to who has been the most successful in this endeavor. In fact Mrs. Sears with the exception of one four year span, has not Mr. Fowler had complete control of the Board of County Commissioners. How many times in seventeen years has Mr. Fowler had to use his position as chairman of the board to break a tie vote by the commission? I believe the record will speak for itself in this matter also. This is certainly no reflection on the two new members of the County Commission. As for criticism of the airport operator, this drew quite a bit of criticism from a number of sources and it rightly should have.

Paragraph 5 - You state that through all of this Mr. Fowler keeps calm and explains his actions in an almost professional manner. Don't underestimate the Judge in this manner, would you not agree that after seventeen years experience he qualifies as a real pro. This brings us to ---- Paragraph 6 - I am wording this just a bit different than you have. What indeed does make Chairman of the County Commission so attractive? According to your statement our budget is in very good shape, then why in the world can't the people in Northern Shelby County get some relief from the County Commission toward relieving their problem. We are not getting our Pro rata share of our tax monies in any other form.

Paragraph 7 - I am happy that you bring out the fact that Mr. Fowler is largely responsible for the state of affairs now, as to whether these affairs are good or bad is purely an assumption on your part. What you are saying in effect is that Mr. Fowler runs the whole show. This is a fact which a lot of the people in Shelby County are already aware of.

Paragraph 8 - You Mrs. Sears by your vituperative editorializing have put the people of Northern Shelby County in a political crossfire.

Paragraph 9 - No comment-did not see program. Paragraph 10 - Mrs. Sears in what other manner can anyone in opposition to Mr. Fowler get an article in your

Better times ahead

There are sharp and clear signs of better times ahead for all Americans. In the first place, these times are already much better in many ways than were earlier years within the lives of current middle- aged and older citizens.

Those who were in their teens or early adult years in the 1930's will never forget the stunning proclamation of President Roosevelt when he declared a three-day moratorium on all banking in the United States. Every bank was closed. The dollar was in trouble. Many banks were in trouble. Millions of American families had little or no money at all. The currency system simply had to be whipped into better shape.

Several banks in every state were so weak they could not reopen when the moratorium was over. Some were restructured and were able to pay their depositors at least some percentage of their bank balances. Others could pay little or nothing. Out of that experience came the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation which first guaranteed each commercial bank account against loss up to five thousand dollars. Through the years the guarantee rose by stages to ten thousand dollars, fifteen thousand dollars, and today each separate checking account and savings account is guaranteed up to forty thousand dollars. A bank failure will not do today what was done to depositors and savers in this country over forty years ago.

Wages, salaries and fees are higher today, even on a comparative basis, than they were during the Great Depression. The living standard of even poor Americans are far above those of their counterparts four decades ago. Hardly a home or family residence in this land is without at least an electric refrigerator and either a gas or electric cooking range. Most of our homes have one or more telephones. A majority of American families drive at least

There is another great difference between the depression of the 1930's and the recession-inflation of the 1970's. Forty years ago the government had a relatively modest public debt, a comfortable margin in gold reserves, and a reasonably healthy treasury. The private sector had plunged into the depths of depression because of a stock market collapse. Now - in 1975 - both the government and private enterprise are confronted with massive debt with government weaker than business - just the opposite of the

Our federal government assumed the major role in attempting to organize and design recovery programs from the Great Depression. They had some doubtful success. But government went winging off into outer space in programs

The reason signs are better for improving times now is that the free enterprise system is still in force. The machinery is still here. Ambitious and creative young men and women are discovering the free enterprise system as though it were brand new. To them it may well be, especially those who have been trained in some of our modern colleges and universities. The bright lights on the horizon glow from a reliance upon the free enterprise system which is now moving to salvage the governmental public sectors even as government tried to salvage the private sector forty years ago. This could prove to be a very strange paradox - a recession that turned the whole American system back to the solid rock of doing it yourself.

We can cut corners, save money, and take care of our ilies and ourselves without tax aid. We can change our priorities so that conservation and fewer luxuries top our lists. Americans are already shifting back to more personal involvement. Neighbors are helping neighbors; relatives are looking after their kin; children and youth are being denied some frills; vacations are kept closer to home; and "keeping up with the Joneses" is not quite as important as it has

Legislature lagging on financial issues

The filibustering Alabama Legislature has been unable or unwilling to resolve the problems it has encountered thus far in its 1975 regular session. And this week, fresh from a 12-day recess, it is facing still more problems. Representatives and senators alike are up against two of the toughest financial issues the 1975 session is likely to generate . . . Medicaid and judicial reform.

The legislature has used twelve of its allotted 36 legislative days in the session and has managed to send only one bill to Governor George Wallace for his signature. That was the emergency appropriation to carry Medicaid through the rest of the fiscal year.

Now, among its manifold other problems, it must decide how much to spend next year on medical services for the poor.

The senate has spent much of its time filibustering, and for more than two weeks before the Fourth of July recess, not one bill had been brought up for passage. When the recess came, the house also was bogged down in a filibuster of its own.

The senate was deadlocked over an attempt to change the rules wihich govern its working hours.

One of the rules allows the legislature to meet only on Tuesdays and Thursdays; the other requires the senate to stop work at 5 p.m. each day.

With other squabbles still occupying the house and senate, the problem of finding money for the expanding Medicaid program will get the attention of a special senate-house committee. Its job primarily is to determine which Medicaid services the state can cut back or do

The projected budget for the medical services program next year will take nearly one-third of all of the money in the state's general fund. Legislators say that simply is too much in light of other unmet needs.

Another financial headache is developing over implementation of the Judicial Reform Amendment, which Alabama voters wrote into the state constitution in 1973 Lawyers sponsoring the measure say it will cost the state an additional four million dollars annually. But some critics say the cost would run ten times that much.

MILTON BIRD

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, a member of the FDIC. Good Morning

by Milton Bird

A lot of you old-timers will remember Vertnor Barnett. Maybe not as well as I do, since Vert and Zell were two of my favorite folks around 1934. They use to help me with the papers on Sunday morning, coming to town with the sun from their home out on the Wilsonville road. Vert must have been about 10 and Zell eight. Two of the finest boys a guy would want to know, and running over with curiosity that spilled over now and then and got on me.

One morning Zell hadn't said a word. He just kcpt wrapping papers and looking off. I knew it wouldn't be long before his curiosity got the best of him so I just waited. In the east the sun was peeking over Mount Dixie. A little cloud blazed and slipped behind a bigger cloud that yas blazing too. We kept on wrapping papers. Zell and I were wrapping 'em and Vert was stacking 'em in the car.

Finally Zell said: "I just don't understand it. I just don't."

The sun got over the clouds, heading up the sky. "Maybe if you told us we could help," I said.

"It's something I read. I guess I can't say it exactly like it was, but I'll try." He wrapped another paper and went on: "He said to those who had it would be given, and to those who had not even that which they seemed to have would be taken

That was 41 years ago. I remember we talked about it, and figured it out in our fashion. But time was running away, and before we knew it Vert and Zell were grown and gone out of my life, leaving little memories that slipped back once in a great while, if they happened to come back

And today Vert came back home, to see his folks, Oakley and Thelma Vincent. I met him in the churchyard, between Sunday School and Church. We talked about his life and his family, and Zell and his family. It was just as I knew it had to be, 41 years ago, when two fine boys helped me with my papers.

After church I went home. And Vert went to his sister's house. That's the way it is in our hurry-up world. A little memory pops up and glows for a few moments and slips back inside, half- forgotten and half- remembered in a strange sort o'way.

But we talked about something else too. We talked about talents, the same as we had 41 years ago, and what they had meant to us through the years. And I found out that they, the same as I, had finally found out about talents. That any person would know how he felt inside when he used them, and how he felt inside when he didn't. It was as simple as that.

If Jimmy Conners can't win at Wimbledon, I just don't see how anybody can expect me to get a trophy at the University of Montevallo Alumni Golf and Tennis Tournament in August.

Especially after last Saturday.

Seeking my tennis legs after nearly a year lay-off, I set up a morning match with Jim Natale of the UM News Bureau at the school's courts. I don't know why I selected Jim, looking back on it. There's a ten-year-old down the block that I should have offerred to play. Not only has he never played tennis, he has a leg in a cast.

Nevertheless, there we were, facing each other across the green expanse of court with the heat shimmering off its burning surface. Generally I start off well in situations like this, wearing down only after a few minutes of hard play - like five - - but today, the battle was over before it started.

I figured we would volley in a friendly fashion for awhile, then play a quick set and leave. The first part of my plan worked fine

We knocked the ball back and forth and we both realized that our games were at a disadvantage. We were using brand new balls. The problem with new balls is they bounce real good. Jim and I admitted quickly that we play better using dead balls that you can hit as hard as you can and they go limping over the net. These balls would go to Calera if you hit them hard.

As the friendly volley ended and the match started. I knew immediately I was in trouble. Jim was returning the balls that I managed to ge! over the net.

I hadn't counted on this.

For some reason known not even to myself, I thought I would win in 6 games and we could go home. I had forgotten that Jim carried us to a near upset in the doubles match at last year's tournament, I enjoyed watching him run all over the court returning balls then while I just stood there. It wasn't as much fun this year. He was returning

As luck would have it, he missed just enough and I got just enough in to keep the game tied. It was 2 - 2, 3 - 3. and 4 - 4. As I leaned on my racket, fighting the dizziness that comes from trying to run back and forth in 90 degree heat to hit a bright yellow ball, Jim yelled over at me, "I don't know about you but this is one of the best matches

Here I am dying of consecutive heat strokes and he's starting to get enthusiastic.

There was clearly nothing left to do but finish this thing. He served to me for the tie-breaking ninth game. I'll win this one, I planned, then see if I can get my serve working and polish him off in the tenth game.

It was a good plan and would have worked except he kept hitting it back! There is something that I just cannot tolerate in a tennis match and that's having my good shots returned. I consider a good shot anything that clears the net and stays in bounds.

After several deuces. Jim slammed a shot down the line and gave me the opportunity to wave at it weakly. The score was now 5 - 4. One last chance to tie it up.

I did everything I knew how to do that last game. I watched the ball when I hit it, I rushed the net, I stayed at the baseline, even my serve was getting better. Jim couldn't believe it. Here we had a chance to finish the set and sit down and I was playing like a wild man.

To end the suspense, he got the Kid. With the game at his advantage, match point, I pulled out my best serve, I fairly sizzled over the net, flattened out by the force of my swing. Jim saw it coming, backed up, looked concerned. backed up some more. . . and he got it back, over the net! I, of course, missed it.

All you people out there expecting me to win a trophy this year in the Alumni Tournament, don't get your hopes up. You're in for a disappointment.

BEWARE

THE CATFISH

Man meets few things in na-Some snakes are poisonous, of course, and if you wander around in the jungles of the world you learn to avoid cer-tain insects and other potentially dangerous creatures. And there is one North American fish that can be unpleasant to tangle with if you're not careful. The ordinary catfish (all species found in this country) can be a disagreeable critter. Stiff, dagger-like pectoral fins (those extending from each side of the catfish just behind the gill covers) are deadly weapons and catfish know how to use them. If you don't treat him right, warns the Mercury outboards fishing department, Mr. Whisk-ers will inflict some painful

Most anglers, at one time or another, have been stung on the fingers or hand by a catfish. The feeling is like a bee or wasp sting — sharp, intense pain that can last for several hours.

For years it was thought that catfish did not have a poison gland and that the pain was merely the result of damage to the flesh caused by the fin entering and tearing out. But re-search has shown that catfish do have poison glands that are associated with the pectoral fins. The dorsal fin—although equally sharp and capable of puncturing—is not equipped with the offending gland.

Pores in the pectoral fins exude poison that flows along the fins and streams back along-side the fish's body. When an angler is jabbed with a fin, a small amount of this poison en-ters the puncture and causes the pain. The action is not hypodermic as in the case of poison-ous snakes.

Although seldom dangerous, wounds from catfish fins should be treated just as any other

The best way to handle catfish is a method long used by Mercury's fishing experts. Slide your hand along the fish's back. starting near the tail and moving forward. Press your hand against the pectoral and the dorsal fin and push them forward. Hold them in this position long enough to extract the hook, and then release the fish or place it on your stringer.

When cleaning catfish, break the fins by bending them forward with a pair of pliers.
Failure to do this may result in an accidental puncture as you prepare the fish for the skillet

TENDER TREATMENT

Once thought to be fanciful tales, many old-fashioned rem-edies for ails and illness have been found to be effective in treating minor health problems.

But one of the best "cure-alls" available for outdoor enthusi-asts wasn't around in Grandma's day. Meat tenderizer, a product of recent years now found in almost every kitchen, is rapidly gaining acceptance among sportsmen for its ability to provide quick relief from the painful stings and bites of insects and some forms of marine life which are harmful to man.

From Florida comes word of meat tenderizer being used to treat puncture wounds from small rays stepped on by wading fishermen. In the midwest, Mercury outboards' outdoor recrea-tion staff reports that people are using the same product to re-lieve the pain and swelling of bee and wasp stings. And in Texas, meat tenderizer has been used to quell the fire-brand sting in skin welts caused by accidental encounters with jellyfish.

The treatment is simple. some tenderizer into a small dish or the cup of your hand, add enough water to make a paste, and gently pat the mix-ture on the sting area. You should experience relief within five to ten minutes. Watch the puncture area closely for signs of infection, and seek skilled medical help if this occurs. Boaters and fishermen are subject to occasional encounters with stinging insects simply be-cause they are outdoors, says the Mercury staff. They recom-mend you find room in a tackle box or stowage compartment in your boat for a bottle of meat tenderizer. It could be the treatment someone needs, and it might save an outing on the

Reporting child abuse

by Mildred White Wallace

The Child Abuse incidences recently called to your attention, by this writer in several articles appearing in the Reporter, have caused wide spread concern among our readers. Ever since it was my privilege to serve as a member of the State Board of Pensions and Security during Governor Gordon Persons administration, I have been keenly aware of various problems that confront those in charge of Child Welfare and other phases this department has to deal with. And let me say here and now that Shelby County is most fortunate in having an excellent administrative personnel as well as a capable staff of co-workers in the local Office of Pensions and Security.

So, when the writer attempted to get information on the proper avenues of approach under which known cases of child abuse might be reported, we asked Nell Fulton, Director of the Shelby County Office- to give us this information. In a letter just received, Mrs. Fulton has this to say on the much talked about subject regarding child abuse or neglect in Shelby County - We want to share it with you and we trust everyone will read what Mrs. Fulton has to say on this subject; and then become sufficiently concerned to follow through so that no further harm can come to these helpless little ones entrusted into our keeping.

By the way, have you ever seen the nonunderstanding gaze in the eyes of a little child who has been unjustly mistreated? If you have witnessed such an occurrence, you will know what I am trying to get across -if you haven't, please take my word for it - It is an unforgettable tragic experience! Child Abuse should not be tolerated anywhere! Most certainly not in our own Shelby County! If anyone is interested in the laws governing this situation they too are available in the Shelby County Office.

Dear Mrs. Wallace:

I am interested in your articles concerning Child Abuse in Shelby County. I believe that you are performing a real service by bringing this to the attention of the public. I was late reading last week's Reporter as I was away attending a Work Shop at University of Alabama from June 16th through June 20th, then I was out of town all week-end. I wanted to talk with you immediately when I read the article Monday night, but I felt that it might be more meaningful for me to put my thoughts in writing. I have also read your article appearing in this past week's issue.

It is true that we do have child abuse in Shelby County. There are people who are concerned however; and we receive reports frequently. Law enforcement officials refer cases to us needing protective services.

At anytime a report of child abuse is made to our agency we immediately make an investigation if we have enough facts to go on - that is name of child, family with whom living, address or directions to home, and nature of complaint. If our investigation reveals that protective custody is needed, the Juvenile Court will be petitioned asking that custody be removed from the parents temporarily and the child given protective custody. The decision is that of the Court, of course. In cases in which there has been adequate evidence of abuse I have known the Court to act the same day that we or the law enforcement officials received the report and investigated.

Abuse or neglect of children is often the result of parents' frustration over their family problems. It is reported that with the unemployment increases throughout the country there is also increase in child abuse. Parents are taking out their frustrations on the children. Some parents are seriously disturbed emotionally. We endeavor to help them while we are trying to provide as normal life as possible for the child in our care. Some of the parents we are able to help and some we cannot. Our philosophy is to make use of every resource available in trying to save parents for their children, but not to sacrifice the children. I'm sure you are aware that the Court has the responsibility of legal planning for the child and we cannot plan for children without this. We often need and depend upon persons in the community who know the abuse to come in to Court with us and testify. This is particularly needed when we do not have physical evidence that we can present to the Court. I can understand neighbor's, friends' and relative's reluctance to get involved in Court, but often they are the only ones who can present concrete evidence regarding abuse.

We first had a Child Abuse Act passed by the Legislature in 1965. This is Act. No. 563 and this was amended by regular session 1967 Act No. 725. I'm enclosing copy of this.

I hope you will continue writing on the subject of child neglect and child abuse as your articles are much more impressive than the ones we published soon after the Child Abuse Act and Amendment were made.

I'll be glad to furnish you statistics at the end of the year if you'd like.

Sincerely yours, Nell J. Fulton Director

Juvenile crime gets special attention

Legislature eyes judicial article

EDITORS NOTE - The state legislature has begun consideration of legislation to implement the new Judicial Article to the state's constitution which was approved by a two-to- one margin by Alabama voters in December of 1973. The bill to implement, has been introduced in the legislature with 25 senators and 72 House members as sponsors. This is the second of four articles dealing withthe major recommendations of that commission. MONTGOMERY - Alabama Chief Justice Howell

Heflin has called the problem of juvenile crime the most serious challenge faced by the nation's court system.

"Over the past two decades juvenile arrests for serious crimes have increased by the startling total of 1,600 percent," Heflin says, "and today more than 50 percent of the arrests in major crimes involve persons 18 years old or

For this reason, judicial responsibility for juvenile cases received more intensive study and deliberation than studying the implementation problems. The study commission's recommendations in this area are now before the state legislature, included in a bill which would fully implement the new Judicial Article to the state constitution adopted overwhelmingly by Alabama voters in any problem considered by the commission on Judicial

Article implementation, which spent more than a year

The commission, realizing the social complexity of the problems involved in juvenile matters, is recommending that all juvenile cases in the state be handled in a uniform manner by judges who are specialists in the field and who are easily accessible to the citizens in each county.

The handling of juvenile cases in Alabama today varies from county to county. In some counties the probate judge handles cases, in some counties the county judge, and in a few counties the circuit judge is the juvenile judge. There is currently no uniformity and, under the Judicial Article, uniformity will be required.

The study commission's recommendation in this matter is that the juvenile cases for the State of Alabama be vested in the new district court.

"Many judicial circuits within the state involve several counties and cover large geographical areas. In such circuits a circuit judge, in many instances, will be unavailable for quick and convenient service in juvenile matters," according to Professor Charles D. Cole, director of the Commission.

Cole says that, "the commission reached a consensus that placement of juvenile jurisdiction in the district court, with a resident judge in each county, would be in the best interest of the young people of Alabama."

He added that the uniform treatment of juveniles throughout the state in the same courts with similar jurisdictions should be of benefit to both parents and children who might be brought before the courts.

Cole said that there are six counties in the state in which the circuit judge will continue to serve as the juvenile court judge by acting as an ex-officio district court judge for juvenile matters. It is further provided that such circuit judges would have the right to transfer juvenile cases to the circuit court. "This will prevent any disruption in the present situation in these counties where there are family courts already in existence," Cole said. He added that these are mainly in existence in the state's larger metropolitan areas. Cole said that such a policy would also allow establishment of the broader family court concept where such is desirable.

Why do we emphasize "circle of friends" while other banks emphasize their "full circle of service?" Because we're the bank that pays special attention to customers: all of them, in a great big way, no matter what service or services they use. The bank that thinks of customers as a circle of friends. And the nicest thing about our circle is that it's always open. There's always room for one more. How about you?

Jesse Culp relives the "good ole days" of the country schoolhouse with its pot-bellied stove...going barefoot in the Spring...cooking on the old wood-burning stove.

And he views modern things entertainingly and meaningfully through the "down-to-earth" eyes of one who loves life and the folks around him.

DON'T MISS "JESSE CULP'S CORNER"

"What is happening to the whippoorwills?

That's a fervent inquiry from one of our "Jesse Culp's Corner" readers, who says he's noticed that we don't have as many of them as we have had in

Now that you mention it, I've noticed too that we don't seem to have as many of these delightful birds around as we had even a few years ago. I just figured it was

The whippoorwill has always been one of my favorite birds

When I was just a boy, growing up in the country. I remember how I used to love to sit out on the steps of the porch after supper, and listen to the whippoorwills call in the nearby woods as darkness gradually ended the day

Sometimes they would say "chuck-wills-'o willow." And sometimes it was "chip-fell-out-of-the-white

Farmers used to say that when you started hearing the whippoorwills in the Spring, it was time to plant corn for sure.

One song writer once penned a big hit which started with these lyrics: When whippoorwills call. and evening is nigh . I'm happy in my blue heaven!" Whippoorwills are very shy birds, and I have never known one to become tame. They seem to insist on the solitude of the woods land association only with their own kind.

Yet, they seem to be very smart and talented birds also. One bird expert says that whippoorwills have been known to whistle phrases from songs, such as old hymns, which they may have heard country boys whistling in the fields and woods.

One of the few nocturnal birds in this part of the country, the whippoorwill usually starts singing in early to mid April, and we don't hear him again normally after the end of July.

Well. I certainly hope the whippoorwill isn't about to become extinct around these parts.

He's a delightful little creature who has given us all a great deal of pleasure. Without him, how are we going to know when to plant

Sheriff Walker was accompanied by Alabama State Investigator Lt. O. M. Raines, chief deputy Buddy Glasgow and county investigator Reid Smith. Five other deputies were stationed at various points surrounding the house. The raid began at 1:55 a.m.

According to Walker's account, the raiding party opened the front door of the house by using a sledge hammer and crowbar. Then they presented Sam Fiorella with the search warrant and went up to the second floor of the white frame house.

Eleven men and five women were in or around the house, Walker said. Twelve cars, mostly Buicks, Cadillacs and Lincolns, were parked outside.

When the raiding party arrived on the second floor, several persons were at the windows. Deputies later found dice on the ground immediately below the windows.

Walker told the Reporter that personnel of his department have had the house under surveillance for several raid, he replied that a variety of information caused him to decide on the raid at that time. including a count of the cars on the premises.

200th birthday is worth the fuss

As we prepare to celebrate our country's 200th birthday, it is important that we understand just what we have that's worth all the fuss.

America's revolution is so far in the past that many of us tend to forget that we ever had one. But that is what the Bicentennial is all about - a revolution that gave birth to a new form of government so perfectly conceived that today it stands as the oldest constitutional system on earth.

The American Revolution was unique. Unlike many since, it arose out of the legitimate grievances of the people rather than the ideological extremes of a tiny minority. And the unparalleled stability that has followed it is also traceable to the wisely limited goals of American revolutionary leaders.

Irving Kristol, Henry R. Luce Professor of Urban Values at New York University, recently compared the American and French Revolutions. Kristol noted that the French Revolution, which has become a "model" for most other revolutions, "promised - as practically all revolutions have promised since - the abolition of poverty. The American Revolution promised no such thing . .

"... the leaders of this revolution understood what their contemporary, Adam Smith, understood and what we today have some difficulty understanding," Kristol continues, "namely, that poverty is abolished by economic growth, not by economic redistribution - there is never enough to distribute - and that rebellions, by creating instability and uncertainty, have mischievous consequences for economic growth. Similarly, the French Revolution promised a condition of 'happiness' to its citizens under the new regime, whereas the American Revolution promised merely to permit the individual to engage in the 'pursuit of

More Americans across a wider strata of society have pursued and caught that happiness - and shared in the fruits of a productive country - than anywhere at anytime in the world's history. And for that fact alone, the Bicentennial of the American Revolution is indeed worth celebrating.

Election laws spawn too much 'politicking'

by Don Wasson

MONTGOMERY - - Under the tutelage of Robert S. Vance, chairman of the State Democratic Party, a select committee has been hard at work for more than two months trying to make some sense out of Alabama's hodgepodge of election laws.

Last week in Montgomery, the wraps were removed from the committee's proposal for a new election law, ranging from qualifications of candidates to corrupt practices controls and from voter registration to the counting of the ballots.

If the committee can possibly get its work through the legislature, it will be one of the kindest and most gratifying changes in Alabama law in many, many years.

The changes to be wrought must also gain clearance from the U.S. Justice Department, but the level-headed approach, the wide citizen input and the open handedness with which the job has been done will not fail to impress the federal moguls.

One of the principal changes in existing law is the proposed use of different primary dates in alternate years. Primaries would be moved from May until September, except in the presidential election year, when delegates to the political conventions must be chosen.

Since the parties have their conventions in June or July, it would be impractical to have the primary for selection of delegates in September.

There was some opinion that different primary dates would further confuse the already confused public. But it was reasoned that the people will vote, no matter when the election day is, and that they will be amply apprised of the proper day, no matter when it comes.

There are many advantages to a later primary, not the least of which is that it greatly reduce the length of the political campaigns, which now stretch from March, when the candidates qualify, through the May primary, the June runoff and the November general election.

The overwhelming sentiment of the voters appears to be that there is too much politicking. It may be a sad commentary on the state of affairs, but the main public gripe about elections is that they mess up the TV schedules.

Another advantage in the later primary, at least insofar as Democratic candidates are concerned, is that it will reduce the cost of campaigning, and also cut down on the time they must spend away from their businesses or

It will be good if the change brings the cost of elections down and indeed, the recommended law will put a ceiling on what candidates for various offices can spend.

The new law also permits counties to establish "voting centers" which simply means that in the various polling places, once a voter has identified himself or herself, they can use any machine in the polling place that is idle. No more standing in line before one machine because your name begins with a certain letter, while other machines in the place are not being used.

It also calls for machine voting throughout the state by 1980 and calls for the use of electronic voting devices which are considerably simpler, less costly and easier to store than the old, familiar voting machine with the curtain.

The new law also simplifies voter registration, making it easier for people to become voters. But it also calls for party registration and in the primaries, at least, you would have to identify yourself as a Democrat or a Republican.

The new legislation would simplify the Corrupt Practice Act and clarify such things as qualifications so that there isn't the usual hassle in the Spring about who is

A SAD SIGHT - - A sign requesting "No dumping" seems to serve as a dare to the litterbugs responsible for this trash heap. This particular spot is located in Pelham, just off Highway 31, on a road leading into Oak Ridge Estates, but there are plenty more like it throughout Shelby County.

City courts revision explained

EDITORS NOTE - The state legislature has begun consideration of legislation to implement the new Judicial Article to the state's constitution which was approved by a two-to- one margin by Alabama voters in December of 1973. The legislation to implement the new court framework provided by the article has been introduced in the legislature with 25 senators and 72 House members as sponsors. This is the third of four articles dealing with the major recommendations of that commission.

MONTGOMERY - Alabama Chief Justice Howell Heflin says that the traffic courts are where eighty- five percent of the people who appear in court see justice dispensed and he believes these courts should be shining examples of judicial decorum and impartial justice.

"In times past the traffic courts have sometimes been misused with the average citizen being the victim," the Chief Justice said.

"While I do not think that this has been the case with most of our municipal courts, there are a few examples which need correction," according to Heslin. He says the recommendations now before the legislature would make those corrections.

Although cities in the state have an option under the new Judicial Article to abolish their municipal courts and transfer that jurisdiction to the new uniform district court, there are also provisions in the Article which would modernize and upgrade all municipal courts in the state.

The commission on Judicial Article implementation has made the following recommendations to the legislature for the upgrading of municipal courts throughout Alabama:

In order to eliminate the political removal of municipal court judges, full-time judges for cities will be appointed by a municipal governing bodies to a term of four years and part-time municipal judges for a term of two years. These judges may only be removed through procedures established by the State Judicial Inquiry Commission and the Court of the Judiciary and the judges will be subject to the same grounds of disqualification as circuit judges. "This minimizes the opportunities for the exertion of political pressures on judges," says Heflin.

· All municipal judges must be licensed to practice law and they cannot be employed in any other capacity by

Vacancies will be filled by the governing body in accordance with the existing law and other established

Under the Courthouse.

Ron Penn, in charge of the computer department of Shelby County, will attend computer school in Atlanta for one week preparatory to a transfer from date card storage to disc storage equipment. The new equipment will be installed September 1, 1975.

Voter registration will be held July 21, 22 and 23 from 9:00 until 3:00. . . . .

The tax assessor, tax collector and probate judge expect to send to motor vehicle owners a card to be used for the purchase of motor vehicle licenses for the 1976 year. Mail orders will be encouraged. New residents of the county will be able to obtain a mail order card in September at the service stations in the county. Processing of the mail orders for tags will commence about the middle of September. . . . . .

The assessor, collector and probate judge urge people who transfer motor vehicles to affect a transfer of the registration on the motor vehicle in the probate office. Cost for this service is 25 cents for each transfer. This will insure that a computer card will be prepared for the current owner of the vehicle.

A session of the Shelby County Court will be held July 18 with Judge Curt Payne presiding. There are approximately 169 cases on this docket.

The summer term of the Circuit Court will begin August 4 at ten o'clock a.m. There are 33 cases set for trial by jury during the Civil Week of the court.

A Bill to be entitled An Act will be submitted to the Legislature for approval or disapproval which will - if approved - authorize the Shelby County Board of Commissioners to provide an additional expense allowance in an amount not to exceed $2,600 per year to any of the following: Judge of Inferior Court, Circuit Clerk, Probate Judge, Tax Assessor Tax Collector, the Sheriff, and an expense allowance of $1,200 per year to each member of the Shelby County Commission - except the Chairman. And the Shelby County Commission shall determine when the payment of any such expense allowance shall

For full information of this proposed Legislative Act - read the legal notice appearing in this week's edition of municipal judges and there will be prohibition against diminishing those salaries during the term for which the judges are appointed.

- The municipal judges will be subject to the rules of practice, procedure, and administration established by the Alabama Supreme Court.

- Costs in the municipal courts will be uniform

- A municipal governing body will be authorized to designate qualified persons to issue traffic arrest warrants, issue nontraffic misdemeanor warrants, admit to bail in minor misdemeanors, and receive quilty pleas in cases involving minor misdemeanors which do not involve jail sentences.

- The municipal courts would be limited in jurisdiction to those matters involving municipal ordinance

- The governing body of any city may abolish its court and use a district court and may reestablish the municipal court at its option, subject to the notice provision and waiting period established by the legislature.

- The municipal governing body will be authorized to establish a clerk of the court and other required employees. - A uniform procedure for the adjudication of traffic infractions would be established for municipal courts. - Municipal court judges would have the power to fine and imprison, as at present, the fines and costs would be worked out allowing $10 per day for such service. Fines would not exceed $500 and jail sentences would be limited to six months according to the commission's recommendation.

Commenting on the new municipal court structure, Chief Justice Heflin says that a uniform procedure for traffic infractions throughout the state would insure citizens of receiving the same treatment in regard to procedure in all municipal courts throughout the state.

Heflin said that the outline of a recommended municipal court act came as a result of extensive consideration by the entire commission on implementation.

He said the substantive coverage proposed for the enabling statute seeks not only to facilitate effective municipal courts for those cities which elect to remain out of the district court system, but also to offer the municipality an acceptable approach to both entry and withdrawal from the district court structure.

The commission's proposed apportionment of court costs, fines and forfeitures would make participation in the district court system financially feasible for all municipalities. If a city or town of over 1,000 population abolishes its municipal court, the district court must hold court in that municipality. The legislature may also designate places for the district court to sit.

Anti-religious move seen by minister

On Sunday morning, July 6, the congregation of the Columbiana United Methodist Church was made aware of a movement which is under way in our country to prohibit religious broadcasting on television and radio, and to deny our astronauts the right to read the Bible while on space flights. Further research indicates that this prohibition in regard to religious broadcasting is concerned with non-commercial or educational television and radio, but if this measure becomes law no doubt it could be the first step toward prohibiting "all" religious broadcasting.

It is now time for Christian people to do more than make some noble resolve, but to actually put our faith into action. We need to let the Federal Communications Commission, our congressmen, our representatives, and any other representative of authority know that we whole-heartedly disapprove any efforts to prohibit religious broadcasting (television and radio), and any efforts to prohibit our astronauts from reading the bible while on

We as Christians and concerned citizens now have another opportunity to demonstrate some sturdy convictions before others. We have a real responsibility to take a stand against the "wrong." We are not to be intersted in catching the spirit of the age, but in correcting the spirit

Surely there is much that is hostile to the radical claims of Jesus Christ today - but one Christian united with another, and another, and another can - with God's help, bring about a change. The matters of religious broadcasting, and Bible reading on space flights are only two of many, many areas within the affairs of the world today where christians should voice the convictions of their hearts, but attention is surely needed in these two areas of concern - and now! The words which the Apostle Paul spoke to the Christians in Rome continue to be relevant for us today, "And be not conformed to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God." (Romans 12:2)

Thank You, Lamar M. Davis, Minister Columbiana United Methodist Church P.O. Box 676 Columbiana, Alabama 35051

Strong AEA lobby affecting budget

As the current legislative session rolls on, more and more it has become apparent that the strongest single lobby in the House and Senate is the Alabama Education

A-E-A is the lobbying arm for Alabama teachers, and since Doctor Paul Hubbert became its executive- secretary in 1969, it has increasingly flexed its political muscles. Hubbert is nicknamed among some as "Governor Hubbert," indicating the sizeable role he plays in legislative affairs.

The school budget is the largest single appropriation which the legislature makes each session. This year it's in the neighborhood of a record one and one-half billion dollars, so it's understandable that the lobbying around school issues will tend to be strong.

An example of A-E-A's strength has cropped up in the House Ways and Means Committee, which is the first legislative committee to deal with the major budgets. Governor George Wallace submitted a proposed budget that would cut into funds set aside for the schools, and A-E-A has all but killed the administration program.

The committee has delayed action on the budgets issue for about a month and is expected to lean toward the A-E-A position this week when the budget proposals go before it again.

Another example of the teacher lobby's strength was demonstrated last week in the Alabama Senate. It focused on a bill giving teachers "meet and confer" rights with school administrators over policy and other school matters.

The controversial bill was approved by the Senate last week on a 29 to five vote. After the vote, Senator Mike Perloff of Mobile moved for reconsideration and began a filibuster to block the bill.

While the Senate is still trying to decide what to do about the "meet and confer" measure, the education lobby's support in the Senate is apparent.

A-E-A pitched in with financial support during the campaigns of 30 of the 35 senators, and while that doesn't bind the officials to A-E-A, it is indicative of the Records filed with the secretary of State's office show that A-E-A contributed anywhere from 200 dollars to 29- hundred dollars to the senatorial candidates. In some instances, the A-E-A contributions were made to candidates who had no opposition, but Hubbert said this was to cover expenses before the candidate's were assured of having no

One of the senators who received no help from A-E-A was Perloff, who launched the effort to stop the "meet and confer" bill. His opponent, James Buskey, a Mobile teacher, did pick up A-E-A help.

Assn. for Retarded thanks supporters

I'd like to take this opportunity to publicly thank several groups of people who worked so hard to make the Hike/Bike for the Retarded such a tremendous success. It really was a great success and we thank all of you who made it so.

First may I say thanks to you, the Reporter, for the excellent publicity which you gave to the event. You were very instrumental in making the county aware of the purposes and goals of the Hike- Bike and of how the money

Second, I want to especially thank the Cahaba Valley Jaycees and Jayceettes for the time and effort they put into organizing and promoting the event. We could not have succeeded without them. A special thank you to Bob Robinson for spearheading the activities for the Jaycees.

Also, another group who played a very important role in the success of the Hike/Bike were the Bikers themselves. They put their heart into the ride and really gave their best - most finishing the entire twenty miles. To all sixty-four of you we say a great big "Thank You".

And last, but certainly not least, we say another big "Thank You" to the many sponsors who gave so generously. You proved to us who work directly with the retarded that you really do care and that you are genuinely concerned about their welfare.

Again, to all of you, we say "Thank You" for making Saturday, June 21, 1975 a great day for the retarded citizens of this county.

Sincerely, Sue DeBoer, President Shelby County Association For Retarded Citizens

Rescue equipment lacking in Pelham

Letter to the Editor:

We don't like to think about unpleasant occurences and their consequences, such as automobile accidnts, but they do occur. On Saturday night the 12th a double fatality collision occurred on Highway 31 in Pelham,

When we do think of an emergency we just assume that all the necessary rescue facilities will be readily available as needed. However, this was not the case in Pelham. Many precious minutes were lost in removing the pinned-in victim from the wreck because the Pelham Fire Department does not have the equipment. Of course, no one can be sure that those minutes could have saved the life, but are the residents of Pelham satisfied with taking such a chance on life and death?

The town of Pelham, by incorporating and collecting taxes is assuming responsibility for providing certain essential services. By not properly equipping the fire department, the city officials are not fulfilling this responsibility. Is ten years not long enough?

fi you see me this week and I run over, shake your hand, par you on the back, and offer you a bite of my lunch, don't be surprised. I'm being especially nice to everyone until Friday.

The Alabama Press Association is holding its convention this week at Point Aquarius and Thursday night is the awards banquet. I don't know who the judges are and I'm not taking any chances.

Last year I went to the convention in Gulf Shores fully expecting to walk off with the Columnist of the Year for a weekly newspaper award. Instead, I walked away with a handful of seafood souffle which I got when I put my hand in my plate as the winners were being announced and I wasn't among them.

This year, however, I'm going to be ready.

For the past few days, I've spoken and waved and smiled and just made a general nuisance of myself being friendly to people. I've laughed at bad jokes, I've listened to long, boring stories, I've refrained from offering my critical opinions to people who clearly needed me to tell them what was wrong with themselves. I've been so good it's

I've GOT to win this year. Milton Bird has won Best Columnist, Marcia Sears has won a newswriting award. Even Steve Huffstutler won once for a feature story. Even Huffstutler. Imagine.

I realize that my competition will be stiff since I'm sure the three columnists that beat me last year are still around. I'm hoping whoever the judges are will decide not so much on merit or talent but on the number of column inches used up during the year. I might not write well but I

So as you sit down to Thursday night supper, sample the turnip greens, taste the chop, and sip the tea, pause for a moment and think of me sitting at a banquet table in Alpine, Alabama, chewing on something that I probably can't even taste, trying to be cool and relaxed as I wait for the winners to be announced. You might even say to yourself, "Poor old Cooper," before you dive into the

Some never bathed

Bath has strange history

Early bathtubs didn't exactly make a splash. In the 15th century, for example, Queen Isabella of Spain declared that she only had two baths in her life-including one when she was married. At that time, according to scribes who kept track of scrubs, many boasted that they never took a bath at all!

Records on the art of keeping oneself clean, however, go back to the Bronze Age when residents of a palace on what is now the island of Crete literally put their foot in it. Portable foot baths of clay, and basins, were on tap for those

The Romans originated the bathing house and mass public bathing, which got them in hot water with the church. It was suggested by clergymen that bathing be for cleansing purposes only and that social and other activities be confined to more suitable surrounding. Many mixed bathing places were then closed and others operated at different hours for members of each sex.

From the 14th through the 17th century, the Romans, Greeks, Mohammedans and Russians outdid one another in building architectural monuments to the bath. Giant murals and sculptures were featured, and the introduction of steam rooms and perfumed and oil baths to soak the rich became

In the Far East, notably Japan, bathing has always been an art. Most Japanese houses even today have the old-fashioned circular tub. In some of that nation's biggest hotels, despite modern conveniences, the bathtub is long and narrow. Family baths, in which all participate in large circular tubs of steaming hot water, are still taken in many gardens.

Ancients would have been surprised at the ways in which baths are designed available in a combination tub-shower or a shower stall--are the first fiber glass units that are available in components.

They are regarded by many Americans as the bath (and best) of all possible

That's one of the reasons Alabama Power has to build more plants-for enough power to meet the high summer demand. And this extra power costs us money since it generally isn't being fully used the rest of the year.
That's why electricity costs more in the summer.

But only for customers who actually use more. Here's how it works. For the first 1230 kilowatt-hours (kwh) you use in your home each month, the cost per kwh stays the same the year 'round. Each kilowatthour you use over 1230 kwh costs you 1.1¢ from November through ments and applicable taxes are added to your electric bill each month.

One way you can cut down the cost of air conditioning is by setting your thermostat higher. You may sacrifice a little comfort. But you could save a lot of money. And check the insulation in your attic. If the six-inch ceiling joists in your attic are not covered by insulation, you probably don't have enough.

For more energy-saving hints, stop by your local Alabama Power Company office or write for our new booklet, "81 Ways to Control Your Electric Bill." In it you will find guidelines for insulation, attic ventilation, air conditioning, and much more.

If your plants are turning yellow, this may mean they are not taking in enough fertilizer through the roots. In this case, a liquid fertilizer solution may be the answer. This works well with roses and helps reduce black spots by keeping the foliage healthy and the plant vigorous.

I just this year discovered, or rather tried, liquid fertilizers. They are marvelous. So much easier to apply than the powder kind where one has to stoop to work it into the

Council gearing up to support sales tax

by Nancy Duncan

Members of the Shelby County Council for Education are making plans to actively support a proposed one percent sales tax for education in the county.

However, before plans to push for passage of the tax were mapped out at a council meeting last week, a question involving the composition of school budget committees, which would be appointed to decide how to spend funds allotted to each school, had to be ironed out.

If the tax is approved in a September 16 election, half of the anticipated revenue, or about $250,000 a year, would be allocated to the schools. Under this formula, each school's portion of the money would be $25 per student, giving schools in the county from $4,000 to $26,000 a year, depending on enrollment.

At a previous meeting council members, asked for their thoughts on the composition of these committees, had voted unanimously to recommend to the board of education that the committees be composed of three educators, including the principal and two teachers whom he or she would appoint, and three nonprofessional persons - parents or other interested citizens appointed by the school's board of trustees. Reasoning behind this proposal was to give the committees equal lay and professional input on spending the un-earmarked responsibility. Some also believe that they, and not the boards of trustees, should be empowered to appoint the citizen representatives. The reduction in lay participation represented a compromise of sorts, since lay members are to be appointed by each school's trustees as originally outlined.

Roland Lee, a member of Valley Elementary School's legislative committee, said he feels that planning equal citizen and professional membership for the budget committees is a good selling sided with parent point in trying to influence representatives on the issue, people to vote for the tax. This will apply, of course, only if a proposed one percent sales tax for education is approved by county voters in September.

The board's purpose in planning budget committees for each school, in the event the tax is levied, is, they say, to give citizen input on the spending of funds which most members view as public monies that should be administered by committees having both citizen and professional representation.

High School principals in the county do not consider the proposed tax revenue as any kind of extra funding, however. With instructional fees destined to be eliminated, they way, the money would do little more than replace that which they would collect in have. I honestly don't know

After discussing a new fire engine for the city at a called meeting on July 17 and voting a second time on bids received earlier in the month, Pelham city councilmen have decided to stick with the one they accepted the first time around.

Council had, at a regular meeting on July 7, accepted a bid of $42,933 from Howe Fire Apparatus Company, Inc., subject to approval of the specifications by the city attorney. The bid was for a gasoline powered truck and had received unanimous approval of councilmen at the meeting. MONTGOMERY - There is growing concern in Alabama over the control the Alabama Education Association apparently has over the Alabama Legislature.

The presentation last week of a General Fund budget written by the AEA, and its substitution for the bill sponsored by the Administration, probably will rank as the most audacious move ever made by any private interest in

How did this state get to the place where one association, representing only 17,000 people (give or take a few teachers, that's the AEA's constituency), so completely control the state lawmaking body?

In theory, at least, the power to tax, and the spending of those tax dollars is a legislative duty. The governor, of course, generally sets the budgets, but the legislature is free to add to or detract from, the governor's figures.

In the 1974 political campaigns, the AEA openly went after a "slate" of legislative candidates who were, or would promise to be, sympathetic to the views of the state's school teachers. Their "A-Vote" plan went into effect and apparently it had a lot to do with electing a good number of the lawmakers in both houses.

It would probably be unfair to say that the AEA went into the political arena and "bought" themselves a legislature. But it certainly begins to appear that way, in light of the acceptance, by the House Ways and Means Committee, of the AEA written and produced General

It is bad enough when the powerful teacher group dictates the terms of the education budget. But they have no more right to dictate the terms of the General Fund Budget than does any other special interest group.

Why should the teachers of the state determine how much revenue is going to be spent on highways, on mental health, on prisons, on general health, medicaid, the highway patrol and other state agencies?

Why indeed, shouldn't the policemen of this state, through their Fraternal Order of Police organization, sit down and write themselves a budget and, for extra measure, write the education budget for the state?

AEA is fighting hard to protect its sources of revenue - mainly the income and sales taxes - and quite logically argues that once a breach is made in the education revenues, there is no telling where it will stop.

That may be true, but it is the legislature's prerogative to say where it will stop, and where it will

It is good that the largest revenues have been pledged to education over the years because the school system would probably be far behind where it is today without the revenue being pledged.

But today is 1975 and things are a great deal different. There are other demands upon the public purse, demands that were not even dreamed of when those highly productive taxes were pledged to education. Who, back then, had ever heard of Medicaid and Medicare?

Education now gets the bulk of all state revenues about 45 per cent of the total. And it probably should always get the lion's share. But the other beasts in the bureaucratic jungle must eat too, and the legislature surely will not let them starve.

The only alternative to diverting education monies to general fund purposes is imposition of new taxes. No one wants that, and the governor has said repeatedly that he will veto any tax increase.

So it appears that as the summer wears on, the proposal to divert education monies to other segments of government is going to become more and more attractive to the lawmakers.

House favors prison upgrade

The Alabama House has pledged its support to the financially troubled prison system . . . but so far it's just so much rhetoric.

The resolution adopted recently didn't actually appropriate any money. And when the time comes, it's going to be a lot harder to find adequate funds than just

Nevertheless, the House did go on record in favor of upgrading the prison system. The resolution by representative Gary Cooper of Mobile commits the Legislature to "work together" to provide whatever money

Cooper told his colleagues that the state constitution requires the Legislature to see that prisoners receive humane treatment. He urged the House to accept the challenge and . . . as he expressed it . . . not let the Federal courts "handle our responsibility for us."

The freshman legislator went on . . . in these words ... "we have allowed a very shameful condition to come into existence in our prisons. People are sleeping on the floors, they are eating unsanitary food. Young men are not safe and are in danger of being killed."

Representative Brooks Hines of Evergreen added his support. He said Fountain Correctional Center near Atmore is 38 men short on the guard force and has only two guards inside the prison to watch over 1,200 inmates.

Hines told the house . . . "If you think this situation can exist any longer, you're wrong. When it blows up, it's going to be worse than anything else in the United States, anywhere."

Courts will be self-supporting

EDITORS NOTE - The state legislature has begun consideration of legislation to implement the new Judicial Article to the state's constitution which was approved by a two-to- one margin by Alabama voters in December of 1973. The legislation to implement the article has been introduced in the legislature with 25 senators and 72 House members as sponsors. This is the fourth of four articles dealing with the major recommendations of that

MONTGOMERY - Alabama Chief Justice Howell Heflin says that new and modernized court procedures created under recommendations made by the commission to implement the Judicial Article will allow the Alabama court system to become practically self-supporting.

"While I do not think a price tag should be put on any form of justice, at the same time I realize that our court system does produce revenue and that is a consideration which some will be looking at in regard to the full implementation of recommendations for our courts which are now before the legislature," the Chief Justice

Heflin stresses that in most states in the nation while the judiciary is classified as a separate and independent branch of government, it could almost be referred to as "the neglected branch of government." Heflin says that the amount of state appropriations for the judiciary in most states has been less than one percent of the total state appropriations. "Alabama is no exception," he added. "The present state appropriation for the judicial system in Alabama amounts to less than one- half of one percent of all appropriations," Heflin said.

The Chief Justice points out that if the legislature fully implements the recommendations proposed by the commission, the gross cost of the state judicial system will only amount to 1.08 percent of the net tax revenue which was received by the state for the fiscal year 1973-74.

Under the commission's recommendations a unified and unitary financial approach toward the needs of the judiciary is created. Complete state financing of the entire unified judicial system with the exception of municipal and probate courts is recommended. Heflin says that this minimizes the opportunities available to exert political pressure on judges, particularly those judges at the county

He says the system would provide a businesslike approach, requiring uniformity and knowledgeable supervision as to individual court physical needs and operation. "Only one appropriating body, the Alabama Legislature, will be determining the needs of the judiciary when the unified court concept is implemented," the Chief Justice added.

Heflin stresses that one of the amazing findings from the study commission's investigation was that about 40 percent of court costs throughout the state have gone uncollected in the past. He cites the lack of business supervision in this field as the reason for the failure to collect court revenues. "Under the business supervision and administrative procedures recommended by the commission, effective collection of court revenues can almost insure that the judical system will be selfsupporting," Heflin added.

According to Professor Charles D. Cole, staff director for the commission, the net cost is new money to the state when the new modernized judicial system for Alabama is fully implemented would be $3.8 million annually.

"This amounts to less than two-tenths of one percent of total state appropriations," Cole said.

"Oftentimes governmental agencies seek additional, funding without providing any additional services for the citizens," the Chief Justice said. However, he points to additional services and modernization created under the Judicial Article as a justification for what he terms "a small increase in appropriations."

"For the first time in the history of our state we now have a Judicial Inquiry Commission through which citizens may make complaints pertaining to judges and have those complaints investigated. If the Judicial Inquiry Commission charges a judge with misconduct, a court of the judiciary will try the judge. For the first time in our state, should the study commission's recommendations be adopted by the legislature, a small claims court will be established in the district to file claims in the amount of $500 or less without the necessity of obtaining an attorney to represent them under simplified court procedures.

In addition, Heflin stressed, new rules pertaining to civil practice, criminal practice and administration of the courts in the state are being considered to provide the speedy and inexpensive determination of cases before the courts. "These not only will save citizens money, it will save the state money and provide speedier trials which are guaranteed all citizens under the constitution."

The Chief Justice says that one of the biggest concerns of citizens throughout the nation is the increase in crime. "There is an extended effort throughout this country to reduce the crime figures which have reached astounding proportions. Under our medernized new court system, technicalities which have hamstrung many courts and created backlogs in cases can be substantially reduced and thus lead to swifter justice which many experts have said does more than any other remedy to reduce crime."

Heflin says he is of the opinion that when the legislature looks at funding for any governmental system it should also look at services which are provided by such funding. He says he feels that the services which will be rendered to the citizens of Alabama under a new and modernized judicial system will be more than worth the almost nebulous relative additional cost.

He points out that sooner or later legislatures in all states will have to establish overall priority lists for governmental services. "There will never be enough state revenues to adequately and reasonably finance essential governmental services if tax dollars are spread among the hundreds, even thousands, of nonessential governmental service proposals. It would appear to be inescapable that constitutionally required services must head any priority list," Heflin said.

Congress expected to pass bill converting to metric system

Although many Americans may not be aware of it now, very shortly they may be asking for a kilogram of sugar or ten liters of gas. In most other countries around the world the Metric System is used as the standard form of measure. And a new law now before Congress -- which will change the U.S. measurement standards to the Metric System - is expected to be passed soon.

But even as the new conversion law awaits action by Congress, changes are already in the works or being made in federal agencies and in the private sector.

The weather service is ready with plans for temperatures in centigrade instead of the current fahrenheit scale. And in the not-to-distant future, radio and television weathermen will be reporting snow depth in centimeters and wind speed in kilometers.

GM, U.S. Steel and a number of other big manufacturers are converting parts of their assembly lines to metric measurements.

One of the large oil companies has experimented with gas pumps which ring up liters instead of gallons. And many

Soc. Security offers direct deposit plan

by Senator Jim Allen

Starting in September, Alabamians who receive monthly Social Security or Supplemental Security Income checks will be able to have their checks mailed directly to their banks or savings and loan associations for deposit to

This direct deposit program will be entirely voluntary but it offers many advantages to those participating in it. Many recipients enjoy the convenience of having their monthly checks deposited directly into a checking or savings account to save them the time now spent going to the bank and standing in line to cash or deposit their checks. The new system will also guard against loss or theft of checks from the mailbox -- an increasing problem throughout the country in cities and rural areas alike, and especially bad when people may be away from their homes when checks are delivered.

This direct deposit option is being offered to people in 11 other states at this time, and the program is already in effect in 23 Western states which served as pilot and test of the public's response to the program. Because of its success in those states, it will be extended to the rest of the country during this year.

According to information provided me by the Social Security Administration, people who want their Social Security and Supplemental Security Income checks to continue coming to their homes shouldn't do anything. Their checks will be delivered by the postman as in the

But people who want their checks mailed to a bank, savings bank, savings and loan association or similar institution, or to a Federal or State-chartered credit union of their choice, can easily arrange for it with a direct deposit authorization form.

Direct deposit information is being mailed with regular social security payments in September to Alabamians who get monthly benefits under its program and the direct deposit authorization form will be available at banks or savings and loan institutions.

Those whose checks are already being mailed to financial institutions should also make direct deposit arrangements with the special form.

Social Security plays an especially important role in the State of Alabama, paying $76 million each month to some 550,000 Alabamians. Nationwide the Social Security Administration issues 32 million checks each month with payments of almost $6 billion a month.

In offering this new voluntary direct deposit method of payment, the Social Security Administration is making available a program that could be of great benefit to all Social Security recipients.

But in the area of sports in particular, metric advocates say that most of the customary measurement units will stay the same even after conversion.

schools are routinely teaching the metric system to elementary students.

However, there is some strong opposition to conversion to the metric system. Many labor leaders, small businessmen and householders see no need for any changeover during this century. Thomas Hannigan - head of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Union -- predicts massive resistance. Hannigan professes that many skilled workers will lose jobs unless they can learn the metric system rapidly. He adds that many workers will be forced to make purchases of new metric tools before their old tools wear

On the other side of the argument, metric supporters say the traditional English system -- now in use in the U.S. - is cumbersome to deal with and should have been changed long ago.

Metric measures distance, weight, temperature and volume in multiples of ten.

The conversion to the metric system is not a new idea to lawmakers in Washington. For more than five years, there have been efforts in Congress to pass a conversion

Many major U.S. corporations -- especially those doing a large foreign business -- find it costly to produce one set of goods measured and advertised in feet and pounds while selling their goods overseas in metric.

Government officials acknowledge that the U.S. status as the only industrialized nation in the world not committed to conversion is the main reason for the congressional push toward the metric system.

The new 1975 conversion bill now before Congress appears headed toward passage after a house subcommittee dropped a ten- year conversion goal and softened some other language in the bill. The house action virtually eliminated the previously strong opposition from labor unions and small business.

The bill could be signed by President Ford before next winter. It would declare a U.S. policy of going metric. And it would create a 21- member board to coordinate the change, industry by industry.

Conversion to the metric system is completely voluntary. But an officially stated policy is expected to speed up the process.

As the U.S. prepares for the inevitable conversion to the metric system, American officials are modeling their conversion plans on the experiences of Australia and Canada. In both those countries, it was made clear from the start that the old system would disappear after a brief public education program.

However, although the Australian conversion appears to be going well, truckers there won a brief return to miles per hour on road signs after threatening a strike.

Perhaps the general attitude of Americans on conversion to metric can best be summed up by a housewife who said - after she was told that conversion is imminent - "I can see no reason in the world why I should have to learn that stuff,"

Social service plan to be discussed

Alabama's proposed new social service plan to be discussed by all interested citizens at a public hearing scheduled for July 30 has been moved from the Municipal Auditorium to Phillips High Auditorium 2316 - 7 Ave North in Birmingham, according to Mrs. Nell Fulton, Director of the Shelby County Department of Pensions and Security. The hearing will begin at 7 p.m.

The July 30 hearing will focus questions and answers on the services of the department, not on its assistance payments program. Day care and homemaker and protective services will likely come up for clarification.

Beware advertised earn-at-home plans

by Annie Laurie Gunter

Consumers should be extremely wary of I advertisements featuring earn- money- at-home plans. The advertisements often use promises of high profits to lure consumers to enlist in these programs. The ads have special appeal for young mothers interested in an opportunity to raise extra money while they're at home raising children, and for elderly consumers eager to supplement their social security or pension payments.

Some work-at-home programs are legitimate, but the Governor's Office of Consumer Protection wants Alabama consumers to realize that many earn- money- at-home schemes use fraudulent advertising and sale practices to victimize consumers. Often, advertisements appearing in newspapers or magazines request a small payment for information about earning money at home. Consumers responding to these ads frequently receive only materials promoting more printed information about earning at home. Often you are offered the chance to buy this informational material for a bargain price of only $10 or $15, but consumers who send money for this information often discover that they must spend an additional $40 to $50 for supplies needed for the project.

In one type of earn-at-home scheme, a company sells consumer supplies to use in preparing products to be sold back to the company which sold the supplies. The catch is that these products must meet certain company "standards" before the consumers can sell them to the company. The company can simply claim that the finished products don't meet these "standards" and refuse to buy them from the consumer. The consumer is stuck both with the products, often handicrafts, which no one is especially anxious to buy, and with the bill for the materials used in creating these white elephants. In many work- at- home plans, consumers learn the hard way that no matter how much time and effort they invest in the plan, it is difficult, if not impossibly, to earn the profits promised in the advertisements.

The Governor's Office of Consumer Protection advises all prospective customers to thoroughly investigate any work- at- home plan before investing any time or money. Consumers who have been tricked or cheated through such schemes should contact their local postal inspector in charge of mail fraud violations or the Governor's Office of Consumer Protection at 138 Adams Avenue, Montgomery, Alabama 36130. Consumers who need help with this or any consumer problem can call freeof-charge 1-800-392-5658 on a toll-free hotline.

By the middle of the summer I guess you could say we were pretty well stuck on each other -- Rebecca Joiner and Mary Walker and me.

But that was around a dozen years ago, and time has a way with folks, especially old folks with store-bought teeth and wide parts in the hair and wrinkles that look like bantam scratches in deep mud.

But you never know -- or do you. That's where the goody is hidden in our tale.

It was a Sunday morning and I was sitting in church. I think every other Methodist in town was in church that Sunday too. There was enough room between me and Garvin Baker for one more person. And when pretty Rebecca Joiner came in that's the seat she took.

How did I feel? How would you feel if a young lady as pretty as Rebecca Joiner sat down by you with a dozen young fellows sitting close by.

I suppose that would be the end of my story except for one thing. On the way out I overheard somebody say: "I guess Rebecca will start a little earlier next Sunday. I think she got the last seat in the house."

Fitts said the old building is of "high architectural significance," and definitely worth saving. He gave three reasons that the building now used as the Columbiana City Hall, should be saved. First, he said the date is significant. "Not many public buildings this old still survive in Alabama," The building was started in 1854.

Second, he said the fact there are two courthouses in the same city - one dating from the mid 19th century and the other from the early 20th century gives Columbiana an unusual advantage from a historic point of view.

Third, he said the fact that the building is brick makes it significant in historic interest.

A street Vega sired by Cosworth, out of Chevrolet En-

What's unique about this special Vega is of course the engine itself. Basically, it's the Vega aluminum alloy fourcylinder block with a special forged steel crankshaft, a shortened stroke (reducing displacement from 140 to 122 cubic inches), special impact-forged pistons and, most important, the double overhead-cam, 16-valve cylinder headtwo inlet and two exhaust valves per combustion chamber.

The Cosworth engine is a precision-built beauty that develops 41% more horse-power than the base Vega engine. Yet it weighs about 15 pounds less and is still economical to operate. It's also a highly efficient engine that requires fewer supplementary emission control devices than other Vega engines.

Not all Chevrolet dealers are Vega Cosworth dealers. So there are 48 Chevrolet mobile service vans dotted around the country, each commanded by a man who knows the inside of the Vega Cosworth. So, you'll have a "pit crew" in

Dr. Elliott will be remembered by county wide friends in Shelby County

Dr. W. E. Elliott, president where he served as principal of of the Alabama Institude for Shelby County High School the Deaf and Blind, was elected and later, as Superintendent of top Rotary official for his Education before accepting the position he now holds in Talladega County.

Kristy Parrish, daughter of recent graduate of Jeff State. She received the degree of Associate in Applied Science, Medical Laboratory Technology and is currently employed in the laboratory at Druid City Hospital in Tuscaloosa. Almost anytime during the day now, should you be walking in and around the site where the new City Hall is fast going up-up-up toward completion, you will see citizens standing and talking about the long needed improvement in our municipal facilities, and with pride they are pointing toward this new and commodious building as the answer to all our present and future needs. Mayor Bolton and his councilmen have planned wisely and well the beautiful new City Hall building - and, if all goes as expected -- in August -- or September a brief program will likely be arranged followed by a chance to tour Columbiana's newest and most worthwhile municipal addition.

The majority of people in Columbiana are reportedly against spending money on on the Oland D. Smiths for a trying to restore the old courthouse building when the City Fathers move out - They believe this age old structure Mrs. Calvin Powell, Mark, has long ago outlived its Karen and Lea Ann of usefulness. It certainly furnishes no beauty spot! It does continue to furnish a traffic hazard; and if we have Johnny Powell and daughter been informed correctly -- it Dale of Lawton, Oklahoma, has been previously condemned by some highly qualified engineers who were here to inspect it several months ago.

It has been reported that a recent visit from some engineer disagreed with the former inspection and he thought, with proper expenditure of several thousand dollars the Mr. and Mrs. Bill Parrish, is a building could be restored and possibly become a "tourist attraction." This might be a possibility if one is more interested in historic relics than falling in step with the unprecedented leap: forward Shelby County is making today. Tearing down this building and substituting something more in keeping with this century, seems to this writer, would not only be more practicable -- but certainly far more pleasing to "tourists" or whomever should decide to make us a visit. However this is only my personal opinion.

Mayor Bolton will likely put this matter before the people of Columbiana and allow them to have a "say so" on this highly controversial matter. There is one thing certain, as long as this building stands where it is -- (before it tumbles voluntarily or falls under the blows of the wrecker -- ) it will continue, obviously to be a traffic problem -- and, as some citizens think, it will also continue to be an impediment to further beautifying the rather drab entrance into the City of Columbiana.

To reach Cahaba, drive into Selma on Broad Street and turn west on Dallas Avenue, which is also Highway 22. Follow the highway for about eight miles to the Cahaba River. (New highway construction here has removed the signs.) Cross the Cahaba on the new bridge and take the first paved road to the left. The road is in good condition with clear yellow and white striping. After 3.3 miles the road deadends. Take a left turn and continue when the paving stops. There you are.

Viet refugees like Shelby County

by Nancy Duncan

Like most Vietnamese who fled their country during the Communist takeover, Vo Van An and his family are still becoming oriented to their new life, and while they find the situation baffling at times, they are also finding many friends to help them over some of the hurdles they face.

The six of them - An, his wife and four of their children - have recently moved into Greenpark South. Their sponsors are members of the Lakeside Baptist Church. Interestingly, they were handpicked for this assistance by the two- year- old daughter of Betty and Wray Pearce of Mrs. Pearce said that while vacationing at Ft. Walton Beach, Fla., she and her husband used the occasion to go to Eglin Air Force Base to check into the possibility of the church's sponsoring a refugee family.

As they toured the area, their daughter, Amy, noted an infant's whimpering. "Baby cry," she told her parents and with childish curiosity sought out the origin of the sound. This led to the introduction of the two families which, in turn, led to the sponsorship of the and finding a sponsor with not much delay has been marred by the fact that one of their children, an eight- year- old son, was left behind.

The lad was in the care of his grandmother when Mrs. An and the other children learned they were to be evacuated on an hour's notice. The boy and his grandmother could not be located, and since remaining in his country would have meant almost certain death for the former wing vice commander and his family. An felt he had no choice but get them out while he had the chance.

"It is very sad for us we leave our son," he said. "My wife most every night she cry.

When they left their country. Mrs. An and the four children were hustled into a transport plane with 360 evacuees. There were no seats. no food and no water on the first leg of their journey and the young mother had with her only a small bag containing supplies for the baby.

Col. An was not to leave for another two weeks and when the Viet Cong began their entry into Saigon, he left in the only means at his disposal, an abandoned airplane with no brakes. The fact that he maneuvered the plane safely to an American Air Force base in Thailand attests to his expert flying ability.

Before arriving at his destination, the plane ran out of gas and he made an emergency landing on a highway. His next big risk was to fill the tank with automobile fuel, a dangerous thing to do but under the circumstances, his only hope. since none other was available.

He and six other men he flew out of Vietnam arrived safely in Thailand and from there he was dispatched to Camp Pendleton, where he was

by Don Wasson

MONTGOMERY - There is a decided change in the operation of state government when the governor is forced to go to statewide television to plead for his proposals to finance operations for the coming year.

It wasn't too long ago that the rule, "What George Wallace wants, George Wallace gets," but that attitude on the part of the state legislature has been changing and the current lawmaking body appears to be as free of gubernatorial control as any such body in recent years.

One thing being overlooked in the current squabble between the governor and the Alabama Education Association is the public attitude toward reducing the educational slice of the state revenue pie and devoting more money to other facets of government.

As pointed out here recently, education receives 46.27 per cent of all revenues disbursed in this state. And one per cent of the $2.2 billion total disbursements is a whopping $22 million.

The public needs to make some decisions this year -are there other areas of government which should be better funded? Are we paying more of our total wealth on education than we should? Which is more important -quality education of our children, protection of the health and welfare of the people, care for the mentally ill, protection of life and limb, highways, or what?

There is little doubt that the public would vote, on any given day, to devote the largest amount of its tax monies to education. But is 46.27 per cent too much? Could education do an adequate job on just 44.27 per cent?

If education actually needs 46.27 per cent of the state revenues to provide quality education, are we then willing to accept new state levies - on gasoline, on beer and whiskey, on cigarettes, or in other areas to bolster the finances of prisons, mental health, Medicaid and other services?

It has been generally conceded tha the basic flaw in the state's revenue system is that there is not enough local support of education in many areas of the state, causing the state to have to spend a disproportionate amount of its revenues on education.

Time and again various cities and counties have voted down any increase in their school tax assessments, knowing that the state will pick up the tab.

So, statewide, public opinion on school financing has not been sampled and the feeling is growing that public opinion would probably be more in sympathy with the governor's plan to divert education monies to other purposes than ever before.

Contributing to this is the general public dissatisfaction with public education - the feeling that the quality of education has decreased over the past several years and that only teacher salaries have been improved.

More and more people are coming to realize that quality education is not necessarily a result of larger appropriations each biennium.

The Alabama Education Association has of late exhibited much, much political muscle, capitalizing on its success in 1974 of helping to finance the campaigns of numerous members of the legislature.

But the feeling on Capital Hill is that AEA may be guilty of overreach, and that the public doesn't like the idea of any one pressure group telling the legislature how to shape the budgets for general government.

Public reaction to the governor's televised address last week will be watched with much interest, and particularly by members of this legislature.

Never before, perhaps, has it been so important for the members of the legislature to know how their constituents feel on an issue. They know how the AEA feels. They know how the governor feels. What they don't know is how YOU feel.

this successful program by reducing the amount of Federal gasoline tax revenues going into the Trust Fund. Under the President's proposal, of the four cents Federal gasoline tax now going into the Highway Trust Fund, one cent only would continue to be earmarked for the Trust Fund for interstate roads; two cents would be funneled into the General Fund of the U.S. Treasury; and the remaining one cent would be repealed in any State which increases its own gas tax by one cent, and there would be no restriction on how this money could be spent.

Today Alabamians and those traveling through our State can ride on more than 700 miles of Alabama interstate roads which have been completed at a cost of some $1.2 billion, 90 percent of which has come from the Federal Highway Trust Fund.

highway remaining to be built with a cost estimate of some

In addition to the Interstate system, some 22,000 miles of primary, secondary and urban roads have been built in Alabama since 1956 at a cost of some $2.3 billion,

The President's proposal would mark the beginning of the end of the Highway Trust Fund by making highway tax revenues available for any and all purposes that Congress might dream up. Destruction of this highly successful program would be a grave breach of faith with those who have been paying the bills for highway construction, and would be a great disservice to the orderly long-range

by Milton Bird

There was no way to tell what she was thinking. She was like that. Her gaze would stray off and play in the pines or the tall sycamores and she would sit still and let it frolic while Betsy bawled and the hens cackled and the little grass sparrows chirped in the weeds. Once, when she was like this, a little cloud popped up inthe south and another and another until there was a big cloud and a flash of lightning struck a tall pine behind the lot. But she didn't notice.

But her gaze would come back after a while and she'd make a little noise in her throat and the words would tumble out, like water over a rock.

"Folks have got the notion that everything's easy," she said. "Folks not old enough to remember when things

A little hen bird tiptoed out of the thicket and stopped in the edge of the yard. She moved her head back and forth, looking with her bright eyes. Behind her trailed a dozen little ones, lined up one behind the other, like pins in

"It's not the same with her either. She used to have corn and peas, but there's only grass seed now and tiny black crickets that can hide in the wind.'

The hen bird passed on through the yard with the little ones behind, their heads held high and their bright

'But it's not the same with folks," she said. They've got more than they ever had. And they take it for granted, like it was brought to 'em on a platter by their folks ahead of them and their folks ahead of them But it wasn't. Not by a long way.'

Far off a bob white whistled. The hen bird made a little tinkling sound in the thicket.

"I heard from Louisa White today. She's ailing. And it got me to thinking about folks. How they believe all this was handed down. I remember when Louisa was young and the children were little. They lived on those rocky hills on the river where a jimson weed wouldn't grow over two inches tall. You know how she raised those children? All thirteen of 'em? She'd leave 'em at home and walk out o' those hills and pick peas for folks on shares and take her part home to feed her bunch. Some days she'd plow and take her pay in corn, before the corn was ripe, and make a soft bread out of it. But she never gave up and she never lost faith and she never stopped loving. She raised all thirteen of 'em and now, at 79, with thirteen grown children and 38 grand children, Louisa White is ailing.

The thicket was quiet now. Somewhere out there the bobwhite and the hen bird and their little ones were busy.

"Nope, we didn't get this far by folks sitting around and holding their hands out. We got here because folks like Louisa White worked till it hurt and sacrificed till it hurt. Thousands of 'em, all the way from Plymouth Rock.'

She got up and stretched her arms. "You'll see Louisa Thursday, when you're over that way. Tell her I said howdy and that things are just tolerable over here."

Football schedules set

Reporter Staff Comment

Football season is just around the corner, despite the hot summer weather. Although it seems early to begin thinking of the nippy fall evenings at the high school football fields, the schools are ready with their gridiron schedules.

You can expect fast and furious action as the 1975-76 teams try to surpass the records of last year.

One change this year is that Shelby County High School has moved up to the 3-A rank, along with Thompson High School. Vincent, Chelsea, Montevallo will compete in the 2-A category, and Calera is in the 1-A division.

Shelby Academy and Coosa Valley Academy can be expected to excel in private school competition.

SUPPORTING A BOAT

When a boat is in the water, the hull is supported over the entire bottom surface by an even pres-sure. But on a trailer, the weight concentrated in a few areas This makes the trailer you choose for your boat a most important item, say the boating authorities at Mercury outboards. Boaters should understand what type of support can be used and how best to use it, since even the best trailer cannot give the overall support found when the boat is in the water. It's worth the effort to become familiar with the many models of the product of the first which is on the market to find which is best for a particular boat. A too hort or too long trailer, or one hat does not provide ample support in the right places, can cause erious damage to the hull.

BACKING OUT

With space at most docking areas at a premium, backing a boat out of a slip usually requires careful maneuvering. According to the boating authorities at Mercury outboards, one of the best ways to back out in close quarters is to make use of a stern line. It should be about two-thirds the length of the boat and secured to an outer piling at the corner of an outer piling at the corner of the slip. First, back the boat down until the line becomes taut, then turn the wheel to bring the bow clear of the slip. The stern line helps to pivot the hull. When the boat has cleared the slip, free the stern line. One final tip: When backing out, pay attention to the wind and current and compensate for them

Personal mention

The engagement of Lera Jean Davis to Ronald Fulton Roddam is announced by her parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Earl Davis in Birmingham.

Grandparents of the brideto-be are Mrs. Lera Haynes Holcombe, formerly of Columbiana and Calera and the late Jasper Holcombe Jr. of Calera.

The wedding is planned for Aug. 9 and will be solemnized in the Shades Mountain Baptist Church.

The women in the Columbiana United Methodist Church are compiling a cook book. We understand it will be on sale when they announce the date of their annual bazaar. The new addition to the church is fast nearing completion and soon this extra space will be filled with class rooms- kindergarten recreation facilities etc.

Eighty-two boys and girls have registered for Day Camp which is being held at Rolling Hills this week. A faculty of 18 adults are accompanying the grades 1-6 bringing the total number of people involved to over 100.

Dr. and Mrs. John Martin and their daughter Virginia Martin of Auburn, spent Saturday in Columbiana as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Elliott. They were en route to Sylacauga to attend a family reunion with his mother Mrs. harles Martin who observed he passing of her 80th pirthday anniversary last Sunday.

But only for customers who actually use more.

Here's how it works. For the first 1230 kilowatt-hours (kwh) you use in your home each month, the cost per kwh stays the same the year 'round. Each kilowatthour you use over 1230 kwh costs you 1.1¢ from November through

The seminar was sponsored jointly by base operator Gulf Aviation Co., and the FAA.

Rick Harman, chief pilot at Gulf Aviation, introduced Regional FAA Safety Inspector Ralph Edwards, who gave a 50-minute accident prevention talk. Complicated statistics and slide illustrations highlighted the lecture.

All pilots and their friends in the area were invited to the third annual safety seminar, and 81 were present, filling all the available chairs in the main

Edwards' talk was followed by a twenty-minute refreshment break

The second half of the program got underway with Birmingham air traffic safetyman Jim Doyle playing a 25 - minute tape of an actual emergency ground control assist of a disoriented pilot.

Following the tape and Mr. Doyle's comments, a drawing for door prizes was held.

Will Gregory of Birmingham won a pair of Rayban sunglasses, and Lee Bass received a flight guide, with an airport directory.

MONTGOMERY -- The tiff between Gov. George C. Wallace and the Alabama Education Association over the sanctity of the Special Education Trust Fund (SETF) has developed into a rather nasty brawl and it appears that the governor is, moving, at long last, to curb the power of the AEA'S Dr. Paul Hubbert.

He summoned newsmen and women into his office last week to "answer questions" but it was apparent from the opening question that the governor was using the state press to again try to put the AEA in its proper place.

There can be little doubt that the AEA's rewrite of the general fund budget, dutifully approved by the House Ways and Means Committee, was a political gaffe. The public, which understands little about the legislature, and apparently cares less, was nevertheless quick to realize that the AEA had stretched its boardinghouse reach just a little

The kid gloves came off and Wallace was emphatic in his criticisms of the teacher organization which has consistently lobbied for added benefits for teachers without seeming to care one whit about the quality of education being offered to the children of this state.

Wallace, in asking the legislature to repeal the 4 per cent tax on utility bills, pointed out that the levy was made in 1969 at the insistence of the AEA. He also took a thinly-disguised poke at his 1971 gubernatorial adversary, Gov. Albert Brewer, in pointing out that the tax was imposed in Brewer's term.

All that aside, the fact remains that Alabama is either going to have to impose new taxes, or divert some of its resources from the SETF to General Fund services.

Wallace first proposed outright diversion, and when the AEA flexed its muscle, getting its General Fund appropriation bill through Ways and Means instead of the governor's, George Wallace showed the teachers' lobby that he still knows how to play the game.

His next proposal, delivered in person to the legislature, was to repeal the utility tax, which goes to education, and to impose a gasoline tax increase plus some business license increases, which would bolster the Highway Fund and the General Fund.

That might appear confusion at first glance, but it has the effect of diverting $50 million in education monies to the other areas of state government which need money so

Wallace has succeeded in making the AEA appear as a money-grabbing, self-serving special interest, and indeed, in the past several years, the AEA's interest has been centered on higher teachers salaries, better pensions and more time

And up until this current legislative impasse, the governor's attitude toward the teacher lobby has been tolerant, his politician's reasoning telling him that it doesn't pay to pick fights with the teachers of the state.

His televised appearance before the legislature last week, and his free-swinging conference with the news people are clear evidence that he isn't afraid of the teacher lobby any more. The fact that he is in his last term, for a while at least, probably strengthened his determination to prevail in the diversion of funds fight.

The teachers are in a rather weak position, considering the vast advances in their pay and benefits program over the last two Wallace terms and considering the fact that even with the diversion, the proposed Wallace budget included a healthy pay raise and other benefits.

Fighting the diverson has put them in the position of being the greedy kid, who doesn't want to share his lollipops with anyone.

Tax-swap scheme may save you $3.60

Governor George Wallace's new revenue-swapping plan would save you a little money if you're an average householder with one car in the family.

But if you have more than one car in your family...or if you travel a lot . . . the plan might end up costing you more taxes than you would save.

But, again, if you live in an all-electric home with a light bill running about 75-dollars a month or more, you more than likely would come out ahead. You would save more from repeal of the four per cent utility tax than you would pay in higher gasoline taxes.

Wallace has asked the legislature to do away with the sales tax on utility bills enacted in 1969. The proposal would take some 50-million dollars away from education annually because the tax is earmarked for the schools.

At the same time, the Governor has proposed to change the state gasoline tax from a flat seven-cents per gallon to a percentage of the sale price. The immediate effect would be to increase the tax two-cents per gallon.

That would bring in about 38-million dollars a year.

The tax would be based on the wholesale price of gasoline which now averages about 39-cents per gallon. To produce the equivalent of an additional two-cents per gallon would require a tax of 23 to 24 per cent on the wholesale price.

Alabama Petroleum Council statistics show the average car in Alabama uses about one-thousand gallons of gas a year. An extra tax of two-cents per gallon would cost 20-dollars a year, or one-dollar-and-66-cents a month.

If you have two cars in the family, it would be more. Meanwhile the average householder's utility bills run between 50 and 55 dollars a month. That includes lights, gas, water and telephone, all subject to the present four per

Let's say it averages 50-dollars. If the utility tax is removed, you'll save two-dollars a month.

Suppose the light bill on an all-electric home runs 75-dollars a month. That would make your utility bills run close to 90-dollars, figuring ten for the telephone and five for water.

On 90-dollars, the utility tax is three-dollars-and-60-cents. That's what you would save under those circumstances if the tax were repealed.

'Not that much money'

Cutbacks forecast if AEA budget passes

Governor Wallace's fiscal experts say there is a "very real possibility" that proration lies ahead if the Legislature adopts the budget recommended by the Alabama Education Association.

Proration is an across-the-board cutback in the appropriations for every department and agency whose money comes out of the state's general fund.

The budget suggested by the AEA for the next fiscal year beginning October first is for 172 million dollars in appropriations. AEA is estimating that the taxes which go into the general fund will produce 174 million dollars in

But state budget officer Jake Jordan has warned that there may not be that much money. He estimates that taxes will produce only about 163 million . . . or nine million less than the amount AEA would appropriate.

If the Legislature goes along with the AEA recommendation, here are the next steps:

Many counties struggling to meet reevaluation date

The State Revenue Department says almost half of Alabama's 67 counties are having problems with their court-ordered property reevaluation, and three of them will not be finished by the deadline, January 1, 1977.

Shelby County's reevaluation program is apparently

Revenue Commissioner Charles Boswell said in his progress report filed in federal court that in the past six months, the department has had "considerable difficulty in a number of counties with only a few of our contractors."

He referred to the appraisers hired to make the property reevaluation, and said he has found the best way to deal with those who are lagging in their work is to cancel

The state is under a court order to reevaluate property in every county so ad valorem taxes can be

Boswell said Montgomery, Calhoun and Marshall counties will not complete their reappraisals until after the

Former county resident reminisces with Reporter

Letter to Editor:

Thanks sincerely, Mrs. Macie Sutton 19819 Hemingway St. Canoga Park, Calif. 91306

The budget officer must, by law, take a close look at the budget when the new fiscal year begins and determine if, in his judgment, the Legislature has appropriated more money than taxes will bring in.

If he concludes that there won't be enough revenue to meet all of the appropriations, he must notify the Governor that proration is necessary.

By law, the state cannot spend more money in any one year than it takes in. That was put into the law to prevent deficit financing.

If proration is required, here's how it works:

Suppose the budget officer finds that the revenue will amount to no more than 163 million dollars even though the Legislature has appropriated 172 million dollars. That means the general fund will run nine million dollars short, or five- point- two per cent below the total amount

Each department's appropriation would then be cut by five- point- two per cent. Medicaid, for example, with a proposed budget of about 52 million dollars, would have nearly three million dollars cut from its one- year total.

Paradoxically, even though the budget officer says there won't be enough money in the general fund to meet the 172 million dollar budget, Wallace wants to spend even more . . . 40 million dollars more.

But he would do it by using money now earmarked for education, so that no proration would be necessary from the general fund.

That's what the budget fight with the AEA is all about. The school teachers . . . and apparently a majority of the Legislature . . . are dead set against using school money for anything but the schools.

AEA, the teachers' chief lobby, contends that there will be enough money to cover their proposed 172 million dollar budget and avoid proration.

Wallace crime plan introduced to solons

Governor George Wallace's tough new crime control program made its appearance last week in both houses of the legislature. It increases the minimum sentences for more serious crimes and, in some instances, rules out any parole,

Wallace outlined the program in a speech to the legislature. He said he is tired of the people being slaves of

One bill would require anyone convicted of first degree murder to serve at least 20 years before he could be paroled. The minimum now is ten years. That bill also would prohibit the granting of a parole to anyone convicted of murder for the second time.

The other bills would:

Half of our country onwelfare by 2000?

The departing Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has issued a dire warning that, if the current trend continues, one out of every two Americans will be on welfare by the year 2000.

"If social programs continue growing for the next two decades at the same pace they have in the last two," that will be the result, said Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger in his last major speech as head of HEW. "Half of the American people will be working to support the other half." His speech was before San Francisco's Common-

Weinberger noted that when he joined the federal government in 1970 the federal budget was $196.6 billion. Today it is $258.9 billion - an increase of 83 percent. HEW itself, with a budget of $110 billion, accounts for nearly a third of that amount.

The Secretary disputes those who argue that the nation's gross national product also has increased considerably, so the federal budget increase is not so serious. The federal spending trend, noted Mr. Weinberger, has shifted away from traditional areas such as defense, in favor of programs that "reduce the remaining freedom of individuals and lessen the power of other levels of government. This shift ... has transformed the task of ,... aiding life's victims from a private concern to a public

Continuing, the Secretary said, "We are creating a massive welfare state that has intruded into the lives and personal affairs of our citizens," adding that the uncoordinated federal response to the needs of the poor, the sick, and the uneducated "is quite literally threatening to bring us to national insolvency."

Cooper lacks excuse for winning trophy

by Fred Cooper

It was long after the awards banquet of the University of Montevallo Golf and Tennis Tournament and almost everybody had gone home. I was, however, still sitting on the fender of my car looking quizzically at my trophy when a friend walked by.

"Hey, Fred", he yelled, "how are you going to write a column about winning something?" I had to admit I didn't know.

I've never had to do it before.

This tennis trophy completely destroys my entire style of writing that's been developed over the years. Failure to win at the tournament, not being named Poet Laureatte or columnist of the year, being passed over for UM Alumnus of the Year, all of these things have taught me painfully how to accept defeat with grace and a series of excuses. This win puts a whole new slant on things and I'm not sure

It helps, of course, that I didn't win the first place title in my division. Paul Jones of the UM bookstore took that, beating me soundly in the championship match. I was worried for awhile, though, that I might go all the way after an unbelievalbe morning of play.

The competition started on an unusual note. There were all of these people out there who looked like good tennis players that I didn't know. One of them will be my first opponent, I thought, and I'll be eliminated right off. It didn't work out that way.

My first opponent, as fate would have it, was Jim Natale of UM who I have played before and have lost to. Jim was hitting really well, too. That was his downfall. Jim was hitting so well that the ball carried back to the baseline each time and instead of running me all over the court like he usually does, I just stood in one spot and returned his shots. With Jim playing some of his best tennis, I beat him by not having to move.

My next opponent was a guest of one of the alums. He walked out on the court carrying a blue canvas traveling bag with all of his equipment in it. He pulled a towel out and said that he couldn't play without the towel. Then he put on three sweat bands, two for his wrists and one for his forehead. I excused myself briefly and went to the sidelines to see if I could get him disqualified for not being an alumnus. Anybody that takes that much preparation has to

I got laughed at for my efforts to remove him from competition. It turned out not to matter. He was playing in his first tournament and froze. He didn't win a game and I did nothing but stand there. He was too tight to hit it over

So I went into the finals in early afternoon with Paul Jones having won sixteen games and losing only one. All morning long I'd been expecting to get beat. Now I was confident. All I had to do was to keep playing the way I had up til now, standing around and occasionally returning

That's exactly what I did, too. Stood around and occasionally returned the ball. Unfortunately Paul was getting the points instead of me. In fact, at one spot in the game, he asked me if I knew we were palying and not just

I did manage, to win two games while he was winning the necessary eight. I did more than that, though. I salvaged my reputation, even if I did win a trophy.

There's a way to do anything. Maybe you are as old as I am and haven't found out how, but there's a way. Years ago I tried for two years to make up my mind that there was a way to dance with Jimmy Polk. I knew it could be done because Fred Harrison was doing it, and Frank Fulton, and Rip Cox. And then one night somebody spiked the punch and dancing with Jimmy was as easy as falling out of a tree. And I knew there just had to be a way to out wrestle James Longshore. I tried it for two summers and finally did it. After James had broken an arm and sprained a leg when he fell off a hay wagon.

But that was 50 years ago, and time ain't no piddler, no matter how many times you'd like to scotch her. You can stop to tie your shoe and look up and time will be halfway up Mount Dixie heading for the river.

But I've got a story to tell, about how to do something. And if I sit here dreaming I'll miss my deadline and Hylant Armstrong and Ralph Sears will be on me like two ducks on one bug. Along with a lot of other folks who sort o' look for this piece every week.

Spring had come and gone and summer was slipping away and fall was two miles the other side of Mrs. Martin's store on the Chelsea road. Ed Benson had planted his beans and tomatoes and Okra and Mrs. Benson had filled two freezers. And no matter how high prices soared they'd be sitting on third base with just one out and a whole flock of good hitters coming to bat.

Ed had planted a late corn patch where his spuds had been, and the rains had found it, and it looked like his corn was wanting to look over his apple trees and see what was on the other side. At six feet it tasseled and at seven feet the shoots came along with silks as silky as Jenny's hair. At the end of one row he had built a little box-like house with

by Marcia M. Sears

At the party celebrating the 20th anniversary of the Seaman Timber Company, last veek, Mrs. Frances Cleveland aid with feeling, "This ompany has made a world of lifference around here."

She was referring to the number of people the company reates for others.

She was also talking about pallets used extensively in we development of the timber dustry in Shelby and Bibb ounties over the last 20 years and how it has improved the tandard of living of hundreds f families.

The Mount Era Hunting Club is sponsoring a meeting that will be devoted to the conservation of Shelby County's deer population. The meeting is scheduled for Thursday, August 7, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the Camp Branch Community Center The center building is located at the intersection of U.S. Highway 31 and Shelby County Road 26.

Highlight of the program will be a narrated slide presentation on the movements, activity and behavior of white-tailed deer bucks. This part of the program will be presented by Auburn Wildlife Management graduate and researcher, Keith D. Guyse.

Guyse will tell members of the Mount Era Club and their guests of the research he has conducted concerning deer bucks. He is expected to review the results of his experiments that have involved attaching radio transmitters on white-tailed deer bucks and

Dr. Maree Blackwell of Valleydale Road is one of the lucky ones. A professor of education at UAB, she has traveled extensively and to truly far away places. Her travels have taken her to such places as recently, to Russia.

She is a deeply religious Americans had a hard time small, pretty dish, a portion of So rare are mushrooms, Tuesday morning she met with a group of interested residents at the home of Julia Richardson to talk about her trip to Russia and to show slides of her visit there. The slides were so long in arriving she feared they had been confiscated. Happily, they were only misplaced.

She noted that all women wore boots, even at night, but no slacks as we do. A fur hat is a must, for without one, one's ears might very well freeze. Fur hats are quite expensive, starting at around $50.

The Americans arrived bare-headed, but before long they all were sporting brand-new fur hats.

The slides she showed us When her plane landed in were of very beautiful buildings, but it was as though we were seeing them through a heavy fog, which Dr. Blackwell explained was a snowy mist. It created a most eerie effect.

I was curious about all the large, lovely, and ornately-designed cathedrals explained that these were built by the czars of Russia before the Revolution. > Culture abounds in Russia. While there she attended a performance of "Swan Lake," superbly performed as only the Russians can. She went on to see several other ballets.

Being the Christian that she is, she asked about a Christian church. She was told there was one in Moscow. She arrived at 8:30. the service was to begin at 10:30. yet the pews were already packed. By service time there was standing room only. These were all Russians, save for a few tourists.

This church, a "Baptist," was not allowed to sponsor any youth work at all. A straight sermon was all that was permitted. She noted many people jotting down notes and assumed it was their only way to record the gospel. She still remembers the gloriously beautiful music of the choir.

This was Dr. Blackwell's first time behind the Iron Curtain, yet she felt no sense of apprehension, since the group she was with knew where they were at all times.

She was the only one of the group to actually visit in a Russian home, and this only by accident.

While sitting in the hotel lobby, she struck up a conversation with a Russian lady, who, succumbing to Maree's lovely personality, invited her to join her the next day for dinner, and she Osmose K-33 Pressure-Treated Lumber is the lifetime lumber ... termite-proof, rot-proof, care-free in all construction applications. With it, you build near the ground without termite shields . . . sink posts underground without special coatings ... build in the open weather without painting. Saturated throughout under 125 pounds of chemical pressure, Osmose K-33 lumber lets you forget costly termite inspections, hitand-miss soil poisoning, repairs and replacements of damaged wood. It costs only pennies more than untreated lumber; yet saves hundreds of dollars over the long haul.

Where do they come from and why do they come? What are their pleasures and what are their problems in this new, non- urban yet not quite suburban area?

To those of us who have lived here for a time the pleasures and problems are evident, but what of these new arrivals from out of the county and state? What are their first impressions and emotions upon moving to Shelby County?

I was mulling this around in my head one day recently while waiting for my comb-out in the beauty shop. The thought was triggered by the entrance of an attractive blond lady who, upon collapsing in an adjacent seat, exclaimed with a distinctly non-southern accent, "My heavens! Is it always so hot here?"

Several of us agreed that it was an unusually hot and muggy day, and although we have our share, most days are not so bad. We reminded her that she was in the deep south in the middle of our summer.

"But don't you ever get adjusted to it?", she inquired anxiously. "Well, you either like hot weather or you don't," someone replied. It was evident that most of us didn't.

We've been hearing a lot lately about all those aerosal sprays we are using, and how they may be messing up our atmosphere.

That's one of those modern things that we never even imagined of back in the good ole days. Not only were such things as hair spray unheard of then, we never knew much about any kind of insecticides. Certainly, we never thought about any kind of spray for flying insects.

"What has four wheels and flies?," goes a modern riddle. The answer is, of course, "a garbage truck!"

Well, when I was growing up out in the country, we could have easily paraphrased it thusly: 'What has four legs and flies?" The answer would have been: "The dinner table.

Flies were a constant inthe-house Summer companion of all farm folks in those days before air conditioning and not-sogood window screens.

And every time we sat down to eat, the flies were right there with us. During everyday meals with the family, we just waved at the pesky critters now and then to sort of keep them shooed away from our food.

But when company came. we were a little more usually stationed by the table to wave a peach limb about over the table to keep the flies run off from the food while everybody else ate. Mrs. Essie Coleman says at her house they also used sassafras limbs for this purpose.

The only other weapon we had in our battle with flies in those days was sticky fly

Remember that stuff? It came in a small round cardboard container about the size of a snuff box. You opened it and out dangled a long strip of paper with the stickiest surface you ever saw. Any fly that happened to touch this was caught and trapped. Sometimes it came in sheets, which were laid on the table to catch unwary

Another common use which my mother made of peach limbs was for a "hickory." With the leaves stripped off, the supple young limbs applied vigorously to the bare legs of a disobedient child did more to straighten him out then all of today's modern psychiatry put together!

I'm pretty sure we would have a lot less juvenile rebellion and delinquency today if more parents would return to this time-tested practice of applying generous doses of "hickory

A number of Shelby County legislators, board of education members, principals, teachers and parents boarded a school bus Saturday morning to see firsthand some of the problems facing school operations in several parts of the county. The above is a partial list of situations they observed in buildings which are as much as 48 years old.

With Assistant Superintendent Vern Davis at the wheel of the bus, and some participants following by car, the group toured Thompson High, Helena Elementary, Columbiana Elementary and Vincent High.

With a low bid of 6.9887 percent interest, the firms of Hendrix, Mohr and Yardley; Birmingham Trust National Bank, Central Bank & Trust; W. Dobbs & Co., and the Merchants National Bank of Mobile appeared to win the bid when the bids for the $2,000,000 bond issue were opened by the County Commission Tuesday morning. Interest over the life of the bond issue will total $1,766,412.

Three other bids were received. The firms of First National Bank of Birmingham; Sterne, Agee & Leach; Hugo Marx and Berney Perry offered an interest rate of 7.0354.

The firm of White, Weld & Co., Associates of New York presented a bid of 7.333.

Plans are underway for the county to invest unused portions of the funds until the time they will be needed.

The architects say they will have complete construction plans in November. Allowing for time to advertise for bids, county officials estimate that construction will begin by February or March 1976. The preliminary plans for the new county facility were presented at public meetings earlier this year. The jail will feature living units of 8 cells each with a total of 75 cells available for prisoners in various categories.

It will be located in Columbiana and plans call for incorporating it with present county buildings into a "county campus" complex.

Commission names Jackson to staff

by Ralph W. Sears

Henry J. Jackson of Calera, a veteran of 25 years as an administrative executive with the Abex Corporation, has been appointed Administrative Assistant to the Shelby County Commission.

Jackson will assume his new office on Monday, August 25. The position with the Commission has been vacant since the resignation of W.

Robert Merrill in January. The announcement of Jackson's appointment was made Tuesday by the Commission. The announcement also stated, "Due to the present work load and the increasing demands to be occasioned by the erection of the new jail, the Commission concluded that the post should again be filled."

According to the Commission, Jackson has had thirty-five years experience in administration and evaluation of all types of industrial operations. For the past 18 years he has been with the Calera plant of the Abex Corporation.

"His experience in computerizing Abex corporate records will be considerable assistance in adapting county procedures to the county computer", according to the Commission.

The Commission announcement also stated, "Members were unanimous in their gratification at having a man with such an extensive background in business administration to join the staff of the County Commission."

Jackson is a native of Ashville, North Carolina. He was educated in the public schools of Ashville and has attended Brevard College, Brevard, N. C., Georgia Tech, the University of Houston, Georgia State University, the University of Alabama and Jefferson State Junior College.

Jackson retired from the Abex Corporation on January 31 of this year. On February 2 he joined the staff of Martin Marietta's Southern Cement operation at Roberta.

He is married to the former Elizabeth Miller of Ashville. The Jacksons have one son, Jerry Jackson, who is director of the Shelby-Chilton Mental Health Center and one granddaughter. For the past fifteen years Mrs. Jackson has been a teacher in the Calera Elementary School.

by Don Wasson

The apparent breakdown of the legislative process, and the apparent lack of any understanding, let alone cooperation, between the legislative and administrative branches, poses an interesting possibility in the elections of 1978.

The breakdown really began with the reapportionment of the 1967-71 legislature and a further realignment of seats in the elections last year.

It was furthered by the apparent lack of concern the administration had for state affairs during that period. The 1971-73 sessions of the legislature were marked by a complete lack of administration concern and guidance.

Gov. Wallace made much of the fact that in previous terms, he had been criticized for over -directing the legislature's actions and that he was simply giving them the independence they, and the state press, had been demand-

"If I interfere with the legislature, Y'all tell me I'm 'twisting arms'," the governor told newsmen time and again. "And if I let them alone, then Y'all cry about a 'lack of

The truth lies somewhere between the press complaints and the governor's self-righteous defense of his actions, or lack of actions.

As has been said so often in the past, in a one-party state, the direction of the legislature must come from the executive department. There is no party leadership - an "in" party and an "out" party, to keep each other honest and to develop programs and services.

Now, with Wallace in his last term - at least for awhile - it would seem that the time is right for a "slate" of candidates or a "ticket" of some kind, with candidates for governor and lieutenant governor and for places in the legislature, to run together, all pledged to a common program.

There are plenty of young and ambitious people qualified to seek office, and there is a vast resource of people who are totally dissatisfied with the way Alabama affairs are now being managed. Or more succinctly, perhaps, with the way Alabama affairs are NOT being managed.

The ticket, or slate, or whatever it might be called, would run as a ticket or slate in the Democratic primary. It would necessitate an unusually large operation - organization in each county, and the selection of the proper candidates in each county for every seat in the legislature.

Whoever gets the approval of the "movement," if it can be called that at this point, would pledge themselves to support of the proposed program which would have to be anchored to a firm program of legislative reform.

There would be no way to designate the "ticket" candidates on the primary ballot, of course. It would be the job of the movement and its organizers to make certain that those candidates who are "the ticket" are properly identified in the minds of the voters.

But somewhere in this state, there is a bright young man or woman who has the ability to put such a movement together. It will require more determination and personal sacrifice than any campaign in the past, but it can be done. If it is going to be done, the time to start is now.

Under the Courthouse Dome

The Farmers Home Administration office located in the Shelby County Courthouse will be closed August 20, 21, and 22, in order for the employees to attend a State Meeting in Mobile.

A Circuit Court jury last week awarded Mrs. R. G. Weaver of Wilsonville $35,250 for her property which is being condemned by the State Highway Department. The land is located adjacent to State Highway 25 in Wilsonville and is being sought by the highway department for the continuation of State Highway 145. Also known as the Charlie B. Cox Highway, Highway 145 is the route between Clanton and Wilsonville

Mrs. Weaver's property is the location of the proposed intersection of State Highways 25 and 145.

According to reports Mrs. Weaver's property had been appraised for $53,000. The state's offer was $16,000. Last week's court decision awarded Mrs. Weaver $35,250.

A lawsuit growing out of a double fatality accident that occured on February 16, 1973 was settled last week when a Circuit Court jury awarded Mrs. Martha Lovell of Wilsonville a total of $50,000.

The accident involved a passenger car and a coal truck. The truck was driven by Jack Donahoo of Harpersville. Mrs. Lovell's husband, David Lovell and her daughter Beth Lovell were passengers in the car and were killed in the accident that occured on State Highway 25 near Sterrett and Vandiver.

Mrs. Lovell brought three suits against Donahoo, one in her own behalf, one as administratrix in the estate of her daughter and one as administratrix for the estate of her husband. Mrs. Lovell sought $200,000 in each of the three cases. By pre -agreement the three cases were consolidated.

The court awarded Mrs. Lovell $48,000 in her own case and $1,000 each in the two cases where she was acting as administratrix of the estates.

The Shelby County Commission has initiated two programs designed to streamline financial and personnel practices. Dent, Baker, and McDowell, a firm of certified public accountants has been retained to suggest improvements in the system of accounting and records. Recommendations of this group will be submitted to William Dillard, Chief, Department of Public Examiners in late August for approval.

The second improvement involves a study by a team from the State Personnel Department to review job classifications, job descriptions and personnel practices presently followed by the Commission. A modified civil service program is now in effect for most county employees. Commissioners hope the Shleby County legislative delegation will obtain passage of an amendment to the existing law that will extend the civil service program to county personnel not now covered.

As auto tag-time approaches, clerks and secretaries are busily engaged preparing for Oct. 1st, which is the first day tags may be purchased. However, you may follow instructions provided in the Probate Office for purchasing the license tag by mail and expedite this annual procedure.

The criminal division of the Shelby County Circuit Court will begin next Monday morning at 10 a.m. Judge H. Sharbutt will preside over the trial by jury of the 91 cases on the docket.

Sam Harris and Bill Mitchell of the State Auditing Department in Montgomery are in Columbiana this week. They are examining the records in the Tax Assessor's office.

We will return to the regular programming shortly, but first, join us for that patriotic pause that we know you've all been waiting for-The Cooper Bicentennial

It usually doesn't take any longer than a minute to make up your mind about my column or so I've been told. Although it's a little known fact, the name Cooper has been synoymous with historical achievement throughout the great and illustrious career of our country.

For example, when George Washington stood before his ragged troops and announced the end of the Revolutionary War, it was Great-Uncle Oscar )Carrot-Head) Cooper who immediately ripped off his stripes and decked a sergeant that had been giving him a hard time.

And who can forget the famous Light Bulb Larry Cooper, a distant cousin, who made an unsuccessful attempt to steal Rhett Butler's house as Rhett, was on his way to join the Confederate forces after the burning at Atlanta. "If I'd known he was that big," Light Bulb explained later, "I'd've never tried it. The light weren't too good." When Teddy Roosevelt ordered the charge up San Juan Hill, John B. (Fight 'Em In The Streets) Cooper told the great military leader, "Why do I always have to be the one to ride up the hill Let Jones ride up the hill sometime. I'm not the only guy in this outfit, you know!"

A special spot must go to Randolph (Mean and Lean) Cooper, who, as the world watched Hitler march across Poland and Austria, quickly estimated the length of time it would take for America to be called on to stop the advances of the merciless Germans and started trying to figure out a painless way to puncture an eardrum.

As American soldiers slogged through the mud of Korea, it was Uncle Harvey (Headknocker) Cooper who wrote the shipping orders sending them into the fray while red-lining his own name every time it appeared. He also folded blankets. "It was a dangerous job," Headknocker used to tell us at Family Reunions. "Never knew what might be in them blankets."

And while Americans crawled through the swamps and booby traps of Vietnam, Cousin Harold (Toughie) Cooper complained about having to go on photo assignments at his Florida air base because it was hot outside. "Besides," he wrote me, "I got a nasty sunburn riding my motorcycle to the beach."

And in keeping with the great tradition of fighting men in the Cooper family, when the Pueblo was seized, I took immediate and decisive action even though I was out of the service. I wrote my congressman pointing out that I had already served my time and was in the inactive reserve. We will now return to the regularly scheduled program.

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, a member of the FDIC.

By Milton Bird

This is a story about Barry and Kevin and Betsy Dorough, and Jennifer Harless and Skillet and Leona Bird. and two dozen bantam chickens, and three acres of land with pine trees as thick as hair on a cat and pine straw knee deep to a tall Indian in a tree.

It was four minutes till five in the afternnon. They had come early because Leona had promised one of them an apple turnover, and they were rearing to go.

Right from the start you could tell this was gonna be a dilly. Kevin was neck deep in a brush pile behind the chicken house and somebody yelled snake and he came out like a flash, except one pant leg that was hanging on a limb. He took a long look and went back in and came out after a little with something in each hand.

Jennifer was on her knees fumbling through a flower bed. She came out and went in another bed and came out again wolding something behind her we couldn't see.

Betsy had climbed on top of the wood pile and was hanging by her toes peeping behind every stick. She made a little chuckling noise and moved another stick and made the noise again and slid off holding something in her hand.

We hadn't seen Barry since the game started. There was a honeysuckle patch next to the road and we decided he'd gone in there. We looked and couldn't see him. Betsy had climbed back on the woodpile and Jennifer was back in the flower bed and Kevin was taking another look in the brush

But still no Barry. Betsy slid off the woodpile with something in her hand. Kevin came out of the brush pile and hid something under the straw. Jennifer came out of the flower bed holding something behind her.

It was almost six now. And still no sign of Barry. The chickens were bunched around the lot, in little groups, waiting to be fed.

Suddenly, in the honeysuckle patch, we got a glimpse of Barry. He was pulling his way through with his knees and holding something in his cap. Behind him, fussing, and flapping her way along, a little hen was after him. He scrambled out of the huneysuckle and lit out up the driveway. The little hen was right behind him.

We went over behind the truck and counted Jennifer's eggs. She had three. We went behind a big pine and counted Betsy's eggs. She had three. We raked in the straw and found Kevin's eggs. He had three. We looked in Barry's cap and he had nine. The little hen was still fussing. I took the nine eggs and Barry and I slipped back inside the honeysuckle patch. He showed me the nest and I placed the eggs back as carefully as I could.

We called the game a tie and Leona gave everybody an apple turnover. The little hen was headed back toward the honeysuckle patch. After they had gone I slipped back down to take a peek. And there she was, as still and quiet as

I guess that's the best way to gather eggs, if you have two dozen little hens and three acres of pine straw, and a woodpile and a flower bed and a brushtop and a honeysuckle patch for them to hide their eggs in.

On the surface, Russian author Anton Checkov and contemporary playwright Neil Simon may sound like The Odd Couple, but through this unlikely fusion of talents comes the fare now offered by The Celebrity Dinner Theatre.

THE "NEW MATH"

For some time now, puzzled parents have had the frustrating experience of trying to help son Johnny and daughter Jane with their mathematics homework, only to find that the schools are now teaching a "new" math which bears little similarity with "ordinary" math. And any parent who presumed to protest would be hooted out of school as a hopeless old fogey.

Now cometh a report by the "National Assessment of Education Progress" - a federally funded project, by the way - based upon a nationwide representative sample of 34,000 17 year olds. And the results of the survey show that the vast majority of teenagers can't begin to solve the most common, everyday mathematical problems.

For example: if your property tax is $29.87 per $1,000 of assessed value, the tax on your property assessed at $14,900 would be closest to: (a) $400; (b) $420; (c) $450; (d) $470? Would you believe that 60% of the teenagers were unable to come up with the right answer (c)?

Or: a gallon of paint will cover about 250 square feet of surface area. To make the problem extra easy, the questioners specified that this paint is sold in gallon cans only. The question: How many gallon cans are needed to paint an area 48 feet long by ten feet wide? Far less than half - only 41% - of our "new math" generation came up with the right answer - two

Even on the question: if there are 300 calories in nine ounces of a certain food, how many calories are there in a three-ounce portion of food, 30% of the 17 year olds were stumped for the

The National Assessment also found that the vast majority of Governor Milton J. Shapp those surveyed could not correctly figure a taxi fare; could not agrees with the state's labor balance a checkbook; and could not correctly calculate the unit movement in strong opposition cost for a common utility bill.

A great uproar recently followed President Ford's veto of a multi-billion dollar education bill, on the theory that Federal an exception in the case of a control and disbursement in the field of education is somehow beneficial. The fact is, there is no evidence to show that Federal education policies have been an aid to education. On the contrary, as the amounts of Federal money have increased over extramarital sex. "I'd like to the years, the scholastic ability and achievement of the school children have gone down.

The message seems clear; let control of the schools, including the disbursement of money to support the schools, return to the local community where the people - both parents and teachers - know what is best for the children in their care,

"Rain, rain, go away! Come again some other

This little poetic saying, which most of us have heard recited all our lives, has never really expressed my sentiments about rain.

I like rain! There's no more delicious sound that I know of than rain falling on a tin roof. Unless it's the sound of crackling hickory wood in a fireplace on a cold Winter These are sounds that I grew up with as a backwoods country boy, and I'll always cherish them.

Rainy days meant a respite from the fields, and perhaps a little extra time to curl up with a favorite story book or the perennial wish book better known as the Sears Roebuck catalog.

If it was a Saturday, or a Summer day when school was not in session, it sometimes meant an afternoon with neighborhood boys with a homemade punching bag strung with baling wire from a rafter in the barn hall.

But it also meant indoor chores, because my daddy always had plenty of work lined up to be done on rainy days - things that could be done when it was too wet to work outside. Like shucking and shelling corn.

I've spent many long rainy days cranking a corn sheller in the barn, Shop work was another rainy day job for us on the farm, especially at this time When I was a young boy one of my jobs was to turn the crank on the bellows, which fanned the burning coal and kept it hot for the plow points to be sharpened with a big steel hammer on top of the big anvil, while they were glowing red hot from the forge.

Long rainy Winter nights were favorite times for our family around the big fireplace in the "big house," which was our version of living rooms and bedrooms all combined.

Many times we would play games together, play the guitar and sing, or just simply listen to my daddy tell stories - after all the homework for school was

Later on, after we became affluent enough to own a small battery - powered radio, we would hurry through the chores and with supper to turn on the radio and hear Amos 'n Andy, Fibber McGee and Molly, and Henry Aldridge.

Finally, the fire was burned low and the old pendulum clock on the mantel had signaled that it was time to get ready for

I can still see and hear my daddy as he would reach up and get the big black family Bible, put on his wire-rimmed dime store glasses, and read a chapter from God's Word.

Then we would all kneel down by our chairs and pray together, thanking God for the blessings of the day, asking His protection for the night and His guidance in the new day to come.

Quietly then we were off to our respective beds to snuggle down under a stack of warm quilts to fall asleep by the lullaby of rain on the tin roof. These are some of my favorite memories about the rainy January days and nights of my boyhood. And I don't intend to ever forget them

COUNTY CHEMISTS AT MONTEVALLO - - A summer course introducing an innovative method of teaching chemistry to high school students was a part of the curriculum of the University of Montevallo's Chemistry Department this summer. The program at UM was funded by a grant from the National Science Foundation. The program, called interdisciplinary Approach to Chemistry (IAC) uses several chemical reactions students see everyday outside the classroom and relates chemistry to problems such as pollution. Pictured discussing the summer's work are: Jim Hermecz, Montevallo High School; George Smeller, Montgomery County, Maryland; Dr. Aris Merijanian and Dr. James Beal, professors of chemistry at UM; Gary Shelby, Chelsea High School and Randy McDonald, Thompson High School.

Campus USA

1975...A summer to remember

by Bob Hume. . . . . . . .

Some persons go back to college each summer to improve their failing minds.

Some people do it a different way.

Boy Scout Troop 560 of Columbiana, has just completed a 27 day trip of 5,377 miles in their old 1955 scout bus, planned as sort of a bi-centennial or "see the USA" and educational trip.

Two years ago we took a 17 day trip of the eastern USA, civil war battlefields and historical sites.

The most recent trip cost a total of $1907.52 -- bus expense $413.11 - - - food $1,239.26 - - - and fares, ball games, toll roads, commercial camps, and other incidentals $255.15. Considering 16 boys and one leader times 27 days, gives 459 person days or $4.15 per boy per day. --all expenses. Can you vacation for that - - - and see what we say, - - - and do what we did?

We saw Indian and historical country; industrial and métropolitan USA; lake and mountain resort country; and corn, dairy, wheat, mining, grassland and timber country. We started and stopped in Columbiana, on schedule, with the old bus giving us no trouble. The scouts had cleaned, painted, carpeted, installed tables, tape decks and other conveniences. We entered Canada at Sault Ste. Marie, drove all the way around north of Lake Superior, about 800 miles, the second largest lake in the world, and came back into the United States at International Falls, Minnesota. We got far enough north in the Atikokan, Ontario area that the runoff water all goes to the Arctic Ocean. We also left the U.S., by the tunnel under the Detroit River to Windsor Ontario and returned by the International Bridge over the

Probably the oldest inhabited area the scouts visited was the Cahokia Indian mounds of Illinois. There are over 100 mounds in this park and in 700 AD the city covered six square miles and housed tens of thousands of the "Mississippi culture" Indians with a well developed agricultural system. We camped overnight on the base of one of these mounds. We also visited the Kensington runestone village of Alexandria, Minnesota, which claims to have been inhabited in 1367, and thus the birthplace of America. . but the stone and the legend is very much under suspicion at present.

The scouts visited Abraham Lincoln's birthplace and boyhood homes in Hodgenville, Kentucky; his youth and learning home and village of New Salem, Illinois and his home, museum, law offices, railroad station (where he left for the presidency and was returned after assassination), and his tomb and grave in Springfield. We visied the Harry S. Truman Memorial, library and home in Independence. Missouri; and the Eisenhower home, library and memorial in Abilene, Kansas. Another great American was visited in Oklahoma. The birthplace and home of Will Rogers in Oolagah, Oklahoma, and the impressive memorial and tomb of the same man in Claremore.

Industry came in for quite a look, the scouts visiting the Ford factory and assembly plant in Detroit, two Buick assembly plants in Flint; the Goodyear tire factory at Akron, Ohio; the Heaven Hills distillery and bottling plant in Bardstown, Kentucky; the Anheuser-Busch brewery and the Clydesdale horse barns in St. Louis. We toured a uranium mine in Ranwick, Ontario; an amethyst mine at Thunder Bay, Ontario and the biggest woodpile in the world at an International Falls, Minnesota paper mill.

Museums of every description were most interesting. The whiskey industry museum in Bardstown, Kentucky; the Air Force museum in Dayton, Ohio; Ford museum and Greenfield Village in Dearborn, Michigan; the J. M. Davis gun museum (biggest collection of guns in the world) at Claremore, Oklahoma; the Kensington Runestone and America's birthplace in Alexandria, Minnesota; the Paul Bunyon museum of Bemidji, Minnesota; and the World museum of the Circus at Baraboo, Wisconsin. In about the same category, the scouts visited the Football Hall of Fame, Canton, Ohio; Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City and the Greyhound (dogs) Hall of Fame in Abilene, Kansas.

I believe it does young people good to visit some other college campuses even though they may be committed to Alabama or Auburn. We visited the campuses of Akron, Michigan, Missouri, Kansas, Kansas State, Oklahoma, Stephens and Southern State College. Two of the boys' mothers attended or graduated from Stephens. The college of the main interest was Oral Roberts University, the prayer tower and Mabee center.

All boys are interested in stadiums and athletic fields. We visited Riverfront in Cincinnati, Massillon high school, Ohio, (where high school and professional football started); Rubber bowl in Akron, Municipal stadium in Clevelend, Detroit Tiger stadium, University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, (the biggest football stadium in the world) Viking stadium, Minneapolis, Busch Memorial stadium, St. Louis; Royals and Arrowhead stadiums in Kansas City. (the Truman Recreationa Complex) Missouri, Kansas, Kansas State and Oklahoma, of the big eight; and Southern State College of Magnolia, Arkansas.

Historical interests occupied lots of time. Battle of Lake Erie, Sanduşky and port Clinton on Lake Erie. Smokey Bear park and forest, Minnesota, Windsor tunnel and bridge to Windsor, Ontario; Eads bridge across the Mississippi at St. Louis, (the longest metal suspension bridge in the world); Mackinac bridge, Michigan; Soo locks and park, Sault Ste. Marie; coldest place in Canada, White River, with an official record of 72 degrees below zero, monument to the Canadian Goose at Wawa, Ontario, the Arctic watershed, Paul Bunyon and Babes statue in Bemidji; Lake Itssca, where the Mississippi River starts. (This spot is only 1,457 feet above sea level and the river flows over 2,500 miles in about 60 days to the Gulf of Mexico); the Gateway Arch, properly known as the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial in St. Louis. Wisconsin Dells country; Fort Snelling, Minnesota, (an old Hudson Bay fur trading post); Mammoth Cave, Vicksburg National Cemetery; My old Kentucky Home; race horses, Lexington, Kentucky, the Goodyear Blimp hangars and Derby Downs the soapbox racer course. The scouts visited state capitols in Topeka, Kansas, Springfield, Illinois and the first territorial capitol of Kansas in Ogden, and Fort Riley, where such famous trips as those taken by Gen. Custer and the 7th Cavalry started west. While in Springfield, Illinois, the scouts stayed an extra day and visited the Bi-centennial Freedom Train. This train will be in Birmingham in April or May 1976. Be sure to visit and tour this truly remarkable collection of history and Americana, on loan to the Freedom

We had to make a detour around the small town of Canton, Illinois, when it was destroyed the night before by a lone tornado. We visited the Ozark and Ouachita mountain and lake country of Oklahoma and Arkansas, Texarkana, Texas, the famous Red River of the song and stayed overnight at Magnolia, Arkansas. with Alan Hume.

The boys got to go rollerskating three times on the trip, laundromat a number of times and foosball often. We saw a double-header baseball game between the Cards and Phillies at Busch stadium while in St. Louis.

Church comes into the life of scouts and we were exceptionally well received at the United Methodist Church in Dundee, Michigan, in fact I thought we would never leave that town. We also attended church at the First Baptist Church in International Falls. In keeping with the pioneer spirit on the plains of Missouri, we held our own thurch service on the last Sunday on the road, at our open air camp spot. Some of the boys will not remember or immediately appreciate this just taken trip, but in years to come it will help them to bring into focus a lot of industry, history and Americana in general. I look forward to these trips - - - they show me the real American boy, on his own; working, learning, sharing and getting along with and meeting other people. I am ever grateful that the townspeople of Columbiana support the scouts in the manner they do and make these trips possible. If any club or organization would be interested in a program for your group, we have many colored slides and boys that will be grateful for the opportunity of presenting this trip to you in slide and word, around mid-USA.

Naylor V. Ford, age 71, was electrocuted instantly when he slipped from a ladder and came into contact with a power line. The retired Birmingham resident was painting a corner of a building at Bearden's dairy several miles north of Vincent.

According to Jimmy Gill of the Harpersville Ambulance Service, the man was doing maintenance work at the dairy when he apparently slipped on the ladder and grabbed the wire, which killed him immediately.

Gill said he might have been fighting off wasps when he fell into the wires.

Police from Vincent, Harpersville and other towns soon arrived at the farm, which is in the extreme northeast corner of the county near Pell City. In the meantime the body was entangled in the wires, making it impossible to remove until power company personnel arrived to cut off the electricity.

Gill said that Ford was a longtime friend of the

Deer

Wood says that the Conservation Department does not discourage people from keeping wild animals as pets, but that they should be aware of the hazards and problems.

For instance, some pet deer become uncontrollable when they get older, and can turn on their keeper with their lethal hooves. But other deer become as tame as a pet dog, like the first fawn the Wood family kept several years Deer are not the only animals the Wood family have lived with- - - Mrs. Wood and her son, Kenneth, told the Reporter about a family of oppossums they had one year, along with other wild things they raised along with their tame rabbits, goats, and ducks.

But Mrs. Wood agrees with her husband Doyle that there is something so appealing about a fawn that it is worth the bother. Even though their little doe bleats for bowls of milk four times a day, it's kind of like having a real, live Bambi.

Program offers summer use for school facilities

COMMUNITY EDUCATION

What is your school doing this summer? Is it locked and silent-vulnerable to vandalism? Summer abandonment of school facilities within communities has been a problem to educators for years. Until recently, questions arising concerning the utility of these facilities have been left

Community Education, an educational concept designed to supplement traditional school hours and to serve community needs year round, has provided answers to some of these questions plaguing education personnel.

Through this concept, local educators and the community leaders implement ways to make use of educational facilities to benefit the community. Local citizenry and education leaders aid in advancing the principle that the public schools belong to the people by providing continuing opportunities in programs of benefit and interest to people of all ages. preschool, school-age, and Local citizenry determine programs offered in the community school based on the need within the community. The aim of the well-developed community school program is to Integrate insofar as possible the community's educational, social, physical, recreational, and health needs.

On the national level, Community Education has been supported through the efforts and financial contributions of the Mott Foundation of Flint, Michigan, which has invested more than $70 million in the implementation of Community education is a relatively new concept in the State of Alabama, the first programs being initiated in 1971. Programs are presently operating in Huntsville, Madison County, Piedmont, Attalla, Birmingham and Jefferson County school districts.

Technical and financial assistance for existing programs is provided through the Center for Community Education at the University of Alabama in Birmingham, coordinating agency for development and expansion of Community Education in Alabama, Mississippi, and Tennessee. In addition to the University of Alabama in Birmingham, two people within the State of Alabama aid in the establishment and coordination of Community Education Programs. Dr. Theodore J. Pinnock of Tuskegee Institute has been appointed by the U. S. Secretary of Health Education and Welfare to serve on the eleven member National Advisory Council on Community Education. David W. Torma has been appointed to serve as Community Education Specialist with the Division of Instruction of the Alabama State Department of Education.

The Alabama State Board of Education supported the Community Education concept in a resolution passed March 20, urging local boards of education and administrators to actively pursue the Community Education concept to meet the needs of the community and to involve the local citizentry in utilizing facilities under their jurisdiction

With the passage of Federal Legislation and Public Law 93-380, "The Community Schools Act," August, 1974, and the pending Presidential recommendation to Congress for $3.5 million funding, the outlook is encouraging to the local school districts interested in implementing the Community Education concept. Criteria for establishing local Community Education programs include the hiring of a trained community school coordinator prior to expenditure of federal funds, local tax dollars and local board of education policies that support Community Education within that area.

For further information concerning Community Education in Alabama and your community, contact the Alabama State Department of Education, 111 Coliseum Boulevard, Montgomery, Alabama 36109, (205) 832-6860, or the Center for Community Education, University of Alabama in Birmingham, Alabama 35233, (205) 934-5208.

PLACID LAKE--It's not Lake Placid, New York. It's the lower fishing lake at Oak Mountain State Park, here in Shelby County. Reporter photographer Willard Harrison's camera captured this relaxing scene of a fisherman on a lazy August afternoon. Environment such as this make Shelby County one of the South's most pleasant places to live and enjoy life.

A Message In The Public Interest ! From Alabama Power

Insulation Can Save You Money. And Electricity.

If you don't have adequate insulation in your home, your air conditioning system is working overtime.

And costing you a lot more money—maybe as much as a third morethan it has to.

Whatever the age of your home, a close look at your insulation will be well worth your time. And, most likely, well worth the cost of improvements, which usually pay for themselves with significant savings in energy costs.

joists in your attic are not covered, you probably don't have enough insulation. Look for yourself, or have a qualified insulation contractor look with you. And don't forget, insulation will also save you money during the winter months—no matter how you heat your home.

For detailed information about insulation, write or drop by your nearest Alabama Power Company office and ask for our new brochure, "81 Ways to Control Your Electric Bill."

Some wag has remarked that there are two things we can all count on: death and

I could name lots of other things, and one of them is for kids growing up in the country to get a case of poison oak or poison ivy sometime during the Spring or Summer's Doctors today have more sophisticated remedies for helping to soothe the itching and pain of those terrible blisters and skin irritations.

But back in the good ole days, we mostly just made up our own treatments and cures for this malady, just as we did for most other

Hugh Scott says a good sure home-made remedy for poison oak or poison ivy is to dig up several roots from Winter huckleberry bushes (making sure it's the Winter variety). Boil these roots in water until you get a real strong brown liquid. Then apply this liquid (as hot as you can bear) to the affected parts of the body. Do this several times, and it will dry up the poison, he claims

"When I was a kid, I unknowingly broke off a large handful of poison oak bushes because I thought the berries were so pretty,' Scott says.

"As a result, I had the poison so bad it closed my eyes and I couldn't bend my fingers.

"Then, each Spring thereafter I would break out with the poison again, whether I had contacted the plant or not. But after several of the above applications, the poison was cleared out of my system entirely," he recalls. Another homemade remedy for poison oak or poison ivy was to boil the bark of red oak trees and apply this in a hot bath to the affected skin, then apply a flour paste mixture to the poison area. Frequently folks would wash the inflamed, itchy skin with Octagon soap, and the strong soap seemed to help kill the poison. As I think back on all the mishaps we used to get into when I was growing up. I marvel at how the Lord was looking after us, when we didn't even realize it!

For example, many's the time I have jumped out of a barn loft and stuck a rusty nail in my foot.

Back then, we never heard of such a thing as a tetanus shot We simply soaked the wounded foot in hot salt water, then poured turpentine in the wound and bandaged up the foot with a rag coated with salve.

Neither did we rush to the doctor of hospital to get stitches to close up a bad cut or gash in the skin. We just poured turpentine on the wound and bound it up and let it heal as best it could. And I have several hefty scars to this day to prove it!

Laundromat shows exciting program

Gregory McKay reports he brought some things to a laundromat and sat watching his underwear and socks being tossed about in the dryer. Next to him a pretty girl sat in front of her machine where her silk and lacy bras were whirling around with the other unmentionables. "Care to change places?" smiled Greg. "Your machine is showing a much more exciting program than mine." (Bill Kennedy, Los Angeles Herald-Examiner)

Huge shopping center set for Riverchase

by Willard Harrison

After a year of work, the backbone of the Riverchase project is almost completed. And with the utilities finished. work is beginning on a number of buildings to be located in the new city of the Jefferson-Shelby County line.

-A gigantic new shopping center will be announced next month. The new complex, to be located on the Jefferson County side of the Cahaba, will apparently rank with Birmingham's biggest shopping

-Negotiations are continuing with Krebbs Engineering and a number of other major business concerns which plan to locate in

-At least a dozen private construction projects are expected to be in progress there by the end of this year. These clients of Riverchase will be announcing details about their projects as facts become

.- South Central Bell and Baptist Medical Center, who acquired land in that area before it became Riverchase, are still planning to build there, according to a real estate

According to the same spokesman, progress has recently been announced by the Baptist Medical Center concerning a proposed complex which will be located on a tract of land in Riverchase's perimeter.

An agency spokesman for Johson Rast and Hays, Riverchase's exclusive real estate agent, told the Reporter, "We're very optimistic about South Central Bell's locating here." Over two years ago Bell announced its plans to locate on a 57-acre tract just north of the Cahaba River; but after a phone rate hike was refused, very little was heard about the homes in the nation."

According to Jim Martin of Riverchases's information office, the nursing home is "one of the most revolutionary ever." Located on a 20-acre tract, the nursing home will include day care for the elderly, as well as luxury retirement apartments for senior citizens.

The first phase of the nursing home will provide skilled intermediate- care facilities for 120 patients. From 80 to 100 people will be employed initially and later 400 people will work there.

Next month big news is expected about a proposed new shopping center to be located at the junction of Highway 31 and 150. At present details are sparse, but the Reporter has learned that the center will be located at the northwest corner of that intersec tion, and that it will likely rival Century Plaza and Brookwood Vallage in size.

The spokesman at Johnson, Rast and Hays stated, "We are virtually certain that an announcement of a regional shopping center will be. announced at a press conference in September." He indicated that the complex is to be spearheaded by developers from Columbia, Riverchase project manager Still Hunter told the Reporter that Harbert Construction is beginning work for its new headquarters, which is located at the future site of the I-65 interchange with Valleydale Road (county road 17). Bids have been let for the building, which will be atop a ridge south of the road.

A Harbert spokesman described the planned building as being "in a park-like setting" with the building made of weathered steel. Harbert is the co- developer of Riverchase.

Land sales are in their final stages for motel and restaurant chains, branches of local businesses and other business concerns. The real estate company also revealed that both Shelby and Jefferson County banks are studying the possibility of locating branches in Riverchase.

As for the progress on the 'municipal facilities' of the future community, the swim-and-tennis clubhouse will begin construction immediately, and is expected to be complete by November.

The 25-meter Olympic swimming pool and five tennis courts are expected to be finished by that time also. The clubhouse will double as the country club until the larger building is built in spring of 1976. The country club will be located near the swim-and-tennis clubhouse, west of Highway 31 and near the Cahaba River.

According to Riverchase's timetable announced over six months ago, new house construction was expected to begin in June, but this has been delayed a bit because of a slowdown in the Jefferson -Shelby sewer tie-in negotiations. Now that the sewer /water system problem has been successfully concluded, house construction will begin by the middle of next month. The golf course is well on its way toward completion, and should be ready for play later this year. All eighteen holes will be ready in a few months, and work will be continuing on Thompson Elementary and Montevallo High Schools will open with the sound of hammers and construction.

Ted Lansford, assistant superintendent of the Shelby County Schools, told the Reporter on Friday that Thompson Elementary's new cafetorium is not far from completion, and that the contractor has indicated it might be ready by the time school starts.

Lansford said that the big hold -up has been the air arrived last Thursday and are being installed.

He added that a good bit of equipment has not yet arrived for the dining area, and the dishwasher and other kitchen equipment have not been shipped. Tiling the floor will be one of the final tasks toward completing the combined dining auditorium room.

While the education office has been told that the room can be ready by the time school starts, Lansford expressed his doubts. He noted that the lunch area would not be needed until the second day of school, and that it still might not be ready on Thursday and Friday of the first school week. He added that the room will not be needed on the following Monday, since that day will be Labor Day.

At Montevallo High School, the Alice Boyd building has been promised for occupancy by the time school starts, but again both Montevallo and county school personnel have expressed doubt about it.

Lansford said that the heater-air conditioning units for that building are supposed to arrive by the 27th of this month. He indicated that it would not be vitally necessary for the central air to be operational; but school officials hope the units will be installed to plug up the holes in the side of the building.

Lansford said that the contractors on the Montevallo High renovation have assured the education office that they will work night and day to finish the cafeteria.

Some of the high school will not be remodeled, and classes can be held in these areas with a minimum of problems. The vocational and band departments will continue in their rooms with few alterations. Two relatively new class rooms will remain almost

Public schools will open with 498 teachers, 18 aides

The County's biggest business, the public schools, is geared up and ready to begin a new academic year beginning Wednesday, August 27.

The Shelby County School Board has employed a record number of teachers, fifteen more than last year and a record number of teachers' aides to cope with the county's burgeoning school population.

The teacher list, released by County Superintendent of Education Elvin Hill indicated 498 teachers will be on hand for opening day next week. A total of 18 teachers' aides will also start the school year on Wednesday.

On the following teacher list the first name under each school is the principal.

MONTGOMERY-An interesting development in state government circles was the naming last week of a blue-ribbon committee to work on a plan for a complete overhaul of the administrative branch of government.

The most interesting thing about it was that Gov. George C. Wallace tapped Lt. Gov. Jere Beasley to head the committee and that action is fraught with implications.

The first is that Wallace may be indicating his approval of Beasley as the man to succeed him in 1978. That's a succession that will come naturally if Wallace ascends to the presidency in 1976 and the naming of Beasley may be expressive of the governor's supreme confidence in that Another thought is that impetus for the governmental overhaul study may have come from Beasley anyhow. Beasley has his sights set on the governor's chair, and heading this kind of a committee could difinitely be a plus for him entering the 1978 primary.

This is not to discount the possibility that the committee was Wallace's own brain child. After all, he has been roundly criticized of late for an unwillingness, if not the inability, to manage the affairs of his own state.

It is not difficult to imagine the governor now telling audiences around the countrythat in Alabama, "We're embarked on a complete overhaul of state government. I've appointed a special committee to make a study and to recommend ways in which we can streamline government to save taxpayers' money."

The idea of a complete overhaul of the executive branch is not new, of course. Many people have been urging the governor for years to undertake such a move and his own Cost Control Survey recommended such a move in 1971.

When that study was completed, the governor was asked if he would undertake the reorganization. The CCS recommendation was an "extra step," in that the business and industrial executives who made the study were supposed to limit their recommendations to making existing agencies more efficient.

But the CCS could not resist the temptation to point out the real area in which substantial savings could be effected-complete reorganization. The surv recommended that five major agencies be established and that only the heads of these departments report directly to the governor.

Here is where the savings would really begin to mount. There isn't a whole lot of money to be saved by streamlining methods. That comes in the establishment of hard priorities and in the elimination of useless programs and services.

Almost any bureaucrat worth his salt can make his program, or service sound like the most important single function of government. And unless the chief administrator is a tough and determined individual, he'll back down before telling the bureaucrats to bug off.

There was talk, at the beginning of the CCS, of the work saving the state upwards of $60 million. While much of the Survey's recommendations have been implemented, there is not available an estimate of how much money it is saving. It is doubtful that an accurate estimate could be made.

If real savings are to be made, it will happen when the executive branch is streamlined and begins to function like a real business. The governor has not yet come to grips with the problem, and in announcing his blue-ribbon committee, he still hasn't come to that point where he must look a bureaucrat in the eye and tell him the government can do without his services from here on out.

At that point, the administrator finds out how well the various agency, department and commission heads can play the game of self survival. The administrator will have to be mighty tough to make it work.

But if George C. Wallace could just shake up state government, like he threatens to do with the federal government, oh what a happy day it would be!

All offices in the courthouse will be closed all day Monday, Sept. 1 in observance of Labor Day.

According to Larry Horton, Manager of ABC store, in Columbiana, when asked if the new law granting adult privileges to 19 year old citizens had produced any material effect on the sale of alcholic beverages in the store said, in substance, that there "might have been a slight increase in sales but he had noted no great amount of difference."

He further stated that he thought the 19 year olds were leaning more favorably toward the purchase of beer and wine---obtainable in many grocery stores--than in buying the various brands of liquor obtainable in the ABC stores.

Members of the Board of Registrars have given "extra hours" in various Beats in the county to afford an opportunity for new voters to register. Doris Turner, chairman of the board, states that 200 new voters have been added to the current list of eligible voters in Shelby

The Board Members state that in all beats where they provided this extra period of time for registration they met with full cooperation of the citizens and the Board members expressed appreciation for the courtesies extended them while they performed this service.

The Board will meet in the courthouse again on Aug. 28 from 2:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.; and on Sept. 2 from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. These are the last dates you will have to register on the irregular schedule. After this date, Sept. 2 due to Labor Day observance Sept. 1, members will return to their regular schedule.

Judge Conrad Fowler will return from Florida during the weekend and will be in the Probate Office Monday.

Rep. Walter Flowers will be in the courthouse in Columbiana Thursday afternoon at three o'clock to meet his friends and constituents.

Keeping children busy ensures contentment

Letter to Editor:

It's hot. I'm tired, hungry and thirsty.

These are the things that make a pretty bad situation for a child, age 6 and under. How do these children reach out for help? They whine, cry and fuss.

What do we parents do? We threaten, spank and fuss and make matters worse.

The child is reaching out for help. He feels trapped. When he is tired, his world is falling apart. We must acknowledge his feelings.

I know you must be tired, sleepy, too. But, talk to him in a calm tone. He has lost control and he needs you to guide him back. This isn't a time for a slap or a sharp word. It is the time for holding, talking and love. Letting him know you understand and care how he feels.

He is not being a brat and he isn't trying to drive you

Look at the whole situation. What can I do to help

this child get through this feeling? Put yourself in his place. Take a few minutes to hold him. Let him know things are alright . . . . then come up with an activity of some kind. How about that home made play-dough in the refrigerator. Always have something on reserve for bad times. Give him a book to look at. Give him a can of water and a paint brush. Paint the porch or the sidewalk or even the car, with water. Colored chalk on a sidewalk will wash

Put him in front of a table with a piece of newspaper and some pudding for finger painting. You can use buttermilk, corn starch or any number of items for finger painting. You say it's messy. Yes, it is, but a few papers on the floor can be cleaned up in short order. All of this lets the child express his feelings in some other way. It's better than Once you, the parent, stops and understands how the child feels, you can handle things. Listen to him, let him know you care about how he feels. Give him ways of expressing himself other than crying.

Keep him busy and you will keep him happy. Give the child all the love he needs and you will be a happy Pat Frost Montevallo, Alabama 35115

Reader strongly against superintendent's raise, proposed sales tax

Letter To Editor:

In regards to the Sales Tax vote coming up in September, we feel that the people of Shelby County are ill advised on the subject. It seems that the Superintendent of Education received a $6,000 per year raise recently which was voted on by the Board of Education. They have asked the voters who do not make $6,000 a year to vote a tax on themselves to pay the highest paid public servant, the highest paid salary in the county, which amounts to $26,000 a year plus $3,000 expense money.

We feel that the Board of Equalization will be raising our taxes in the near future and the Board of Education will get 12 mills of every additional dollar of this new tax.

Also, it comes to our attention that the Legislature is considering a law that would give the Probate Judge a $16,000 pension for life and, also, all the other good public servants a raise of $2,600 with the exception of the Commissioner who gets $1,200 per year.

In Harpersville, the city, who is debt-free has three municipal buildings, new fire truck, free garbage pick up from your own backyard. They were incorporated in 1944 and their tax structure was set up at that time and hasn't changed since. It seems to me the people should learn to live within their own income!

Consumers trapped by sales gimmicks

by Annie Laurie Gunter

The list of gimmicks used to promote vacation schemes and land sales promotions is almost endless - free meals, free trips, free prizes, contests, etc. Such 'free' offers are usually not what they appear to be. Some of the practices and gimmicks which consumers are often trapped by include:

THE FREE TRIP: You are contacted by mail or phone and are told that you have won or can easily obtain complimentary accomodations for a Florida, Arizona or California vacation or retirement resort.

The catch: The so-called free vacations usually require a $15-20 reservation fee and do not include such things as transportation and meals. Moreover, acceptance of the 'free' trip usually obligates you to long high pressure sales sessions designed to make you purchase the land being

THE FREE GIFT (silverware, dishes, 'a surprise worth $15'): You receive this offer in the mail and you are told that all you have to do to receive the gift is to visit the land sale site

The catch: When you get to the site you will not be given the gift right off. You may have to spend a whole day waiting, seeing the land, subjecting yourself to high pressure sales actics. Then only at the end of the day will you be given your 'gift'. Sometimes even at the end, the land sales people refuse to give the gift to those who don't purchase

The Governor's Office of Consumer Protection has received approximately 87 complaints dealing specifically with vacation schemes and land sales promotions. Many of the complaints received recently are against Market Development Corporation of Cincinnati, Ohio and Columbia Research Corporation of Chicago, Illinois. Market Development Corporation filed voluntary bankruptcy in June, 1974. Theypreviously operated in this state using deceptive practices in the sale of sewing machines and similar products by promoting free out -of -state vacation certificates.

Alabama consumers are urged to be extremely cautious before sending money to any company promoting free out - of- state vacations. Most of the offers are merely a come-on gimmick and your chances of enjoying a free vacation are extremely remote.

Youth Aid Bureau says

summer caseload down

by Marcia M. Sears

Caseloads are down this summer at the Shelby County Youth Aid Bureau, but Dave Walker, director of the Alabaster-administered bureau says they will pick up again when school starts. This is the normal summer pattern, he says.

"Teachers refer youngsters when they think the youths can benefit from the special counseling we give,"

Others who refer children to the Youth Aid Bureau include police and interested citizens.

Walker said the Youth Aid Bureau is a 'Diversion Agency' to divert youngsters from juvenile courts. He said the bureau would especially like to be known as a 'preventive agency."

Walker feels that the bureau's work in counseling the youth of the county has helped many of them. Of the 1,000 cases referred to the Youth Aid Bureau since it started two years ago, only 15 percent have wound up in courts, he said. Police often refer youths who have been arrested. If the young people cooperate with the Bureau counselors, and show some improvement, their cases often will not go

Teachers often refer young people who are non-attentive in class, who are lying, cheating, or exhibiting abnormal behavior in school. Walker said that the Bureau is generally notified after the parents have been contacted.

How does a Youth Aid counselor handle a case? Walker says that the counselor talks with the child, the parents and the teacher. Then compromises are worked out. In some cases Walker has found, "Parents don't have respect for their kids, but demand respect from them."

One of the effective methods the bureau has found is to draw up contracts between parents and the child. The parents write down what they expect from the child, and the child writes down what he needs or expects from the parents. According to Walker, contracts work in many families, especially when the parents and child do not communicate with each other very well.

The staff at the Youth Aid Bureau is made up of eight persons, with a monthly payroll of $5,000. In addition to Walker, the bureau has two full time counselors, a special program coordinator, a full time secretary and three part time youth workers. What could be done to improve life for young people in Shelby County? Walker says, "There s not enough for young people to do. Not enough places to go. Even a movie in the Pelham area would help."

The Youth Aid Bureau and the county juvenile probation department have been running day camps this summer, open to any young person, in an attempt to provide activities.

What about drugs? "Yes, there is a drug problem here. Marijuana is easily available." (NEXT WEEK: Dave Walker speaks out on the drug problem in Shelby County)

unwise spending

One of the weaknesses in the process of Congressional shaping of the Federal budget is that while Senators and Representatives may agree that Congress must get a firm grip on Federal spending, few can agree on where the Nation's spending priorities should be. Consequently Congress continues spending money we do not have on programs we do not need.

In 38 of the past 44 years the Federal government has spent more money than it has received in revenues, and the anticipated deficit in this fiscal year's budget is more than the entire budget for the Federal government 20 years ago. The interest which our government will pay on the national debt this year is more than it cost to operate the Federal government in 1948, and the debt of the Government of the United States is greater than the combined debts of all other governments of all other nations of the world. The average American works four months just to pay his local, State and Federal tax obligations.

The plain fact is that we can no longer afford unrestrained spending and escalating budget deficits by our National government - - and I don't think we ever could afford them. We cannot continue squandering money here, there and everywhere. In a move to put a stop to this mad spending spree, I have joined in proposing an amendment to the U. S. Constitution establishing the principle that, except in time of war, the budget of the U.S. must be balanced. This would compel the Congress and the President to make a realistic appraisal of national priorities and to make a responsible allocation of national resources. For too many years the United States has embraced the idea that any problem can be solved if enough money is spent on it. Our Resolution seeks to make Government recognize the fact that virtually all of its revenue comes from taxes, and that these tax dollars are being frittered away, robbing the worker of the fruits of his labor, denying the small businessman a fair return on his investment and depriving the elderly of the full benefit of their savings and retirement benefits.

Big-spenders in Congress and ultra-liberal economists will doubtless argue that our Resolution is bad. But we have followed budget-busting economists for too many years already and they are leading us down the road to national bankruptcy.

It is time to impose on the Federal government a degree of fiscal discipline and responsibility.

Good Morning

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, a member of the FDIC.

by Milton Bird

Sometimes on Wednesday, after I've been out with the folks on Tuesday, I go over to see her. She likes to hear from them, especially the old folks.

"Old folks," she said, "are like old trees. They get pretty scattered when you get old." I took off my cap and wiped at my bald head. She watched me and laughed a little laugh and shook a little under her shawl.

"The top of your head looks like rain on a window. You ought to get a wig. Maybe a purple wig with a violet

"You just want a hippie around."

"I'll settle for the rain on the window."

Out of the hen lot a hen came running. Behind her, his wings down, a young rooster was chasing her. She flew up in a tree and wedged herself against the trunk. He made a clucking noise and spun around with one wing dragging and trotted back toward the hen-house.

"Who'd you see up Chelsea way?"

"First I saw Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Holcombe. He's 90 years old, but he had every hill covered with corn and peas, and a garden, and a sweet potato patch. He said the potato patch was his main crop. Last year he sold 150 dollars worth. It looks like he'll do that good this year."

"How is the Mrs.?"

"Looks like she might be around fifty. But I didn't ask. She said it was her birthday. But I still didn't ask. Two of their girls have moved back and built on the place. They hope the other two will follow later."

A mockingbird lit in the top of a tall oak. It sang for five minutes without stopping. It stuck its head under its wing, hunting a mite, and found 'im and started singing again.

"Did you see Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kendrick?"

"You know I did. They live in a trailor next to one daughter, Uncle Frank is 88. I found him at the mailbox. He walks with a stick, but gets around pretty good. Mrs. Kendrick looks about fifty too. But I didn't ask. She was George Vick's daughter, over Joiner Town way, and I asked her how Uncle Frank ever found her. She said he was working at East Saginaw. They got married soon afterward. They live under some tall oak trees, off the main road. where it's quiet and peaceful. The children are scattered, except for two daughters, but they keep in close touch."

In the west, town-way, the sun had set a cloud on fire.

"You saw Aunt Jamima?"

"Yes. She lives with her son and his family. They take splended care of her. She looks about fifty too. It must be the water up there. She was shelling peas. They have to keep her busy to keep her happy. She wants to be out and doing, but two falls have left her crippled. They wouldn't let her make a garden and she pouted for two months. Until Floyd made a garden that just suited her fancy."

The sun had dropped out of sight. I got up and started to leave.

"Yep. And writing about it. That's fun, too."

"Reckon you ain't cheating 'em?" "I guess so. But don't tell 'em."

CARE AND FEEDING OF EVERGREENS

Most folks think that all there is to planting an evergreen is to dig a hole, 'drop in the plant, refill the hole with surrounding dirt and the evergreen will grow into a healthy, lovely specimen.

Actually, the planting procedure begins before you bring your purchase home. Home gardeners buy about 45 to 50 million evergreens a year, and over half of them die before they're planted! Select only plants with plenty of soil in the container; otherwise you may be buying a plant that is half-dead from root shock. I always pick the plants with the largest ball or container. Take care, also, to avoid damage when you handle and transport evergreens. And be sure to plant them the day you bring them home. Many green thumbers let them dry out on a hot driveway or sidewalk.

Make sure the planting hole is not too small. This will cramp the roots and stunt growth of the plant. Dig a large hole about half again as wide as the width of the container. Don't plant too deeply or the root system will smother - no more than one inch deeper than it was planted in the nursery. When the hole is ready, add a large handful of bone meal and Lawn & Garden Gypsum in the bottom of the hole. Then half-fill the hole with a 50-50 mixture of gravel and soil. Sprinkle with water but don't wash away the sides of the hole or alter its base. Completely fill the hole with the mixture of gravel and soil, and tamp the ground firmly in place with your foot to eliminate air pockets or hollow spots that can sink later and expose roots to drying air or cause the plant to tilt.

ISSUES INSTATE GOVERNMENT

WHAT TO EXPECT

In recent weeks, I have presented in this column a number of issues of concern to us as Alabamians. As the Regular Session has progressed, many of those problems have been dealt with through legislation introduced in the Legislature. So far, over a thousand bills have been introduced in the House and almost eight hundred in the Senate. Of the bills passed, many of them are local bills dealing with problems on the city and county level. The Senate will be taking up the House-passed-bills in the next few weeks.

One of the bills passed by the House provides for a new driver's license with a color

Good grain crop expected in '75'

Alabama farmers are expected to harvest a bumper feed grain crop this year.

Agronomists predict that a record corn yield of 52 bushels per acre will be produced this year, if reasonably favorable summer and fall weather prevails. Last year's yield was 46 bushels per acre.

Agronomist Wade Faw says farmers expect to harvest 680 thousand acres compared to only 650 thousand acres last year. This projected record yield combined with the increased acreage for harvest should boost production by 18 percent over last year and reach 35.4 million bushels.

A generally favorable wheat growing year resulted in production being projected at 3.3 million bushels compared to only 3 million bushels last year. The increase is due to an expected yield increase from 23 to 25 bushels per acre while harvested acreage is expected to remain at 130 thousand is so, then why is the county spending almost a million dollars to have this work done? Whether this sales tax is passed or not, the schools will still get 12-mills of all the additional taxes that is brought in. We think that this is the prime reason that there is such an urgent push for getting the sales tax passed now. The board knows that if there is a significant increase in the ad valorem tax they will have it and the sales tax too.

Some people who agree that the schools always need more money do not fully realize the serious consequence this new tax can mean. If this tax is passed and a forty-year Bond issue is floated, this means the tax cannot be taken off until the loan is fully repaid, and how many taxes that have been put on are ever removed?

This tax will be especially hard on elderly and retired people who are pensioned or on fixed incomes. Most who have already put their children through schools.

Until the people of this County are provided with sufficient information as to the actual need for more money for schools we are urging opposition to this Sales Tax.

In addition to drying, many foods can be "root cellared" over the months. Other possibilities are smoking foods, brining, or "sauerkrauting" certain vegetables; these methods are rather limited and are not widely recommended.

"How far is one wagon greasing?," inquires a

In order to properly answer that question, I'll have to go into the subject of wagon greasing in some detail. And believe me, I've had plenty of experience in that field!

My daddy was a firm believer in keeping our wagons well greased, and he looked with considerable disdain upon those who would drive around in a wagon with squeaking wheels

So, long befire the wheels of our wagons ran dry around the spindles, it was wagon greasing time.

Usually this was done on rainy days, or at other times when there was not more pressing work to be done on the farm.

There was a shelf along the side of the wagon shed where the axle grease was kept and all the tools needed for the job were kept handy there. A homemade jacking-up device was employed to lift the end of each axle enough to hold the wagon wheel off the ground so it could be removed for greasing. Before this was done, a couple of big chimney rocks were used to scotch other wheels so the wagon wouldn't roll off the jack. The axle grease, which was black, stiff and greasy, came in a round tin box about the size of a pancake and a couple of inches deep. The grease was applied to the wagon spindle with a clean smooth paddle whittled from a soft pine plank.

The other part of the wagon which had to be greased, besides the wheels, was the part of the front end assembly which permitted the front wheels to turn from side to side in steering

Needless to say, if a wheel started squeaking it was greased immediately. And it was from this that we got the now-familiar expression: "It's the squeaking wheel that gets the grease," meaning that a person who complains or makes his wishes known loudly and persistently is usually the one who gets the attention.

But getting back to the question which prompted all

The phrase "about a wagon greasing" was a colloquial expression referring to a short distance, because a wagon wouldn't travel a very long distance before it had to be greased again to keep its wheels from squeaking.

School meal policy

Shelby County Board of Education today announced a free meal, free milk and reduced price meal policy for school children unable to pay the full price of meals served in schools under the National School Lunch, School Breakfast and Special Milk

Local school officials have adopted the following family-size income criteria for use in determining eligibility.

	FAMILY INCOME
Family Size	Free me	als	and free milk	Reduced price meals
	1		*	-
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 Ea. add- itional	$0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0		8,950 9,790 10,550 11,310 12,060 12,810	6,261 - 7,191 - 8,111 - 8,951 -	5,930 7,350 8,770 10,060 11,360 12,530 13,700 14,770 15,840 16,890 17,940

Children from families whose income is at or below those shown are eligible for free meals, free milk and /or reduced price meals. In addition, families not meeting this criteria but with other unusual expenses due to unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 percent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply.

They may do so by completing the application forms sent home with a letter to parents. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application will be confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted any time during the school year.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has such children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals for them, they should contact the school. In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, or national origin. Under the provision of the policy the school principal will review

Under the provision of the policy the school principal will review the applications and determine eligibility.

If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official he may wish to discuss it in more detail with that official. If a parent wishes to review the ruling further, after discussing it with the school, he has a right to a fair hearing. This can be done by making a request either orally or in writing to Elvin Hill, Superintendent or Patricia Bulger, School Food Service Supervisor whose address is Shelby County Board of Education, Columbiana, Alabama 35051.

Hearing procedures are outlined in the policy.

A complete copy of the policy is on file in each school and in the office of the Shelby County Board of Education where it may be reviewed by any interested party.

Shelby's business better than most

(Special to the Reporter)

New York, Aug. 23 -According to a new survey of business activity in communities across the country, Shelby County turned in a better performance than most of them in the past year.

The local trading area displayed greater economic strength, reflecting a rising _ level of income and a freer spending attitude on the part of consumers.

The facts and figures bearing this out are contained in the new "Survey of Buying Power," released by Sales Management, the marketing publication. It presents comparable data on income and spending for all parts of the country.

Shelby County's market strength reflects the greater purchasing potential of its population. Because local people were earning more they

Just what this represented. in terms of the individual family, is indicated by the median income locally, which amounted to $9,998 per household. Half the families earned more than this and half earned less.

The median elsewhere in the East South Central States was $9,492 and, in the State of Alabama, $9,294.

With that much money available to them for discretionary spending, many local families, who have been holding themselves under a spending restraint, waiting for prices to come down, returned to the marketplace to replenish their needs.

Others, less fortunate, who have been having a hard time making both ends meet, continued to keep a tight rein on their spending.

In general, however, it was a better year for retail stores in Shelby County than for those in many areas of the country.

Local retail establishments were able to report gross sales of $75,707,000.

Banks' yield is high

The State of Alabama earned more interest on its deposits in State Banks in the first six months of 1975 than for the entire year, 1974, according to State Treasurer, Mrs. Allen recently released a quarterly report which showed that State monies, deposited in banks throughout Alabama, earned $9,241,513.13 in interest during the period, January through June 1975.

In 1974, she said, the interest earned on State deposits was $7,954,516.67 for the entire twelve month period. For the first six months of last year, interest on State deposits totalled $5.2 million, according to figures released by Mrs. Allen's office.

Mrs. Allen pointed out that the State Legislature is due major credit for the increase in interest earnings. The Legislature, during its special session last January, changed the law to permit more State money than ever before to be invested in State Banks, in short term notes which bear high

"There is money invested in every bank in Alabama," Mrs. Allen said. "The interest which these dollars earns goes back into the State's General Fund, to assist in many kinds of programs for the betterment of our people."

WE RESERVE

Supernumeraries prove expensive

by Don Wasson

MONTGOMERY - - The Alabama Legislature is at last beginning to show some concern over the rising incidence of "supernumeraryism" in the state and the administration is also casting suspicious eyes on the supernumerary

A "Supernumerary" is a person who has retired, but because of his expertise in the field in which we worked, can be called back to active status. While on supernumerary status, he is paid a reduced portion of his highest salary. When on active service, he gets the full pay.

The whole idea is a dodge to escape the constitutional restriction against elected officials of the state getting any kind of a pension.

The basic question seems to be - - - "Should a person who serves in an elective office be entitles to retirement pay?"

There are those who argue, and rightly so, that the person knew when he entered the field of politics, that it is a risky business and that any day he might get his head

That is fine for a one-term situation, or maybe two terms. But what about the elected official who serves three, four, five, or maybe even more terms?

It all started, it seems, with circuit judges, and the legislature has obligingly provided for supernumerary district attorneys, probate judges and just about everything else. There is a bill before the legislature now to lower the period of service probate judges need before reaching supernumerary eligibility. It would also provide that service in the state legislature be counted toward retirement

The concern in administration circles, where the financing of programs and services is getting to be more and more of a problem, is how to pay for ever increasing retirement benefits. It is a problem paying the people on the current payroll, much less everybody who retires.

That is not to say that public employes should not receive retirement benefits. If there were not retirement benefits, very few people would enter public service as a

But it now appears that the over-burdened public purse may at long last cause government leaders to take a more critical look at how many employees are on the public payroll and to make a better assessment of what each one of them does.

There have been a series of bills increasing the retirement benefits for this group or that group and in the past few sessions, such bills have been passed simply because the legislature can't seem to say "no" to state employee pleas.

Sen. John Baker of Rainsville launched a filibuster in the upper chanber last week simply to call attention to the growing problem of supernumerary pay and to call for a thorough-going study of the problem.

Dr. David Bronner, head of the State Employees and Teachers Retirement Systems, has already testified before the money committees of the legislature as to the damage the proposed judges retirement bill would do to the state treasury and state participation in that fund is more than twice what it is in the teacher retirement system.

It is a program which is badly in need of study and equalization. But primarily, the state needs to learn that if fringe benefits are going to keep increasing each year, then there is a bad need for an overall reduction in the work

Auto dealer bill clears committee

An auto dealer licensing bill co-sponsored by 15 Alabama Representatives has cleared the State Administration Committee unanimously. Industry spokesmen claim the bill, H943, is a strong consumer protection measure that will also raise the state millions of dollars in tax revenue.

Based upon national figures the Alabama Independent Auto Dealers Association estimates 50% or more of used cars sold in Alabama are not through legitimate, licensed dealers. This means, says Association President Hershell Reeves of Bessemer, that the state, county and city "are not only failing to collect business and license fees, but that millions of dollars in sales taxes is going down the drain that is legitimately owed."

"Here's a ready-made source of millions in revenue for our schools, hospitals and mental institutions," says Doug Hallman of Montgomery, Association Vice President.

The auto dealers association believes that long standing public complaints over misuse of dealer tags would be solved by this bill, "since it provides that only legitimate, licensed dealers could secure dealer tags and usage would be restricted to business purposes."

"Regretably", says George Jones, Association Manager, "only about 1/4 of the dealer tags issued each year actually go to legitimate, full-time auto dealers. In all too many cases someone simply declares themself an auto dealer so as to get those $1.00 tags for himself, family, relatives and friends."

The auto dealers licensing revision provides that to secure a license a person must post a $5,000 bond or have a $5,000 net worth, must operate from a permanent location, and provides for certification from local people that the person applying is actually in the automobile business.

'What this means," states Association Manager Jones, "is that when a consumer buys a car, he can be assured the dealer will be there tomorrow to keep the promises he

The Auto Dealer Licensing bill reportedly has the backing of the Title Section of the Alabama Department of Revenue and the Department of Public Safety.

"Law enforcement authorities favor the legislation because it will substantially lessen the sale of stolen, mortgaged and junk cars out of back yards and street curbs.

"By the time the consumer finds out, these gypies are long gone," says Past President Homer Smith of Dothan. "We believe," says Association President Hershell Reeves, "That by supporting a strong industry regulatory measure, we can go a long way toward gaining and restoring public confidence. Frankly, most of us exist by repeat business, which makes up 50 - 75% of our total sales. We resent the "scrap metal" boys and "car jockeys" that hurt all of us."

Reader questions salary scales

We would like to add a hearty 'Amen' to the letter that Mr. James Lee of Montevallo wrote (8-14-75) regarding the proposed sales tax and the exorbitant salary increases plus fringe benefits our top county officials are giving themselves.

We think it is time for the people of Shelby County to say when a raise should be given, to whom and the amount. We also protest nepotism in the elective offices. No elected official should be allowed to employ an immediate member of his or his spouse's family

We wish to challenge the wives of our top officials, such as Supt. of Education, Probate Judge, Sheriff, et al., to try EXISTING on what the wives of the County Highway Department laborers are compelled to.

The $6,000 a year RAISE that Mr. Hill has just received is more than many of the County Highway laborers receive in a year for hard manual labor. Some of these employees have six or more in their families. Can you imagine trying to live on about $100.00 a week take-home pay with today's high prices? WE think it's past time that the average worker be considered.

Our County Commissioners and the Chairman will point out the fringe benefits for which we should be grateful. Yes, the county does furnish our Blue-Cross insurance but they failed to make any provisions for the $50.00 necessary to be admitted and the other expenses incurrred for only a brief stay in the hospital.

We would also like to express our disgust in the four county commissioners receiving $500.00 a month salary plus expense money for favoritism to a selective group of county officials. Why don't they have to be full-time (40 ours a week) employees to serve the people they represent instead of a day or two a month if they care to attend the

Since we, the taxpayers, pay these salaries, we think it is our prerogative to have some say in how the tax money should be spent. We are not against paying a man to do a honest day's work but we do think a laborer is worthy of his hire and should be paid on the same ratio as other county officials.

Farmer is key to nation's strength

It is ironic that for the secon d time in three years the Russians have had to come to the American free-enterprise marketplace to make massive purchases of grains to make up for shortages from their own collective farm system.

The superior productivity of American farmers is clearly demonstrated by the fact that we raise some 239 million tons of grain a year compared to only 200 million tons of grain raised by Russian farmers. In over all farm production - not just grain - we have about 8 million farmers whereas the Russians have 77 million farmers employed on communes.

America's great strength lies in large part in our tremendous productive capacity-and our agricultural production sets the pace. We can export two-thirds of our food grains, one-fourth of our feed grains, and over one-third of our soybean and cotton production.

In the past 20 years, we used more than $25-billion worth of farm products to ward off hunger and starvation throughout the world.

Just last year, we earned more than $21-billion from commercial farm exports--contributing substantial strength to the value of the dollar in world markets. Our agricultural exports exceeded our imports by $9-billion, giving us a desperately needed surplus of this amount in our balance of

It is because American farm families have produced--because they have had incentive to produce. It is because the American agricultural system is second to one, and we must guard and protect the free enterprise system which makes it possible. We must be certain that farmers and ranchers continue to have adequate incentives to produce, because a bankrupt agricultural system will never produce the abundance of food and fiber needed for maintaining a strong economy.

If American farmers are to produce for world markets, we must improve their access to the raw materials which go into agricultural production. We must insure that our food and farm policy is a fair policy-adequate for our farmers, abundant for our consumers, and responsive to a hungry world. As I see it, we must keep the farmer in business, not just for the farmer's benefit but for the benefit of consumers, for the benefit of our Nation's

Chain letters prompt warning

If someone asks you to join a money-making plan involving chain letters and U.S. Savings Bonds, you'd better refuse. You aren't likely to make any money - - it's more likely you'll lose your "investment" to get in on the deal - - and it's possible you may be prosecuted for violation of federal, state or local laws.

A few months ago, a number of endless-chain schemes were launched in Southern California. Some of these 'chain-letters' have surfaced in Alabama. The intermingling organizations were active under several misleading names - - - "Your March of Bonds", Inflation Defense Foundation", "Century Club", Exclusive One Million, Inc.", "Uncle Sam Investment, Inc.", "Six-Pack

The scheme most often used worked this way - - the victim became an "active member" by paying $37.50 to a "sponsor". In return, he received a membership list of 10 names and a $25 Savings Bond, recently purchased for $18.75, made payable to the first person on the list. The new "member" made two new membership lists, crossing off the top name on the original list and adding his own name at the bottom. He then purchased two $25 Bonds, payable to the person who was then first on the new lists. He delivered the Bond that came with the first list to the person names - - personally or by mail.

As a "new member", he was required to pay annual dues of $3 and to purchase membership books, at $1.50 each, to give to the two "new members" he brought into the scheme. The victim had spent $81, but was told he would recover most of his investment when he sold two lists. He did, in fact, recover $75, if he was able to do so.

However, for one member to receive $19,200 - the promised windfall - 1,024 new members would have had to join after he did, without the chain's being broken. To achieve "optimum success", the schemes required a membership of 250 times the entire population of the

Since the membership lists were originally prepared by the promoters - - with their names and addresses or those of their associates heading the lists - - the scheme would provide Bonds for the promoters long before - - if ever - - new members reaped any harvest.

Most of the "bottom-liners" involved in such schemes are relatively innocent of wrongdoing. They have no intention of perpetrating a fraudulent scheme or otherwise using the mails illegally. In addition to the promise of a dollar reward, they are often persuaded that they are being "patriotic" - - helping their government's Savings Bonds Program.

Over the years, the Department of the Treasury has advised the public that chain-letter schemes involving Savings Bonds - - which are essentially get-rich-quick endeavors - - do a distinct disservice to the Savings Bonds Program. Instead of encouraging individuals to develop genuine savings plans, they create the illusion that participants are both aiding their government and themselves. Even in the rare case where an individual receives a large return, it is likely that the would quickly redeem the Bonds, thereby placing a further burden on the

From time to time, the Treasury's Savings Bonds Division warns the public of the illegality of chain-letter schemes involving Savings Bonds. When a specific instance is brought to its attention, special warnings are distributed to news media in the areas involved.

Individuals who purchase Savings Bonds for such chain-letter schemes, and who discover that participation may violate certain laws and regulations, may request a refund, using Treasury Form PD-2966. This form is available at many banks; it may also be requested from the Bureau of the Public Debt, 200 Third Street, Parkersburg, W. Va. 26101.

Schools underway caution flag is up

With school opening throughout the State of Alabama next week, it's time to get back in the "caution" habit near schools and school buses. The most priceless of cargoes on Alabama highways are carried on yellow vehicles labeled school buses.

Alabama rural drivers must be especially alert in the early morning hours and after school for children running across or standing along our rural highways. Every driver dreads the thought of a child darting out in front of his automobile whether on a bike or foot. With school back in session once again, all drivers must be extra watchful for school children and school buses. With the excitement of returning to school, these youngsters are bound to be a little careless.

Last year Alabama school buses traveled over 42 million miles without a single fatality. We must strive to continue this outstanding record in 1975.

Alabama law requires motorists on all highways regardless of whether two or four-lane highways to stop for any school bus or any vehicle engaged in taking on or discharging school children. Penalty for failure to stop is punishable by fine of up to $300 and up to 90 days in the county jail. "Stopping for a school bus may cause drivers to lose a little time, however, one school child's life is worth more than time," according to Col. E. C. Dothard, State Director of Public Safety.

Remember that school buses are required to stop at all railroad crossings and motorists should be cautious when following a school bus approaching crossings. Reduce speed while meeting or overtaking a school bus and be prepared to stop at any time.

Good Morning

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, a member of the FDIC.

by Milton Bird

A letter in the mail.... Memory is a fickle lass, Joe. But I remember you could go two ways. In June you went down Granny's hill and turned left on the Wilsonville road. But in September you stopped in Mrs. McMillan's pasture and ate a tummy full of scalybarks before you turned right on the Wilsonville Road.

But you had to pass Aunt Annie Bird's house and Mrs. A. P. Longshore's house and Mrs. Hattie Hicks' house before you got to the curve. Remember the old honeysuckle fence that came down a little hill and ran along the road. Where we played Tarzan, climbing through the thick honeysuckle, and riding the saplins that stuck their heads through the twisted vines.

We crossed the spring branch at Mr. Barnett's place, and got in the water up to our knees, chasing redhorse Iminnows that darted out of sight behind the rocks. I guess we chased a million. And I suppose, if we had some way to know, there are still a million there. If a fellow had time to count 'em, or nerve enough to wade around in the icy We'd go on, past Mr. Lapsley Holcomb's house, where the corn grew taller than anywhere else. Remember his sweet potato patch? It must have covered an acre, between the road and the mountain.

The road was always dusty and always hot. And maybe in a hundred trips he might see a car, that only meant more dust, but never a ride.

Then there was Nolan Barnett's house, and his flowers anyway you looked. More blossoms than a boy could count and every color he could think of, and Mr. Barnett always in the middle of 'em, petting 'em along.

The road was still dusty and still hot, and to get more dust we'd climb the high cut and slide down the steep clay banks, between Mr. Barnett's house and Mr. Holcomb's

Mr. Holcomb had a side yard full of wild goose plum trees. The plums would get ripe around the middle of June and hang there until late August. And a boy, passing them almost every day, never failed to look at 'em and never failed to want 'em and never, somehow, managed to get any. Maybe if we had asked instead of trying to slip in it would have been different. And a lot of plums that fell off in August and rotted on the ground would have ended up long before in a boy's tummy. But somehow, when you're ten, it's easier to slip in than to ask, even though you might not find it out until nearly 60 years later.

It was another mile from Mr. Holcomb's house to the swimming hole in Mr. Cates' pasture. And from where we turned off the road it wasn't more than a hundred yards to the spring where a lady kept her buttermilk.

But for the life of me, Joe, I can't recall the lady's name who kept her buttermilk there. Maybe if you'd write Karl Harrison he'd know. He was the buttermilk boy.

Beasley discusses state constitution

In an earlier column this year, I noted that "the Alabama Constitution has the dubious distinction of being the most outdated and heavily amended state constitution in the land." Many provisions of our 1901 constitution are cumbersome and overly restrictive. A number of bills are now pending in the Legislature to bring about reforms and streamlining in this area.

The first phase of the con-The wedding music was stitutional reform package was passed in 1973 and approved by a vote of the people. of "annual sessions." There is much yet to be done in the area of legislative reform, much of which will require constitutional change. Before annual sessions will improve the legislative process, a great deal more must be done to upgrade the Legislature.

There have been a number of bills introduced to substantially change the Constitution. Examples are reform of the executive branch of state government and "Home Rule" for local governments in Alabama. Presently, there are some 40 bills pending which directly relate to constitutional reform. Specific information will be supplied on request. ### Farm value

shows 91% rise

Maddox said, by comparison, U. S. farmland value increased 80 percent during the same period.

Alabama farm real estate was valued at $200 per acre in 1970, he said. By 1975 it had increased to $383 per acre. Throughout the United States, acre values went from $195 in 1970 to $354 this year. During the 12-month period ending March 1, 1975, the average value of farmland in the United States rose 14 percent, while in Alabama it increased only 10

Council airs parking, arrest complaints

by Reporter Staff

Automobile parking problems and a protest over the arrest of a 71-year old man charged with driving while intoxicated and other offenses, occupied nearly three hours of time during Monday night's meeting of the Montevallo City Council.

Mr. Tony Hall, who lives on Montevallo's Middle Street, across from the University of Montevallo campus, requested relief from problems created by cars parked for long periods "of time in front of his home. He indicated that on several occasions parked cars have blocked his private driveway.

As a step toward alleviating the parking problem on streets near th U M campus, Streets Committee Chairman James Seaman made a motion to establish a two-hour parking limit on all streets bordering the campus and also for one block of Highland Avenue adjacent to the campus. The motion carried by unanimous vote. City Clerk Kenneth Bailey was instructed to order appropriate signs. Police Chief Troy Kirkland indicated enforcement of the two-hour limit would begin as soon as the signs arrive.

Mrs. Betty Lawley also requested relief from problems created when cars are parked across the driveway of her property. Mrs. Lawley was critical of delays she said she experienced when police were called to move the offending

Officers who had been called to the Lawley property indicated that in several instances cars had already been moved when they arrived

The Rev. Leon Harris, representing the Montevallo Suburban League, protested to council members what he termed unnecessary force in the arrest of 71-year-old Ruben White. The arrest, shortly before 8:00 p.m. Saturday night, sparked what Harris said was "unusual tension in the black community"

Funeral services were held earlier this month for 17 year old William Arthur Smith, Jr., of Columbiana, who died at University Hospital in Birmingham.

Arthur, who would have been a senior at Shelby County High School this year, had been a patient at Children's Hospital in Birmingham for several years.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Smith, Sr., two sisters, Martha and Paulette.

Services were held under the direction of Bolton-Brown Service Funeral Home in Columbiana, with the Rev. Wayne Ozment, officiating.

Our society today is a society of disposables.

We drink many of our drinks from no-return bottles or cans -- use them once and toss them away. And the same thing is true of the containers in which we buy most consumer goods these days. But all of this goes against the grain for a country boy like me who was raised during depression days and taught never to waste to throw away anything that was in usable condition.

My daddy would never throw away a good piece of string, for example. He would wind it around a corncob or empty thread spool and keep it handy for those times when a piece of string was needed.

Empty bottle were never discarded at our house unless they were chipped or cracked and thus no longer potentially useful. We had an old storage house with hundreds of empty bottles in it, from medicine bottles to vinegar jugs. If I still possessed all these old botltes they would be worth thousands of dollars to today's bottle collectors!

When automobile tires became worn absolutely threadbare they were kept as playthings for the children, made into tire swings, filled with dirt to make circular flower bed borders in the yard, or chopped into short pieces

A history of the Montevallo United Methodist Church is now being written by Mrs. Elsie Archer Jones.

Mrs. Jones is using papers and books in the University of Montevallo library and the Birmingham Southern library as source material for her history. She is asking that anyone who might have old papers, letters or information about the early history of the church contact her at 665-7144.

In her studying to date, she has found that the Montevallo church was founded in 1818, and about the same time, the Ebenezer church, five miles north of Montevallo, and the Bethlehem Church at Harpersville, were also formed. Mrs. Jones is the former Westover correspondent of the Shelby County Reporter.

for Pvt. Gould

Army Private Paul K Gould, son of James R. Gould, Route 2. Columbiana, completed nine weeks of advanced individual training at the U. S. Army Infantry Training Center, Fort Polk, Louisiana.

He received general training as a light weapons infantryman and as a mortar and recoilless rifle crewman, in addition to specialized weapons instruction.

He also was taught the proper use of high explosives and the placement, detection and disarming of mines.

Teamwork was emphasized while he learned to work as a member of a rifle squad, mortar squad or direct fire section. Each team member completed the training well qualified to perform other jobs in case of casualties.

The fashion world's Fall-Winter emphasis on the Orient calls for this very special Oriental expression in hairstyling. Full, straight bangs are the key in this Beautiful Hair styling. The sides may be worn straight or curled to fit different fashion

The nape area is pre-permed to provide extra back-volume interest, and artistically cut to slightly hug the neck in a modified bob.

Capturing the mystery of the Far East, this hairstyle recognizes the major importance of Oriental-influenced fashion for Fall-Winter, while allowing for versatile styling to fit other current fashion moods.

Width can be added easily with fashionable upward-moving curls on the sides. More curls in the back or smoothly directed styling to the full back area offer possibilities for other fashion
